FOREWORD

It is recognized that speculation as to ancestry is not good genealogy, but at the same time, it is recognized that although lineal descent is not always definitely known, children must have parents. To elucidate the probable parentage of a score of persons in the fourth generation of the posterity of Stukely Westcott whom Bullock and others left unplaced in the lineal descent, this explanative statement is presented chiefly in the hope that research in the future may uncover further information.

In the privately published research closed by Judge Bullock of Bristol, Rhode Island, in 1886, he enumerated eighty-six persons bearing the surname Westcott, "all of whom are believed," he wrote, "to be descendants of the first Stukely Westcott, but who are not placed in the foregoing work (his book), in lineal order of descent, from want of accurate knowledge of their immediate parentage." Of these eighty-six persons, a score or more are found to have been of the fourth generation.

Judge Bullock, one time (1860-1) lieut.-governor of Rhode Island and a jurist of renown, was the son of Nathaniel Bullock, also lieut.-governor of Rhode Island in 1842-3. Judge Bullock, in his preface, says his "sketch of the first Stukely Westcott was written, not for public circulation, but to gratify a laudable desire in some of his posterity (probably, chiefly, his wife, Emma Westcott, b-1834; see W. G., p. 209) to know what might be ascertained of the life of their first American ancestor."

The Westcott family is deeply indebted to Judge Bullock for his painstaking research. He passed his entire life, as did his father, in Rhode Island, where he could consult at will, not only Colonial, State and town records, but many of the older people who could recall information given them in the late years of the 18th century, and being well equipped for such work, he performed his task with noteworthy efficiency. The records he compiled probably could not be assembled today; a half-century later.

It would be a worthy recognition of his great service and estimable contribution to the history of the family, if the Society of Stukely Westcott Descendants would place a memorial at his grave.

More than half of the eighty-six persons whom the Judge could not place in their lineal order, have since been identified, including some score or more who were either born or married at a time which made them of suitable age to have been great-grandchildren of the first Stukely Westcott and it is of them this statement is principally concerned.

Wescott had six children. The records of them and his grandchildren, are well authenticated by Judge Bullock from vital statistics, State papers, old family Bibles, wills, deeds, etc. The only break in the chain of lineage occurs in the families of Jeremiah, Jr., and William, two of the six children of the first Jeremiah, of Stukely. The persons of suitable age to have been great-grandchildren of Stukely, must have been children of one of these two grandsons (sons of Jeremiah, Sr.). There were no other grandsons of the first Stukely whose posterity is not known, that could have been their parents.

Some of this score or more of persons were born in Old Warwick and continued to live there or in closeby Coventry and Scituate townships. Others were born in Cranston township and lived there or in Johnston township.

Jeremiah and Jeremiah, Jr., lived in Warwick. In 1722, the younger Jeremiah sold his father's old home and soon thereafter removed to Coventry. Several of his known children were born in Warwick and settled in Coventry and Scituate. Therefore, it is logical to assume that those born in Warwick or recorded as "of Warwick," were children of Jeremiah, Jr., and Mary (Warner) Westcott. Their known children were Jeremiah, III, Stukely, Mary, George, Ann, James, Thomas and Eleanor.

William was some fourteen years younger than his brother Jeremiah, and was not married until Jeremiah had had several children. Soon after William married Abigail Gardiner, he settled in Cranston township on a farm adjoining that of his brother Stukely, and here he passed his life. And so, it is logical that those born in Cranston or Providence as it was known until 1754, when it was set off from Providence, or are recorded as "of Providence" or "of Cranston," were children of William and Abigail. Their known children were William, Ezekiel, Bethiah, Zuriel, Experience, Penelope. Also they probably had Joseph, Hannah, Stukely, Peleg, John, Amos, Mercy and Mary.

As previously stated, these persons must have been children of either Jeremiah, Jr., or William, and the segregation of them is chiefly predicated upon localities in which they are recorded, although, in some instances, the same Christian names, as John and Stukely, are found in both groups.

This compiler feels that there is not the percentage of speculation here that may appeal to those who have not made a long study of the matter. More or less diligent efforts have been made since October, 1929, to find positive records to substantiate these deductions and in several instances, the desired evidence has been found. In the introductions that follow, unless proof has been obtained, the probable lineal descent will be qualified. May another compiler, at some future time, be more successful.

HISTORICAL

The Ancient Westcott Family in England

Effort to determine the immediate ancestry of Stukely Westcott has resulted only in deductions. No definite record has been found. The research since 1932, the year the history and genealogy of "The Ancestors and Some Descendants of Stukely Westcott, 1592-1677," was published, has, however, revealed records of Westcotts, or Wescotes, as the name was originally spelled, who flourished in Devonshire, England, long before and after the time of St. Leger de Wescote, 1300. (W. G., pp. 1, 2, 4.)

While the origin of the surname of the family in England probably goes back to before the 9th century, to Wessex (that is, West Saxony), an Anglo-Saxon kingdom in south and southwest Britain during the 6th, 7th and 8th centuries, a definite record of a person bearing the surname has not been found previous to the 12th century. Wessex was founded by Saxons under Cerdic (519-534) and during the 7th century, occupied the most of the south-west of Britain. Under Egbert (d-839), descendant of Cerdic, who became virtually England's first king, the Saxons rose to the lordship of other kingdoms and states, and began the history of England.

While there are no records available, there can be no reasonable doubt of descent from those "pioneering" Saxons of Wessex. Records emanating from the 13th and 14th centuries, indicate that Westcotts were prominent then in the ecclesiastic life of Britain, as were Stukely Westcott and many of his descendants in their early pursuit of religious freedom in America. In later years, Westcotts, in most instances, have been Baptists, Congregationalists, Episcopalians and Presbyterians.

In the British Museum in London, are many abstracts of "leases" (deeds) and other ancient papers on file, which have been examined to some extent, but they are mostly of periods many years before the birth of Stukely Westcott. In the Museum and in the "close" of Westminster Abbey, are the only two known existing copies of a book over 440 years old in which records of the early Wescotes are found. (See Caroline Romney, app. 198.)

Further research in London and various parishes of Devon and Somerset, promises encouragement for an intensified and thorough examination by a trained English genealogist. It is hoped such a work may be undertaken in the not distant future.

The following ancient lineage of Wescotes is of interest as it indicates the ancestry of St. Leger Wescote (W. G., pp. 1, 2, 4)and several generations following him. It is notable that the persons named in the succeeding generations were all of the south and north-central part of Devon.

1. Furbert de Wescote, b-1164, d-Exeter, Devon, 1225.
2. John de Wescote, b-Exeter, 1184. He was Canon Residentiary of St. Peter's at Exeter, 1216-1272. (The bishopric, of which Exeter was the seat, was founded about 1050. Its cathedral was begun about 1100.)
3. John de Wescote was rector of John the Baptist Hospital at Exeter, 1272-1307. His wife was a daughter of Sir John St. Leger. They had sons John, St. Leger and Thomas. John was Warden of John the Baptist Hospital, Exeter, and Canon of St. Peter's, Exeter, 1317. Thomas was Abbott of Hartland, Devon, in 1315. St. Leger, second son, probably derived his name from his mother.
4. St. Leger Wescote "of the Manor of Wescote," was married in the year 1300. (W. G., pp. 1, 2, 4.)
5. William de Wescote "flourished at the Manor of Wescote" in 1345-6, which Manor he "held" of William Coffyn. His wife was a Danish lady, and to them was born a son Guy.
6. *Guy de Wescote, assumed to be the foregoing Guy, had a son (7) Thomas.

At this point, it can be only surmised that this son Thomas (7) was the Thomas de Wescote, who, about 1400, married Elizabeth Littleton. (W. G., p. 6.) Historians record this Thomas de Wescote as descending from St. Leger Wescote. The second son of Thomas and Elizabeth was named Guido. The name Guy is Danish and in Spanish is spelled Guido and pronounced Gui'do. By a pre-nuptial agreement, Thomas de Wescote had promised to name his first son Thomas, not for himself but for Baron Thomas de Littleton, father of his wife. This son was baptised Thomas de Littleton. The second son, Guido, was named perhaps for his paternal grandfather Guy.

Thomas de Wescote, baptised Thomas de Littleton, was born, according to the "History of National Biography, 1909" (vol. xi, p. 1252), in 1422; not 1402 as recorded by Lord Burke and W. G., p. 6. This would make the birth of his brother Guido in the year 1424. It is believed, however, that 1404 is correct, as in 1450, Guido was granted his Coat of Arms.

The Westcott Coat of Arms

The heraldic interpretation of the Coat of Arms granted to Guido Wescote in the year 1450 and used by the members of the Society of Stukely Westcott Descendants of America, can better be understood by first reading the account of Thomas de Wescote, his pre-nuptial agreement with Elizabeth Littleton, who became his wife, and the evident determination of their second son Guido to perpetuate the family name. (W. G., p. 6).

The Arms reveal the ancient family in England as one of the nobility, and bear out the records handed down to posterity by Lord Burk, Lord Coke, Thomas de Wescote, Collins and others.

* "Guy de Wescote of Wescote" (County Devon, Eng.). Harlain Soc., vol. vi., p. 362; "Westcot's Devonshire," by G. Oliver and P. Jones, vol. xii, pp. 621-2; Burke's Peerages, 1877, p. 435.

Royal blood is indicated in the Arms because of the tilted crown shown in the helmet. The helmet slightly at profile, indicates the Arms was granted to a Knight or Baronet. The robe or mantling around the helmet and shield, because its effect is ragged, indicates the first one to wear the Coat of Arms was a Battle Knight; also because the two uppermost corners of the mantling turn down, it indicates he was the King's bodyguard, whose members were allowed to keep the collars turned down in the presence of the King.

The three vessels or cups on the shield are apparently representative of the three brothers (Guido, Edmund and Nicholas), who retained the name Wescote, although their meaning is not quite clear in heraldic lore. They are possibly incense holders, each assuring light or heat in the perpetuation of the family name.

The red band across the shield indicates that Guido was accepted as the oldest son, since the older brother Thomas had abandoned the family by being baptised Littleton; in other words, the red band indicates the oldest son of the oldest son. The clasped hands issuing from clouds indicate friendliness or neighborliness and accepted with the motto, Renovato nomine, meaning the name renewed, indicates a rehabilitation of the family.

The Littleton Family

Elizabeth de Littleton, who married Thomas de Wescote, was the sole heir of Baron Thomas de Littleton and his wife, Maud Quartermain, dau. of Sir Richard. Baron Thomas was the son of Thomas de Littleton, b-1340, and his wife, Julia de Somery, of Thomas de Littleton, b-1315, and his wife, Lucia de Bois, of the first Thomas de Littleton who in 1265 married Emma de Frankly, dau. Sir Simon de Frankly, b-1180, and at the death of Emma, her husband became heir to the rich Frankly possessions. He m(2)-Asseline Fitz-Warren, dau. William Fitz-Warren, b-1152, and by this second marriage, their son Thomas was born in 1315.

Through the five generations from Sir Simon de Frankly, Elizabeth de Littleton retained the Frankly estate in Worcestershire, and soon following her marriage to Thomas de Wescote, they went there to live, their son Guido retaining the Manor of Wescote in Devonshire. The ancestry of the wife of Guido de Wescote, who was Alice Granville, reverts to a cousin of the Conqueror.

Other Early Westcotts in England

Other Westcotts in England before the coming of Stukely Westcott from England to New England, 1635:

Ricardus de Westkote of Buckinghamshire, 1273.

Henry Wescote, b-1280.

Nicholas de Westcote of Oxfordshire, about 1280.

John de Westcote, Apr. 6, 1315, was a witness in Hampshire to a quit claim by Peter de Wadham of land which his grandfather Doru de Frevillis, had quit claimed to his son Mathias. (St. Leger Wescote married in 1300, "a daughter of the line descending through the titled families of Wadham [sometimes spelled Wordham] and Cantelupe"). (W. G., p. 4.) This John may have been the John de Wescote of Exeter, who married a daughter of Sir John St. Leger.

Richard de Wescote of Somersetshire, 1327.

Richard Westcoute in parish of Clyst Houiton, Devon, 1507-8.

Sebastian Westcote b-Chumleigh, Devon, about 1523. He was organist, almoner and master of Children at St. Paul's Cathedral in London during the mid-16th century. He wrote court plays and incidental music. He was a favorite of Queen Elizabeth and under her protection retained his post through changes of religious belief in the English Church. He died a rich man in 1582 and was buried in St. Paul's Cathedral. According to the terms of his will, he was not married.

Edward Westcote "lease held (deed) Axhayne, parish of Clyst Houiton, Affeton, Devonshire," before 1543. He deeded Aug. 22, 1550-1, "for life and widowhood respectively, land called Axhayne in the parish of Clyst Huiton," to Christopher Stucley (Stukely) and wife Mary. This Christopher Stucley was "of Somerset." He was in Clyst Houiton as late as Dec. 18, 1567, when he had daughters Mary and Demaris. (Could this Damaris or Mary have been the mother or grandmother of Stukely Westcott?) In "Collections" by William Pope, who d-1635, he states "Clyst Huiton belongs to the dean and chapter of Exon (Exeter in Devon) Cathedral and lieth in the streete way betwixt Huiton and Exeter." (See Stucley family.)

Phillip Westcott and Elizabeth Coxe, spinster, of London, gen. lic., 18th Aug., 1562.

Richard Westcott, 1588, who m-Mary Parsons. (See App. "EE.")

Richard Wescote of St. Peter, Cornhill, London, poulterer, and Johanna Whitrigges, of same, spinster, dau. William Whittrigges, were m-July 11, 1592, at St. Leonard, Shoreditch, Middlesex, Eng.

Edward Westcott of Hownslowe, parish Heston, County Herts, Eng., gent., and Magdalen Whitby, dau. Thomas of same, license to marry Nov. 26, 1597.

John Westcott; flourished 1606.

Alice Westcott, d-1606.

Welthina Westcott, d-1614.

Some interest centers in the above Christopher Stucley "of Somerset" (see Edward Wescote), who moved to Affeton in Devon. The unusual Christian name of Stukely Westcott was undoubtedly derived from the Stucley family. The name is variously spelled in old records, Stucley, Stewakley, etc. Correspondents of this compiler claim they have seen records that Westcott's mother (some say, his grandmother) was Mary Stucley, Damaris Stucley or Sarah Stucley, but in no instance has substantiating proof been submitted, nor has it been possible so far for this compiler to verify any of the statements.

Caroline Romney (app. 198), in a letter written Feb. 2, 1900, states she found a record in the Newberry Library, Chicago, that Damaris Stucley was the mother of Stukely Westcott. However, this compiler has been unable to verify the statement. In a matter so important to the family history, credence should not be given to these statements. While it may be safely assumed that Westcott carried the blood of the Stucley family, positive evidence has not been found. While in London, Bishop Brooks Foss Westcott (1825-1901), Lord Bishop of Durham, who had five sons in the ministry, is said to have shown Miss Romney the ancient "Wescote Annals" in the "close" of Westminster Abbey and permitted her to copy some of the records.

The Stucley Family in England Before the Birth of Stukely Westcott

The Christian name of Stukely Westcott suggested further research of the Stucley family in the hope it might reveal his maternal ancestry. Although the family is traced from before 1414 to the time of Westcott, it does not definitely indicate his ancestry. Much of the data here presented is irrelevant to this history, except in that it shows the prominence of the Stucley family. (Delete Stucley fam. records, W. G., p. 5.) Mention of this family first appears in the Huntington records before 1199, but not until 1414 is a definite lineage found.

(1) Richard Stuccle appears in Marsh of Dunster, Somersetshire, England, with wife, Jean, dau. and heir of Thomas. This was in 1414. They had two sons: Richard and George. Richard m-Jane, dau. Sir John Luttrel, and they had Peter who m-Agnes, dau. Trubody of Totherby, and to them was born Hugh who m-Elizabeth, dau. Richard Chamberlain of London. This Hugh was bur. at Dunster, 1588-9, leaving chn.: George, Joan, Thomas, Susanna and Ursula.

(2) Richard Stuccle, son of Richard and Jean; m-Elizabeth, Lady of Chuton.

(3) Sir Hugh Stucley, son of Richard and Elizabeth; m-Katherine Affeton, dau. Sir John Affeton of Affeton, Devonshire, whose wife was dau. of Thomas Bratton. Hugh and Katherine settled in Affeton, of which she was sole heiress and he became knight and sheriff of Devonshire. Their issue: Hugh, John, Elizabeth, Nicholas.

(4) Sir Hugh Stucley, 1496-1559, oldest son of Hugh and Katherine; m(1?)-1528, Jane Pollard, dau. Sir Lewis Pollard, who was Judge of Common Pleas. Hugh owned "the Manor of Wescote" at Wescote in Devonshire, and died in closeby Affeton. Of issue: Lewis, Nicholas, Thomas, Amias (said to have been by second wife).

(5) Sir Lewis Stucley, 1529-1589, oldest son of Hugh and Jane; m-Dorothy Hill, dau. Sir Giles Hill. There is record of son Lewis.

(6) Sir Lewis Stucley; m- Margaret Arscote. He was knighted by James I in 1603, and in 1617, was appointed the guardian of Thomas Rolf, infant son of John Rolf and his wife, the American Indian princess, Pocahontas (W. G., p. 5).

NOTE—A chart by Russell Westcott Haight (app. 212) submitted in 1935, without giving reference or authority, indicates Lewis and Margaret had dau. Mary Stucley who m-Guy Westcott, and they were the parents of Stukely Westcott, the emigrant.

(4) John Stucley, recorded as "John Stucley, Esquire, of Affeton; son of (3) Hugh and Katherine; m-Frances, dau. Sir John St. Leger, "through whom he was related to all the prominent families of western England, and was patron of the church at West Worlington." Sir John St. Leger, kt.; m-Katherine Nevil, Lord Abergavenny, and was son of Sir George St. Leger of Annery, kt. and sheriff of Devon, and his wife, Ann, dau. Edmund Knivet, Esquire, grandson of Sir James St. Leger and his wife, Anne, eldest dau. of Thomas Butler, third son and co-heir of James Butler, fourth of the name from the Earl of Ormond, and his wife, Anne, one of the heirs of Sir William Hankford, gr.-grandson of Thomas St. Leger of Exeter, Devon, and his wife, the Duchess of Exeter and sister of Edward IV (1441-1483).

(4) Elizabeth Stucley, dau. (3) Hugh and Katherine; m-Sir John Wadham. They had a large posterity, of whom: Alice (see Nicholas, 5 folowing).

(5) Nicholas Stucley, second son of Hugh and Jane; m-Alice, dau. Sir John Wadham and his wife, Elizabeth Stucley, dau. Hugh and Katherine. He was "of Trent." Their second son was William.

(6) William Stucley; m-Joan Stowell of Codleston, Somerset. Issue: Christopher (see 7), Elizabeth (m-Thomas Moore of Taunton), Katherine (2nd wife of John Carew of Bickleigh), Mary (m-William Anthony).

(7) Christopher Stucley of Farrington, Somerset; m-Mary Ford, dau. Edward of Fordhays in parish Plymtree, Somerset. Abstracts of deeds in the London Museum: "John Syddenham, of Nettlecomb, Somerset to Nicholas Turner, all the land called Axhayne in the parish of Clyst Huiton, which Edward Westcote, formerly held, for the term of the life of Nicholas Turner and after his decease to such woman as he shall first take to wife, during her widowhood. Rent, 53s, 4d. Dated: 6 Dec., 1543-4." The second deed, in part, reads: "Christopher Stucley and wife Mary, by John Syddenham," "for life and widowhood respectively, land called Axhayne in the parish of Clyst Huiton, which Nicholas Turner held before. Rent: 53s, 4d." Attorney to deliver, John Gerveys. Witness: Edward Westcote. Dated: 22 August, 1550-1. Issue to Christopher and Mary: John, Andrew, Damaris, Mary, Grace, Elizabeth, Ann.

NOTE—Did Edward Westcote, witness to the deed of Christopher Stucley in 1550-1, marry his dau. Damaris, and were they grandparents of Stukely Westcott, the emigrant?

(5) Thomas Stucley, d-1578, "third of five sons of (4) Hugh and Jane"; m-Jane, dau. Judge Thomas Woode.

(5) Amias Stucley; said to have been son of (4) Hugh by a second wife; m-. Issue: Dam-a-ris, so pronounced in England; d-unm.

Immediate Ancestry of Stukely Westcott

Assuming the son of Guy de Wescote (see 6), was Thomas de Wescote, the student of genealogy may in future years find the following lineage at least, suggestive of the immediate ancestry of Stukely Westcott. However, beyond the four generations first named, this compiler disclaims responsibility for its accuracy.

7. Thomas de Wescote; m-Elizabeth Littleton. (W. G., p. 6.)
8. Guido de Wescote, Kt.; m-Alice Granville. (W. G., p. 6.)
9. *Thomas Wescott (sic); m-Mary Wescott. (W. G., p. 7.)
10. Thomas Wescott (sic); m(2)-Alice Walker. (W. G., p. 7.)

Thomas and Alice Wescott had at least two sons, Phillip and the "unnamed son" (W. G., p. 7). This son was Edward.

 Mary Westcott, wife of Thomas, was dau. Thomas of Porlock in Somerset, of William of Porlock, of Guy Wescote of Wescote, Devon.

11. Edward Wescote flourished in 1541 to 1551. Was his wife Damaris Stucley, dau. Christopher and Mary? (See Stucley family and "Other Early Westcotts.")

12. ??

13. Stukely Westcott, 1592-1677; m-1619, Juliana Marchant.

If this lineage can be accepted, Stukely and Juliana named their first child Damaris for his grandmother from whom he derived his own Christian name. But who were his parents?

Marriage of Stukely Westcott in 1619.

Continued research has, however, definitely located Stukely Westcott in Ilminster, Somerset, in the Autumn of 1619, at which time he was about twenty-seven years of age. This was sixteen years before he came to New England. He was married Oct. 5, 1619, to Juliana Marchant (e). The marriage is recorded in the parish register of the ancient St. John the Baptist Church at Yeovil in Somerset; also the baptism of their two oldest children. The records read:

"Stucklie Westcott of Ilminster, and Julian Marchant of Yeovil, married 5 October, 1619." (Julian; now Juliana, Julia Ann or Julia.)

"Damaris, daughter of Stuckeley Westcott, baptised 27 January, 1621."

"Samuel, son of Stuckeley Westcott, baptised 3 March, 1623."

Juliana Marchant was the daughter of John Marchant, who was bapt. at Yeovil, Aug. 8, 1571, and granddaughter of John Marchant and his wife, Eva Cominge, who were married at Yeovil on July 18, 1568. John, Sr., d-1593. The Marchant family in Yeovil, according to the register, is as old as the register itself, which dates from the year 1563. Burke's "General Armory" records two families of Marchants entitled to bear Arms: (1) "Azure, a hare rampant, or, between three mulletts." The residence or county is not given. (2) "or, three anchors sable"; that is, a gold shield with three black anchors. This Coat of Arms is ascribed to Marchant family in Devonshire and plainly indicates they were sea-faring people, having probably received the grant of Arms for some valiant deed on the seas.

It may be noted that in the old register the surname is spelled Westcott in each instance, as Stukely Westcott spelled his name after coming to New England, while his Christian name is spelled "Stucklie" and "Stuckley," derivations undoubtedly from the old family of Stucley in Devon and Somerset. At Providence, R. I., Nov. 19, 1644, he signed his name "Stuckeley Westcott," much like the entries in the parish register at Yeovil. Later records of him in Old Warwick, R. I., spell his name Stukely or Stukeley and in various other forms used by succeeding town clerks. His signature in 1644 is believed to be the right spelling, but his succeeding namesakes adhered to the name Stukely or Stukeley.

A careful examination of the ancient register from its origin in 1563 to the time Westcott left for New England, by a trusted representative of E. Dwelly, a leading genealogist and an acknowledged antiquarian of ability in England, having revealed only the foregoing records, further effort to trace the immediate ancestry of Stukely Westcott must be directed in other sources.

Research at Ilminster, the place of Westcott's residence at the time of his marriage, is needless, as the records in the parish register there do not antedate 1660; those prior to that year were destroyed by war. There is the remaining hope that some record may be found in Porlock, Somerset (W. G., p. 7), where there lived, late in the 15th century, Thomas Wescott, whose daughter Mary married another Thomas Wescott, son of Guido and Alice (Granville) Wescote, the last of the reigning family to live in the ancestral Manor at "Wescote" in Devon. However, this Thomas and Mary flourished in Porlock some one hundred years before the birth of Stukely Westcott.

Robert Not the Oldest of the Children

The date of the marriage of Westcott and the baptism of his first two children, as recorded in the register at Yeovil, change the order of birth of the six Westcott children from the order as they were enumerated in the Westcott Genealogy, 1932. Instead of Robert being the oldest, he was probably the third child. Damaris was the first born and Samuel the second. The next definite date of the birth of the Westcott children is found in the Governor Arnold papers, which states that Amos, in 1635, was four years old, which makes the year of his birth 1631.

As Westcott refers to Robert as "my oldest son" (this after Samuel had died in Salem and before 1675 in which year Robert as a lieutenant, was killed in the King Philip war), and after Robert's death, to Amos as "my oldest son," it appears conclusively established that Robert was the third child and Amos probably the fourth, although the year Mercy was born is not definitely known. Jeremiah was the youngest of the six children.

Between the baptism of Samuel in 1623 and the birth of Amos in 1631, eight years elapsed. During this period and up to the time Westcott left for America, 1635, no further records of the family have been found. It is assumed that following the birth and baptism of Samuel, the family removed from the jurisdiction of the parish of Yeovil, settling perhaps some fourteen miles away in Ilminster or in some other closeby locality, for he was "of Yeovil or near there," when he set sail for America.

During the eight years between the births of Samuel and Amos, Robert was born. As Robert was chosen a Deputy to the Rhode Island Colonial Assembly in 1651, he was in that year probably at least twenty-five years of age, and if so, his birth would have occurred in or about 1625-6; perhaps, 1624-5.

Thus, it is found, that Damaris, Samuel and Robert were born between 1621 and 1625-6, and after an elapse of about five years, three more children, Amos, Mercy and Jeremiah, were born between 1631 and 1633-4. This elapse of time between the birth of the two groups of children, may suggest to some that following the birth of Robert, his mother, Juliana, died, and by 1630, Westcott had married again; that it was this second wife who accompanied him to New England.

However, there does not seem to be a basis for such deduction, other than the statements by Mrs. Lora LaMance in her history and genealogy, "The Green Tree" (pp. 118, 120, 278), which were accredited in the Westcott Genealogy, 1932 (pp. 9, 123), but which statements have been found, since 1932, to be erroneous.

In "The Green Tree," it is said that "Rosanna Hill, the emigrant, undoubtedly married Stukely Westcott," for "they were old friends at Great Torrington (Devonshire), England, and nearly the same age." Neither Stukely Westcott nor Rosanna Hill were "of Great Torrington," but both were of Somersetshire. There were eight in Westcott's family (himself, wife and their six children) when they came to New England with the William Arnold family in 1635 and again in Salem in the following year.

Therefore, as Rosanna Hill emigrated to New England in 1635, she could not have been Westcott's wife previously. If she married him in a later year, which is doubted, none of Westcott's six children could have been by her, and thus she must be eliminated as an ancestress of the general Westcott family.

As "evidence" that Rosanna Hill did marry Westcott, Mrs. LaMance's Green genealogy states that "Westcott's descendants carried the name Rosanna down for a half dozen generations; for more than a hundred years the name was never found in Rhode Island records except in families that sprung from the Westcotts." The research of Judge J. Russell Bullock, who compiled the only trustworthy history of the early Westcott family up to the year 1886, records the name only twice — once each in the VI and VII generations. Neither the name Rosanna nor Juliana seem to have been perpetuated in the family, "The Greene Tree" to the contrary notwithstanding.

A further erroneous statement is that Westcott's "oldest son was Amos Westcott." Proof to the contrary has already been given. It is further stated that "he (Amos) married two sisters, the youngest Deborah Stafford, marrying him June (or Jan.) 9, 1670. Rosanna was their daughter. She married Daniel Smith, and after his death, John Straight, by whom she had nine children. Elizabeth was the oldest, and was born October 8, 1705."

In his account of the family of Amos Westcott, Judge Bullock relied to a considerable extent upon family records handed down through generations to Amos Lockwood (1808-1886, not 1888; W. G., p. 142) of Warwick, R. I., who was then living on the old farm of Amos and Deborah, adjoining that of the latter's father, Stukely. Judge Bullock records Amos' children as Amos, Jr., Solomon, Sarah, Penelope, Mercy and Lauranah, and nowhere in his notes is there reference to a daughter Rosanna.

The son Solomon, died intestate, and in the settlement of his estate, March 13, 1711, "his sister Laurania (sic), and the husbands of the other sisters (Abraham Lockwood, James Baker and John Smith), ratify and confirm these sales and release the town council from all liability of the same."

To have had a daughter Elizabeth Straight on October 8, 1705, and eight other younger children, Rosanna Westcott Straight, if such a person ever existed, would have been living when Solomon Westcott's estate was settled on March 13, 1711, and it is logical to assume that she or her husband, John Straight, would have been named in the confirmation of the sale of Solomon's estate.

Again, "The Green Tree" states that "Richard Westcott had married Mary Parsons in 1611. Their son Stukely Westcott, came to Massachusetts about 1635, the same year Rose Hill came over." Richard Westcott was born about 1588. Stukely Westcott was born four years later, 1592, and so of course they were not father and son. They were both in Salem in 1636, Richard migrating to Connecticut and Stukely to Rhode Island. This compiler has found no evidence which proves that they were more than distantly related. (See "Family of Richard Westcott," app. "E. E.")

This compiler regretfully finds it advisable to correct statements by Mrs. LaMance in her genealogy, "The Green Tree," in the effort to clarify an authentic history of the Westcott family.

St. John's Church at Yeovil

The Church of St. John the Baptist in Yeovil, Somerset, England, in the old parish register of which is recorded the marriage of Stukely Westcott and Juliana Marchant and the baptism of their first two children, is of interest.

The earliest available record of the ancient church is 1141-48, when it was endowed by Empress Maud[1], who conferred upon it that Manor known as "The Tenement," jointly held by twenty-two freemen, who comprised a free community before the Norman Conquest.

There are no authentic remains of the earliest church, mentioned in 1226 as the [2]"Great Church of Givella" (Yeovil). The present church was commenced in [3]1380. Although it has undergone many changes and repairs, it "stands today an excellent example of a XIV century church."

[4]"The only remaining ancient fittings of the church are the Font, the great brass Lectern, and six of the (ten) bells. The Font is perpendicular, probably the original one, though much restored. The Lectern dates from about 1450, and one of the very few examples of the period remaining in England. The book support is of triangular section, and is carried on a column with protecting circular ornamentation springing from massive base on four feet, which are ornamented by couchant lions. Its height is six feet, six inches, by three feet, nine inches, at the base."

The present plate, memorials and four of the ten bells date from a period soon following the departure of Stukely Westcott for New England. As one looks at the picture of the old Lectern, it is interesting to conjecture Westcott and his wife seated with the faithful in the massive interior, 146 feet in length, listening to the Vicar, John Seward, and after 1625, to the Rev. Henry Butler (minister during the Commonwealth), present the gospel from the ancient standard, and again, looking at the picture of the still more ancient Font, to visualize the baptism of two of his children, Damaris and Samuel.

The Bible of Stukely Westcott

Stukely Westcott brought a small English Bible with him from England. It has been handed down through succeeding generations, but in 1912 its possession was transferred from the family to the custody of the museum in the Roger Williams Park at Providence. Later, the Bible was placed in the rooms of the Rhode Island Historical Society, where, in 1938, it was being carefully protected from fire and loss by being preserved in a safe. Neither the date nor the name of the publishers can be determined, for the first thirteen pages are missing. Other than that certain passages have been marked, it contains no records other than the notation on one of the back pages, written line for line as follows:

> This Bible was the Property of > Stukly Westcot, one of the Twelve > Followers of Roger Williams From > His Banishment out of Massachusetts > to Providence.
> Then it Descended to His Son
> Stukly Westcot (?) and From Him
> To Benjamin Westcot His Son
> and From Benjamin Westcot
> To Mr. Thomas Waterman His Grand> son my Mother being His daughter.

This notation was probably written about the year 1800 by Mr. Waterman (W. G., p. 180), whose mother was Freelove Westcott Waterman. Upon the death of Mrs. Waterman about 1794, the old Bible in time was evidently given to her younger sister, Lydia Westcott Stone, and from her it went to her son, Asa Stone (W. G., p. 168), who added the following:

> Then from Thomas Waterman's > widow to Lydia Stone and the Daughter > of the said Benjamin Westcott and from Lydia
> Stone to Asa Stone her son.

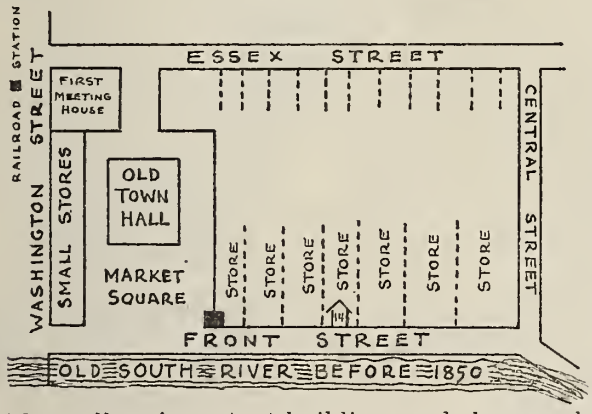
The writing in both instances is in the old style, "f" being used for "s." In stating that the Bible descended from the first Stukely Westcott to his son Stukely, Mr. Waterman was probably in error, for the Family Founder did not give his Christian name to one of his sons. It is more likely, at Westcott's death in 1677, the Bible went to his son Jeremiah, who lived across the road from his father and then had a son not quite three years old who had been named for his grandfather Stukely. This grandson, in turn, had a son Benjamin, whose daughters were Freelove and Lydia.

Upon the death of Asa Stone in 1865, the Bible went to his son, Lowery, and from him to his daughter, Loretta Stone, who presented it to the museum in the Roger Williams Park (Providence), where it was catalogued January 12, 1912, anniversary of the death of the Family Founder. It was this Asa Stone whose older brother, Westcott Stone, settled in the Abingtons of Pennsylvania.

Location of Westcott's "House Lot" in Salem, Mass., 1636

The description of the location of the Westcott home in Salem, as given in the Westcott Genealogy of 1932 (page 13), is approximately correct when viewed from a period as late as the middle of the 19th century. However, to the casual visitor to Salem today, it is without meaning.

In the early years, there were the North and the South Rivers, forming a peninsula, but today these rivers are gone, having been filled in and built on for a more modern Salem. Westcott's lot of one acre, granted him in 1636, was on this peninsula.



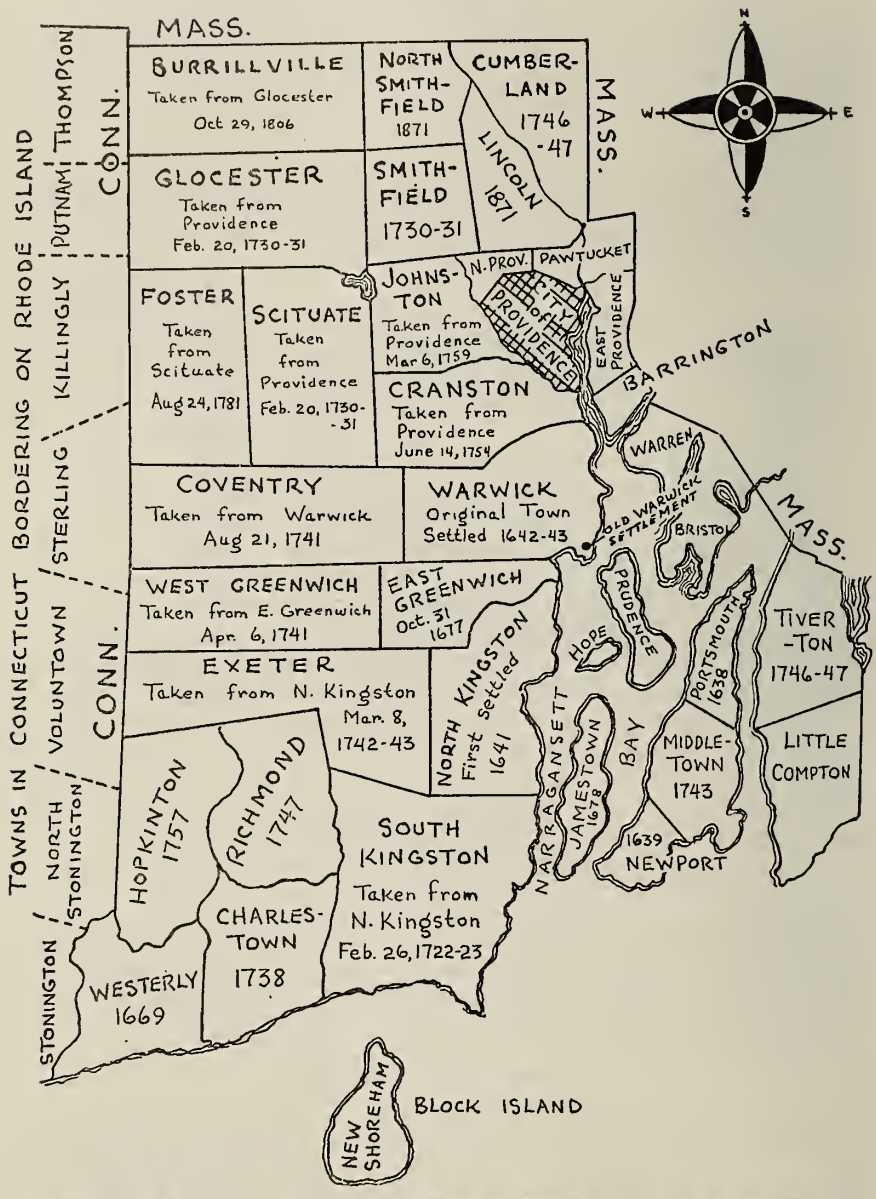
As recorded in the Westcott Genealogy, his "house lot" was bounded on one side (more likely, on one end) by "the salt water." This salt water was the old South River, its North shore being what is now approximately Front Street. This is a narrow street, running East and West, with small, unimportant buildings and shops on both sides.

Some sixty feet East of the Market Square, in the rear of which stands the old Town Hall (see diagram), may be found at 14 Front Street, a small tablet which marks the site of the house of the Rev. Samuel Skelton in 1629. At or near the line between the market place and the store to the East, is where the Hugh Laskin house stood. It was somewhere between the Laskin and Skelton house sites that Westcott's house stood, but his "acre lot" extended down to "the salt water" of the South River and probably back to the North River. It is of record that these lots stretched back some distance from the river. They were later cut up into smaller lots for other settlers. Westcott continued to own this lot in Salem until some time after Oct. 8, 1643, some five years after he had left Salem to settle in Providence.

Westcott's Land Possessions

The actual extent of the land in the Providence Plantations acquired and owned by Stukely Westcott, will probably never be known. That he possessed upward of 20,000 acres in what is now Providence and Kent counties, is a matter of record. That this by no means comprised all his land, is indicated by an old deed dated Oct. 10, 1671, of Abel Potter to Joseph Jenckes, of "60 acres of land, more or less, * * lying near Pawtucket Falls * * running westerly and northerly by a three-score acre lot formerly laid out to Mr. Stukely Westcot." Thus, Westcott's land domain extended north of Providence, as well as to the South and the West. Joseph Jenckes was the founder of what is now the city of Pawtucket.

TOWNS IN RHODE ISLAND



The above map shows the various townships in Rhode Island with dates when they were formed; also the bordering towns across the State line in Connecticut. Providence, 1636, was first to be settled; then Portsmouth, 1638, Newport, 1639, Warwick, 1642. The executive heads of Portsmouth and Newport were first entitled Judges, until 1640, when these two towns were united, and the chief officer was thereafter called Governor. Providence and Warwick had no executive head until 1647, when the four towns were united under a charter or patent granted in 1643 by parliament. Roger Williams was probably Chief Officer from Sept., 1644, to May, 1647.

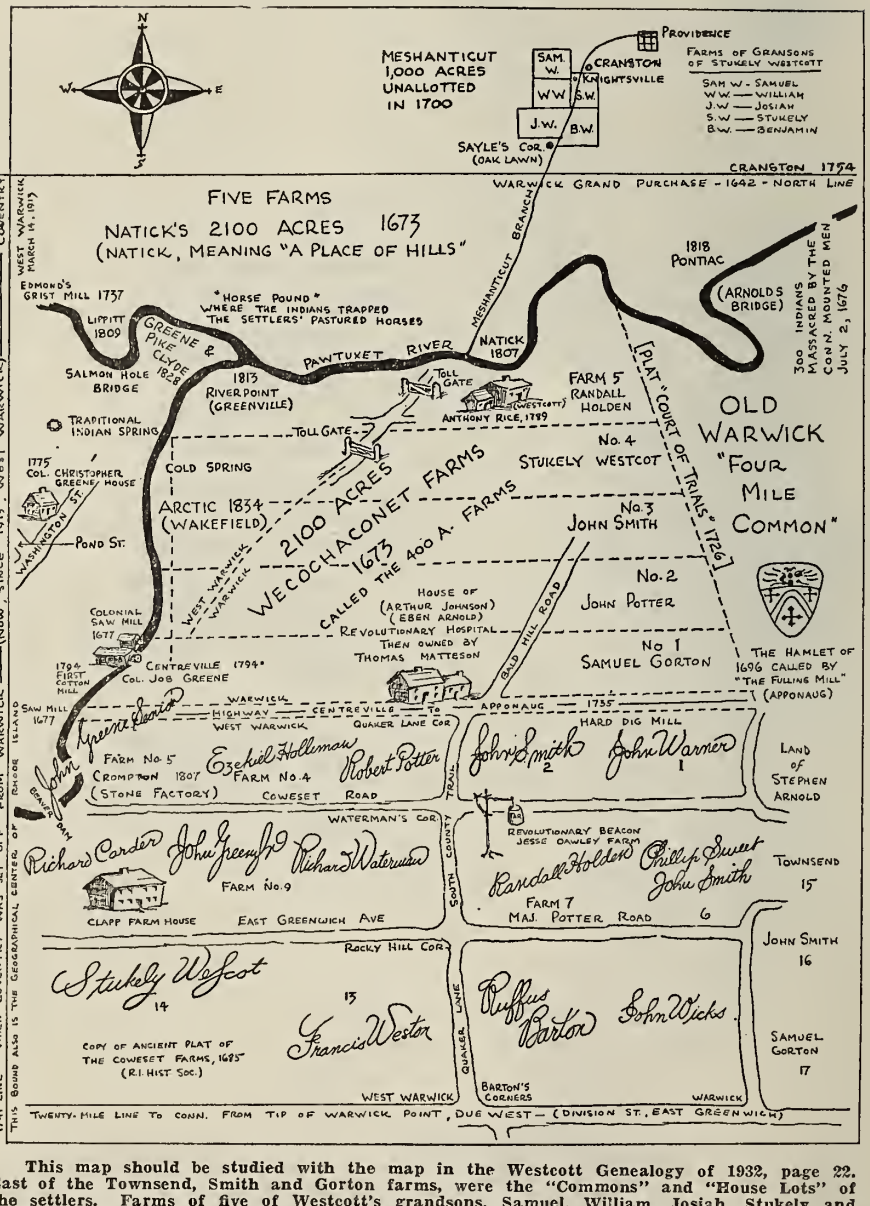
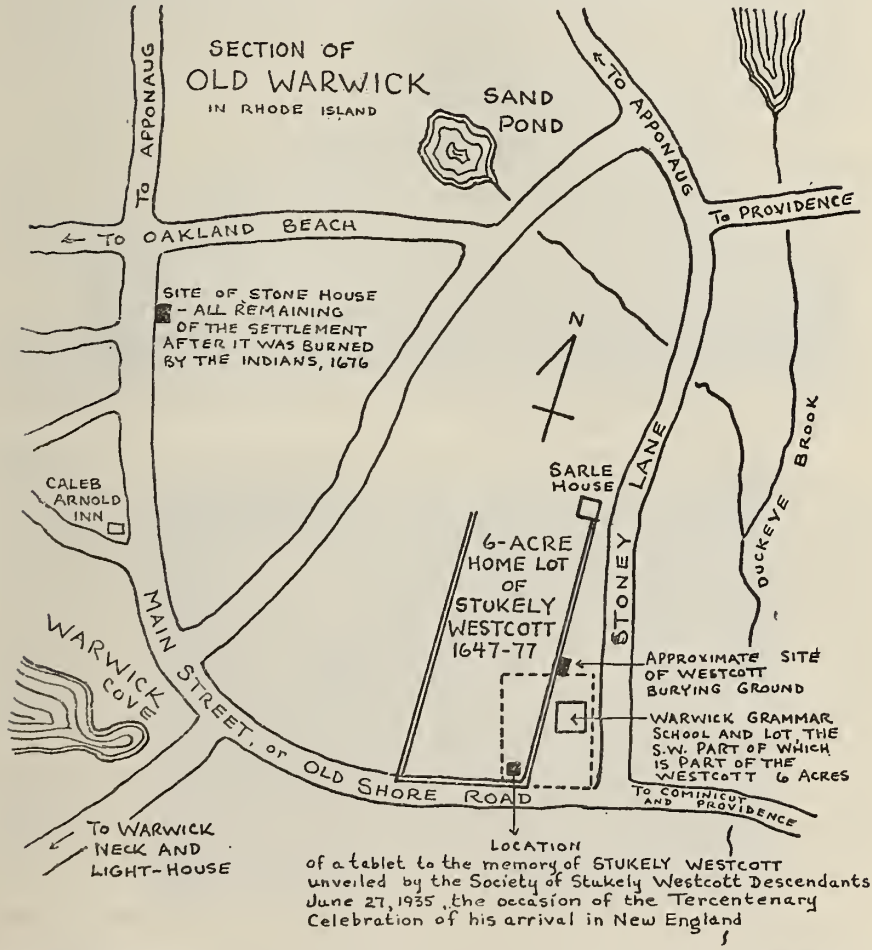
ANCIENT PLAT OF OLD WARWICK FARMS

(R. I. Historical Society)



This map should be studied with the map in the Westcott Genealogy of 1932, page 22. East of the Townsend, Smith and Gorton farms, were the "Commons" and "House Lots" of the settlers. Farms of five of Westcott's grandsons, Samuel, William, Josiah, Stukely and Benjamin, are shown in the upper right-hand corner of the above map. Their farms were in Providence township until 1754, when the section was included in the new town of Cranston.

WESTCOTT'S "HOUSE LOT" IN OLD WARWICK



Stukely, Josiah, Samuel, William and Benjamin, sons of Jeremiah and grandsons of the Family Founder, settled on farm tracts north of the Pawtuxet River and East of its Meshanticut branch in territory that June 14, 1754, was taken from Providence and set off as the town of Cranston. While substantiating records have not been found, it is believed these farm tracts were a part of the original possessions of their grandfather. The oldest of the five brothers, Stukely, had his farm extending south-easterly from what is now Knightsville in Cranston township (then locally called "Monkeytown") to and including the present grounds of the State Reformatory Institution. The farms of the other four brothers were adjoining. The brothers' oldest brother was Jeremiah, Jr. He remained on the old homestead in Warwick until 1720, when he sold it and probably removed with some of his children to what is now Coventry.

The "400-acre farms" or Wecochaconet farms, were South of the Pawtuxet River and East of its South branch, and North of the land tracts of John Green, Sr., Ezekiel Holliman, Robert Potter, John Smith and John Warner (as diagram, W. G., p. 22, and App. p. 16). From South to North, these farms were allotted to Samuel Gordon, John Potter, John Smith, Stukely Westcot and Randall Holden. This 400-acre land Westcott mentions in the will he did not sign (W. G., p. 27) as "land lying on the south side of the Pawtuxet River, which I purchased together with Gordon, Holden, Collins and Potter."

Thus, it appears that Westcott had almost an unbroken stretch of land from the vicinity of Knightsville to Warwick with other vast acreage in the Coweset farms on the way to Coventry. While Coventry was not opened up until many years after Westcott's death, he of course knew of the section, and it may be safely surmised that he had some "strings" tied to parts of it before he passed away.

On the Wecochaconet farms today (1938), is a small settlement called "Westcott," and here is an old Westcott homestead built in 1789. It is the home of Miss Jennie M. Westcott, a lineal descendant of the builder. Of this old homestead and its family, the Providence Bulletin of Jan. 25, 1928, had this to say:

"Linking the present with the past, which stretches to the original purchase of Rhode Island from the Indians, the house is regarded as one of the most venerable landmarks in the Pawtuxet Valley and a monument to a family which has an interesting and romantic history, having been represented in the early days on the hardy New England vessels that traded with far-off China. In the Revolutionary War, General Thomas Westcott was with the forces that hastily gathered to defend Nausauket and Old Warwick against an anticipated attack from the British, following the spectacular capture of the British General, Prescott. The family aided the development of the Pawtuxet Valley materially by assisting in the construction of the New London turnpike (on which a member of the family was a toll or gate-keeper) and by placing no obstacles in the way of building of both the old Providence, Worcester and Fishkill Railroad, and the old Pawtuxet Valley Railroad, the rights of way for both of which ran through the Westcott lands."

In a paper read by Miss Westcott in the same year, she said, among other things which space does not permit here:

"We do not know what legal rights retained in the land they (the Indians) deeded to the settlers, but they were permitted to live in the places not occupied by the white men, and were allowed certain privileges. At one time the Indians were so troublesome that the settlers petitioned to be allowed to send the land back to them and remove from the colony. Before King Philip's War (1676), the settlers all lived in what is now Warwick, each man being given a house lot on condition that he fence it and build a house on it within six months. This settlement extended only as far away as what is now the village of Apponaug."

In rear of the house is an old family cemetery and here General Thomas Westcott and others of the family, are buried. The accompanying picture is of the rear of the house which in the old days of the "toll gates" was the front.

There are other old Westcott homesteads in Rhode Island standing on farms which have been in the family for two centuries or more. They are all monuments to a family which has been closely identified with Rhode Island from its origin and as such it is unfortunate that they cannot be purchased and endowed for all future time.

Among the old homesteads is that near the Oak Lawn railroad station, owned and occupied by Dr. Niles Westcott. This old farm was originally settled soon after the year 1700, by Benjamin Westcott (W. G., p. 217), youngest son of Jeremiah, Sr. It adjoins the old farm, already mentioned, of Benjamin's older brother, Stukely. The old family burying ground with graves dating from 1749, is located near the present house, which was built about 1832 by the grandfather of the present owner, Dr. Niles Westcott. In the rear of this old homestead stands a giant buttonwood tree which is probably considerably more than two hundred years old. It measures twenty-four feet in circumference one foot above ground. It withstood the great storm of 1815 and again that of September, 1938.

Another homestead landmark is the old Thomas Knowlton Westcott house in North Scituate. The present house, the third on the farm, was built in 1826. All that is left of the original house is an old vine-covered chimney. Nearby is an old cemetery, where Thomas Westcott, his wife and some of their children, are buried. This farm was purchased by Oliver Westcott from Benjamin Wilkinson, brother of Oliver's wife Susannah, in 1752. There is an old Wilkinson deed to the land, dated 1696. The farm is now owned by descendants of Caleb Westcott, the younger of two sons of Oliver and Susannah (Wilkinson) Westcott.

The Deed of Land to Roger Williams by the Indians

In his abridgement of Backus' history of the Baptists in Rhode Island and elsewhere, *David Benedict records (1820) some facts of the early settling of Rhode Island which afford particular information not specifically incorporated in the Westcott Genealogy (1932). That students of the history of the Westcott family may extend their knowledge of earliest Rhode Island as the colony progressed in its precarious state contemporaneously with the life there and then of the Family Founder, Stukely Westcott, the following, in part, is drawn from the Benedict history.

It is desirable for the reader to recognize that nearly all the settlers of the colony were Baptists and that while there was no official connection between church and the civic authority, the two interests were pretty much identical. Also it is well to remember that Backus compiled the records for his history more than 160 years ago, when official records were available which have since been destroyed by fire, mutilated by constant usage, stolen or lost through the long span of years, and when facts and family traditions were comparatively fresh in the minds of living people.

"The first deed which he (Roger Williams) obtained of his lands,

* David Benedict, 1779-1874, was a Baptist clergyman and historian. He was pastor at Pawtucket, R. I., for twenty-five years and preached until over ninety years of age. He was author of an abridgement of the "History of New England, with Particular Reference to the Denomination of Christians Called Baptists" (1777-96, 3 vols.), by Isaac Backus, 1724-1806, who began his ministry in 1746 and was author of 30 different publications, which included the three volumes above referred to. This compiler acknowledges with deep appreciation, the loan of the Benedict book, yellow with age, but replete with authentic historical information, by Susan Esther Westcott Mable (Mrs. Harry S.) of Litchfield, Ohio, granddaughter of Rev. Erastus Westcott (W. G., p. 304).

or at least the first which is now extant," says Benedict, "bears date the same day with that of Aquidneck, and was given two years after his settlement of Providence (which would be 1638). It runs in the following style:

As also, in consideration of the many kindnesses and services he hath continually done for us, both for our friends of Massachusetts, as also at Quininkticutt and Apaum, or Plymouth: we do freely give unto him all the land from those rivers reaching to Pautuxett river, as also the grass and meadows upon Pawtuxet river; in witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands in the presence of,

1639, Memorandum, 3d month, 9th day, this was all again confirmed by Miantinomum; he acknowledged this his act and hand; up the stream of Pautuckett and Pautuxett without limits we might have for our use of cattle; witness whereof,

ROGER WILLIAMS
BENEDICT ARNOLD

Stukely Westcott at Salem, March 12, 1638, was ordered "to remove with his family out of the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts Bay Colony." This appears to have been twelve days before Williams had consummated the final deed of lands to him by the two Sachems of the Narragansett Indians. The deed mentions land and meadows the Sachems "having two years hence (1636) sold to Roger Williams," so Williams, having already been joined in Providence by William Arnold and family and several others, doubtless had information of the probable coming of still others who, like himself, were exiled from Massachusetts.

The deed must have comprised all of the present county of Providence, or the North part of the State, and much of Kent County on the South. Five months after this purchase, Williams admitted twelve persons as his associates, the first named on the list being Stukely Westcott. Note in the following instrument that his name is spelled Westcoat:

"Providence, 8th of the 8th month, 1638 (so called). Memorandum, that I, Roger Williams, having formerly purchased of Caunannicus and Miantinomu this our situation or plantation of New-Providence, &c. the two fresh rivers of Wanasquatuckett and Mooshausick, and the grounds and meadows thereupon; in consideration of thirty pounds received from the inhabitants of said place, do freely and fully pass, grant, and make over equal right and power of enjoying and disposing of the same grounds and lands unto my loving friends and neighbors, Stukely Westcoat, William Arnold, Thomas James, Robert Cole, John Greene, John Throckmorton, William Harris, William Carpenter, Thomas Olny, Francis Weston, Richard Waterman, Ezekiel Holiman, and such others as the major part of us shall admit into the same fellowship of vote with us: As also I do freely make and pass over equal right and power of enjoying and disposing of the lands and grounds reaching from the aforesaid rivers unto the great river Pautuxett, with the grass and meadows thereupon, which was so lately given and granted by the aforesaid sachems to me. I witness my hand,

ROGER WILLIAMS."

Next admitted into this company, were Chad Brown, William Field, Thomas Harris, William Wickenden, Robert Williams (brother of Roger), Richard Scott, William Reynolds, John Field, John Warner, Thomas Angell, Benedict Arnold (son of William), Joshua Winsor, Thomas Hopkins, Francis Weeks, &c.

The "house lots" of these settlers were set off with a frontage of eight rods on the Indian Path running North and South on the East side of Providence River, and comprised six acres, extending back or East to the top of the hill to what now is approximately Hope Street. This path being the first and only "streete," was, of course, the "main" street for years, and in time became Main Street and is so called to this day. The accompanying map shows the respective location of the "house lots" of the settlers as they existed in respect to the present streets of Providence.

"It was not price nor money," says Williams, "that could have purchased Rhode Island; but 'twas obtained by love."

The twelve settlers who formed the first church in America of the Baptist denomination, were the following, according to *Benedict, and it will be noted that Stukely Westcot (sic) was fifth on the list: Roger Williams, Ezekiel Holiman, William Arnold, William Harris, Stukely Westcot, John Greene, Richard Waterman, Thomas James, Robert Cole, William Carpenter, Francis Weston and Thomas Olney.

Variations in Spelling the Family Name

In the memorandum of Roger Williams, Aug. 8, 1638, to his "loving friends and neighbors," Westcott's name is spelled "Westcoat," and two months later in October, when the first Baptist Church in America was organized, his name appears fifth on the list and is spelled "Westcot," the final "t" being omitted. Both spellings are no doubt errors of the copyists, as Nov. 19, 1644, in his own handwriting, he spells his name "Stuckley Westcott." This spelling of his Christian name suggests its derivation from the Stucley (sometimes spelled Stewkley) family in England. The spelling of the surname, Westcott, has been generally followed, but there are many descendants living at this time (1938) who use the spelling Westcot, Wescot, Wescott, Westcoat and some who adhere to the original spelling in England, Wescote or Westcote. A grandson of Westcott signed his name to a land deed, Stukly Westcot, while the latter's grandson signed his name, Stukely Westcott, and it is this spelling which is chiefly used in this history and genealogy. The surname appears in old records, spelled in numerous other ways, as Wesket, Waskott, etc.

"Westcott, the Exile"

In all probability, a record of the journey of Westcott and his family to Providence at the time he was exiled from Salem in the Spring of 1638, will never be made available, and in the absence of such record there can be only conjectures. Theodora Bates Cogswell (Mrs. Edward R.), the poetess of Newton Highlands, Mass., and a charter member of the Westcott Society, in 1934, composed a delightful poem depicting the possible journey of "Westcott, the Exile," from Salem to Providence.

Dorothy Whitman Potter (Mrs. Adelbert Niles) read the poem at the National Celebrations of the family in June, 1935, and August, 1937, and both the poem and the reading were highly acclaimed. The poem is given here, and is followed by another deduction as to a possible route of that important journey. The poem:

Westcott, The Exile

Dawn was breaking above the sea
As they left their cabin on Salem shore.

Stukely Westcott stalked silently,
Sternly leading the mare, which bore
Frail little Mercy, wondering-eyed,
Small Jeremiah, the close-packed store
Of clothes, a kettle to feed them all,
Blankets to warm them when dusk should fall—
While Amos, excited, ran beside
With frequent prancings of seven-year pride.

Damaris tramped behind them there,
Her choicest treasures strapped in a pack,
And Robert guided the second mare,
Pillion-mounted, where sadly rode
The anxious mother, amidst a load
Of food and comforts. But oft her face
Turned from the narrow, turf-worn track
Back to the houses that showed up black
Against the red of the dawn-lit deep—
Back to the still-fresh burial-place
Where her eldest lay in his final sleep.

Turn on turn through the daylong march
They walked and rode by the narrow trails
That Indian footsteps had traced of yore
On the woodland's soft, receptive floor.
Bare were the birches; the pine and larch
Guarded late snow in the shadowy vales.

Striking inland, past Mystic's ford,

Across the marshlands, dreary and brown,
They halted that night in Watertown,
Where a pitying Christian home outpoured
Its scanty resources for those who went
Under the burden of banishment.

Southward with dawn their long route turned
To find the Indian path that ran
From Boston's arrogance west, where yearned
One heart, love-filled toward each fellow-man—
Where Roger Williams, true saint of God,
Sent constant tidings to help and save
Those who with frowns and censure grave
Had driven him forth from their holy sod.

Seeking the Narragansett trail
Went Stukely Westcott, grim-lipped and pale.

But Damaris, riding pillion-wise,
Followed him with adoring eyes;
And in every heart of that little clan
Of homeless children was joy serene
Because at their head, so firm of mien,
Patient but dauntless, there strode a man.

Loving and loyal, close at his side,
Walked Juliana, her calm years past,
Now and again she vainly tried
To pierce his silence—till, faint and dim,
From a hilltop they glimpsed the ocean's rim.
Then Stukely broke into speech at last:

"Banished and exiled, alone we go
Out to the wilds and the lurking foe!
Exiled for heeding the voice of faith,
For serving the Lord as the Good Book saith!"

He ceased, but his wife spoke swift and low:
"Exiled from what? From the hateful sting
Of tongues that mocked at our differing ways,
And the village gossip of dull-hued days,
Which joyed in reproof and in cavilling.
Exiled to whom? To the friends of thy heart,
Who asked God's blessing to follow the light
And lead their innocent lives apart
From rancour—the friends in whose dream shines bright
Welcomed, and outcasts shall be free."

Stukely listened; across his face,
Marked by nigh fifty anxious years,
There flashed the gleam of a new-found grace,
Of hope that conquered the moment's fears;
And ever his eager glance must hie
To that far meeting of sea and sky.

"Lass, dost mind how, a lad at home

In Somerset, year on year I clomb
The Dorset Heights, until past the Down
I sighted the Channel's distant blue
And followed the coast's long circuit through
By Lyme and Teignmouth to Dartmouth Town?

"Little my thought and less my care
That we in our middle years should fare
Forth from that harbor, down the tide,
Across the whole Atlantic wide—
Thou and I, with our helpless brood,
Led by the knowledge that God is good.
Now as we halt on this alien hill,
Yon blue horizon enchants me still.
I pray that our future home may be,
As it was in Salem—beside the sea."

He hastened thenceforth with eyes that sped
Eagerly toward the days ahead.
Here in the southland reluctant Spring
Had brushed the earth with a kindlier wing.
Mayflowers bloomed, and hepaticas sweet
Bordered the trail left by moccasined feet,
As Mercy's delighted fingers played
With the soft, wee pussies the willows grew.
And lo! when a dark-skinned face peered through
The quivering saplings, suspicion-fed,
These exiles hailed it, quite undismayed.
For Roger Williams, the Indians' friend,
Awaited them at their journey's end.

So, toiling daily by vale and height,
Swamp and thicket and shifting sand,
Sheltering trustingly at night
In wigwams, safe through their friend's command,
They traveled westward, their vision stored
With freedom, valor, and trust in the Lord—
Till, halting breathless where sunset lay
Crimson along Narragansett Bay,
They viewed from the hilltop a widespread scene,
Then Stukely Westcott, his head held high
In the sweet salt tang that the east wind bore,
Studied the streams, the slopes, the shore,
And spake contented: "The past has been,
The future beckons. Our friend is nigh,
And God is with us. Our young shall grow
Here where the rivers seaward flow."

Of his years thereafter what need to tell?
The olden records relate them true.
With all fervor his courage knew
He served his God and his country well.
Yet, drawn by the craving that woke of yore,
He followed the river to Warwick Shore;
And his breath came fast, as his keen eyes scanned

The sparkling water, the far-curved land,
Till he vowed: "The home of my age shall bide
Where my lifelong hunger is satisfied."

We know how he throve there, long content,
How he laid Juliana at last to rest
In their tiny graveyard; then sadly went
Fleeing the savages' weapons and flame,
Across the Bay with his heart oppressed
For a brief abiding. We know he came,
Rowed by his sons on the winter tide,
To his quiet resting-place, beside
The wife he loved, where the breeze blew free
As the breath of God's mercy, from God's wide sea.

So Stukely passed when his day was done—
But his strong, brave faith still leads us on.

Another Possible Route

The poem is a delightful contribution to Westcott lore. This compiler dislikes to draw attention to any other possible route which Westcott might have followed in his exile, but in view of the circumstances surrounding his "license" from the General Court, Mar. 12, 1638, to remove with his family out of the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, it may be assumed that, unlike Roger Williams, Westcott had time to make arrangements for his departure, although it is recorded that he "immediately left Salem."

Westcott's house fronted on the old South River, now long filled in and built upon, and being navigable to the sea, he probably engaged, as was the common occupation of the settlers, in fisheries and coastwise trade. Accordingly, he was in a position to obtain passage for himself and his family on a fishing smack or sailing vessel to some point on the coast in the old Plymouth Colony. That he should go to Hingham where he landed when he came from England in 1635 and where he had at least acquaintances who would give him temporary refuge, seems logical.

This sea trip would have covered the greater distance and the most difficult part of his journey. From Hingham to Providence, where Roger Williams was no doubt aware of Westcott's coming, the distance is approximately forty miles as the crow flies. Williams no doubt dispatched Indians, whom he could trust, to meet Westcott at Hingham and conduct the family safely to Providence. Williams could be of help to Westcott while the latter was in the Plymouth Colony, because of his less strained relations with that colony, but he could offer little or no assistance, even with the aid of the Indians who were his friends, while the Westcott family was in the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

Early Migrations from Rhode Island

Children are born, marry in due time and then die, leaving their own posterity. Names, dates of birth, marriage and death, comprise genealogy, but afford little information of their lives. The real history of a family is not found in such data, but in how and where members of the succeeding generations lived — their migrations and their vocations. It is, of course, impossible to trace each and every descendant from the cradle to the grave, but it is illuminating to go back to the days of small farms and large families and the lure of new sections in the wilderness, which were being opened up to settlers, and trace the migrations from old homes and friends to new, unsettled sections. During the first century of the family in Rhode Island, those who ventured beyond its boundaries at all, went no farther than to the coastal and river towns in Connecticut. In the years just previous to the Revolutionary War, many of the more venturesome spirit migrated from their homeland, but it was not until the closing years of that struggle and the quarter of a century following, that the rush to take up new homes in the wilderness reached its peak. The following are some of the early migrations:

German Flats, N. Y.

*German Flats, a frontier settlement in the upper Mohawk Valley, at what is now Herkimer, N. Y., and vicinity, was attacked by the British and their Tory and Indian allies under Brant, "on Thursday, September 17, 1778, about six in the morning," burning 63 houses, 57 barns with grain and fodder, 3 grist mills, 1 saw mill, and took away with them, 235 horses, 229 horned cattle, 260 sheep, and killed and destroyed many hogs. The Winter following, 1778-9, the settlers, suffered privations, being maintained on meagre rations.

Just two months previously, July 17, 1778, there was born in this little settlement of some four hundred souls, a descendant in the VII generation, of the emigrant Stukely Westcott. She was Lydia Wightman, dau. Benjamin Stark and Esther (Randall) Wightman, who previous to the breaking out of the Revolutionary War, came from their native home in Colchester, Conn., by ox-team to make their home among the Dutch in the Mohawk valley. Esther Randall was the dau. of Rufus and Margaret (Wightman) Randall, Margaret being the daughter of Daniel and Catherine (Westcott; see app. 126) Wightman of Bozrah in Norwich tp., Conn. Lydia had two brothers and six sisters and several uncles and aunts and cousins, all of whom settled in either Herkimer or Oswego counties.

Whether Benjamin Wightman and his father-in-law, Rufus Randall, served at the Battle of Oriskany, 1777, there is no record, but they were then living at German Flats, from which the troops sallied forth to meet the enemy in that important encounter.

Fire destroyed the records of land deeds in the Herkimer County court house in 1804, but in the index of deeds filed by Wightmans from 1805 to 1895, there is one in 1805 in which Eleazer and Lydia (Wightman) Wightman sell land to Abel Tenant. Other deeds were:

Abraham and Nabby, 1885; Allen and Molly, 1806-19; Abel G. and Susan, 1863-93, last by his will; Abel, Jr., and Jane L., 1882-91; Benjamin and Betsey, 1836-35-40-53; Benjamin and Fidelia P., 1855; Charles and Mehitable, 1822-39-57; Cyrus, 1806; Cyrus D., 1840-43-fourteen deeds bet. 1852-70; David and Ann, 1808-21-26-32-42; Dennis and Isabel, 1816; Dyer and Phebe, 1822-32; Elijah, 1811; Elias B. to Helen A.,

* The student of history will find the historical novel, "Drums Along the Mohawk," 1936, by Walter D. Edmonds, stirring with recital of life upon a hostile frontier where German Flats with its Forts Dayton and Herkimer, was the outpost during the Revolutionary War.

1867; James and Hannah, 1810-13-15-19-27; Jane L., wid. of Abel, Jr., 1895; John and Susannah, 1807-8-10; John and Nancy, 1828-35-41; Joseph K., 1861; Joseph N., 1861-63-70; Olin C., 1870-85; Oramel E., 1854-57-61-63-82; Rolden D., 1858-65-67-70-71-72-75; Susan, prob. wid. Abel G., 1870; Timothy A., 1844-51-60-69; Uriah and Nabby, 1819; Valentine, 1808-21; William T., 1861-63; Anna, wid. David, 1876; Helen A., wid. Elias B., 1877; also Catherine M., 1883.

A few miles to the North at Trenton Falls, Russia and Newport, descendants bearing the Westcott name settled by 1810—sons of Arnold Westcott of Cheshire, Mass., and Berlin, N. Y., at Trenton Falls and Russia; Gorton Westcott of Cranston, R. I., at Newport; also to Newport from North Scituate, R. I., came Richard and Lydia (Westcott) Waterman. To the West a short distance at old Deerfield (now N. Utica) in Oneida County, Gardiner Westcott and several of his adult sons, Samuel Westcott, native of Coventry, R. I., was also in Oxford, ab. 1802. William and Ezekiel Westcott, sons of James and Lydia (Spink) Westcott and natives of Clarendon, Vt., settled in Savannah and South Butler, Wayne County, by 1812; their bro. Eldredge was living in St. Lawrence County, by 1817.

Clarendon in Vermont

Clarendon, a tp. in Rutland County, Vermont, closeby to the South of the present city of Rutland, was the home of some twelve families of Westcotts during the last quarter of the 18th century. The town was first settled in 1768 by Elkanah Cook, Benjamin John and Capt. Randall Rice from Rhode Island. They were followed the next year by Seth Chase, Joseph Williams and Oliver Arnold, also from Rhode Island. They held their land under lease from *Col. John Henry Lydius, an Indian trader in Albany, N. Y.

The early settlers came in via what is now Bennington County, making their way, usually with ox-teams, through what is now Arlington and Manchester and entering the present town of Clarendon along the Otter Creek at what was known as Clarendon Flats.

From here, the road North and South originally followed the West side of Otto Creek, which stream runs to its source in Lake Champlain. Another road was built from Clarendon Flats, "up the hill" to the West (rising several hundred feet from the creek bottom), and after climbing the hill, winding its way generally in a north-westerly direction to connect with a road running North and South in the adjoining town of Ira. On this road between Clarendon Springs, which a century back was a prominent resort with two large hotels and springs famous for the medicinal properties of the water, and Chippenhook, where the old Chippenhook cemetery is located, George, Oliver, Johnson and Thomas Westcott and George's bro.-in-law, James Eddy, had their comparatively small farms. The farms all joined each other. In the same immediate section, were the farms of James Westcott, that of his bro. Ezekiel and his bro.-in-law, Christopher Howard. Their farms also joined each other. Only one of these farms is now (1938) owned by a descendant—that of George Westcott.

* Col. Lydius of Albany, had a mansion on the Hudson River nr. Fort Edward, claiming to own all the tract of land running southerly sixty miles from the mouth of Otter Creek and twenty-four miles wide. He had purchased it from the Mohawk tribe of Indians in 1732 and later had his title confirmed by the Government in New York. This tract was a part of the afterward disputed territory between New York and that part of New Hampshire which is now Vermont. The creek runs North through the town of Clarendon.

The first to bear the family blood if not the family name, into the Green mountains of Vermont was Zilpha Westcott Salisbury, dau. Ezekiel and Mary (Dyer) Westcott of Cranston tp., R. I. Her husband was Abraham Salisbury, who Oct. 17, 1777, having hastily formed a company of militia among the settlers of Wallingford, Clarendon, Rutland and Pittsford, as captain, marched with his company to the defense of Castleton. James and Oliver Westcott and Christopher Howard were members of this company. Again in 1781, they were called out "for the defense of the frontiers of Vermont."

The first land deed recorded in the records of the town clerk at Clarendon (Bk. 1, p. 1), is that of Apr. 9, 1770, when Abraham Salisbury, then mentioned as "of Clarendon on Otter Creek," buys from Joseph Williams for 50 pounds, 100 acres of land which was in the original rights of Seth Chase from Col. Lydius. From this, it may be assumed that Abraham and Zilpha were at Clarendon in 1769.

Oliver and James Westcott were living in Clarendon several years before they acquired land, as they were members of the militia in the Fall of 1777. Oliver filed his deed to land June 5, 1780, while James' deed is dated Feb. 14, 1782. George and his bro. Ziba "of Scituate, R. I.," purchased fifty acres of land for fifty pounds from Joseph Williams, Sept. 14, 1781. On Apr. 24, 1786, Ziba sold his interest in this farm to George. Ziba was then living in Ira with his maiden sister Susannah, where he settled in 1783. Between the years of 1784 and 1823, many deeds were filed in Clarendon in which Westcotts were grantors or grantee. This applies particularly to Jeremiah, who, following the death of his father George Westcott, was engaged for a number of years in settling the estate.

Christopher Howard, bro.-in-law of James and Ezekiel Westcott, purchased his farm from Levi Colvin, May 7, 1782, while James Eddy, son-in-law of Abraham Salisbury, bought his farm Oct. 10, 1787, from Abner Williams. Ezekiel Westcott, who bought a part of Christopher Howard's farm Apr. 23, 1783, sold a section of it to Salisbury, July 7, 1794, and before Nov. 27, 1798, he died, as on the last date, "Mary, widow of Ezekiel Westcott," sold the remainder of the farm to William Austin. Thomas Westcott, Mar. 27, 1799, sold land to his bro. Johnson, and again Apr. 29, 1801, to Peter Black.

Among the 392 settlers who had taken the freeman's oath in Clarendon before Feb. 2, 1781, were: Abraham Salisbury, number 31 on the list; James Westcott, 81; Christopher Howard, 86; George Westcott, 131; Oliver, 141; Thomas, 324; Nicholas, 325, and Johnson, 382. Other Westcotts recorded in Clarendon in census of 1790 were Jobe and Peleg, of whom nothing is definitely known. It appears probable that Nicholas Westcott was a bro. of Johnson and Thomas, sons of Oliver.

Goodrich's "Rolls of Soldiers of the Revolution in Vermont," names besides James, Oliver, George and Ziba Westcott, also Ephraim, Nathan and Richard. Nothing is known of Nathan and Richard. Ephraim married Sarah Phillips, and had son David, born Vt. ab. 1797, who died at Clayton, N. Y.

Indicating the size of the "average" family in 1797, eight men, none with a second wife, lived that year nr. Clarendon Springs with a total of 113 children, 99 of whom were living, all of school age and but one pair twins among them. One of these families was John Simonds and his wife Sarah Westcott, dau. of Oliver, with twelve children, all living and attending school. There are not many more than a hundred people living now in the entire section. In 1791, Clarendon had a population of 1478, and in 1860, 241 less, or 1237.

In 1820, Susan Westcott, sister of George and Ziba, with Randall Rice, Jr., were witnesses to deed between Jeremiah Westcott and Peleg Eddy. The surname "Westcott," as it was spelled in Rhode Island, is usually spelled "Wescot" in the old Clarendon records. Stephen Arnold, desc. of William Arnold, who came from England in the same ship with Stukely Westcott in 1635, was the first town clerk, 1778, the year following Vermont first seeking admission into the National Confederation.

In 1800, there were a Jeffery and a Joseph Westcott in Bennington, Vt. Their ancestry is unknown. Jeffery, with wife, and seven chn., was living 1830, at Royalston, Niagara County, N. Y.

Rensselaer County, N. Y.

In old Rensselaerwyck Manor, dating from Killian Van Rensselaer, 1665, in that part set off as Rensselaer County from original Albany County, and in present Stephentown and Berlin tps., Joseph and Arnold Westcott, sons of Stukely Westcott of Cheshire, Mass., settled before 1780, some three years after their father had come from Coventry, R. I., to settle nr. Cheshire, Mass. (App. 235-6.) Nearby at Chatham, Columbia County, before 1800, Benedict Westcott lived.

Cheshire, Mass.

Stukely Westcott, great-great-grandson of the first Stukely Westcott and third in succession of the name, came from Coventry, R. I., between May, 1777, and June, 1778, and settled in New Providence in the Berkshire hills of Massachusetts near what is now Cheshire. (For further data, see Westcott Genealogy, pages 39 to 49 and 235.)

Westcott Genealogy, p. 236, erroneously records Jarvis, Matthew, Riley and Dickens as sons of Arnold, of Stukely of Cheshire. Their ancestry is not definitely known, but it is supposed (by some) that Jarvis, Matthew, Riley, Dickens, Nathan (p. 241), Josiah (p. 241), James (p. 241), Oliver (p. 241) and Duncan Westcott, all of whom were in Cheshire during and immediately after the Revolution, were either the sons or of the family of Caleb and Hannah (Gardiner) Westcott of Kingston, R. I. (W. G., p. 188), whose son Gardiner ab. 1790, removed to and settled on a farm shortly south of Cheshire.

Abingtons in Pennsylvania

"North of the Moosic Mountains lie the meadows of Chief Capouse of the Moncey tribe of Indians, and beyond is their hunting ground in the wilderness." Thus the "meadow" in which stands the present city of Scranton, Pa., and the beautiful country to the North and West of it, the general region of the Abingtons, might have been described in 1770. What was then a wild, unexplored wilderness, is now the richest region in the world in anthracite coal deposits, and North of it, one of the most productive farming sections.

The old Abington section, where Westcotts, Bennetts, Knights, Baileys, Colvins, Stones, and others from Rhode Island and Connecticut, settled immediately following the close of the 18th century, lies in this rich farming section in the present counties of Lackawanna and Wyoming.

The first settlement was made in 1794 when Abraham Leach took up a 400-acre tract of land at what became known as Leach's Flats, now Chinchilla. Leach's grandson Norman, married Lucy Bailey (app. 218), dau. Charles, and granddau. Nathan and Zilpha (Westcott) Bailey, who came from Coventry, R. I., about 1800. Stephen Parker, who with Ebenezer Leach, son of Ephraim; Thomas Smith, and William Clark, first penetrated the trackless wilderness North of Leach's Flats, returned to Rhode Island in the Winter of 1799-1800 and there, Jan. 9, m-Mary Stone of Coventry (app. 167), dau. James and granddau. William and Eleanor (Westcott, great-granddau. of Stukely Westcott) Stone of Coventry. Mary Stone Parker's parents, James and Rebecca (Sheldon) Stone, five brothers and a sister, Rebecca, who m-Samuel Clark, son of William, who was one of the four first "explorers" of the Abington wilderness, were all in Abington in 1802 or the immediate years following.

The first to convey the Westcott surname from Rhode Island to the new Abington region in Pennsylvania was Asahel and Gardner Westcott, sons of Ephraim, Jr., and Freelove (Stone) Westcott of Coventry and sister of Zilpha, who m-Nathan Bailey. These brothers were married in 1807 and immediately joined their sister in Abington. A sister Susannah m-Clark Greene; they remained in Rhode Island, but two of their chn., Cynthia and Gardner, settled in Abington. Another sister Amey m-Gorton Parker and settled in Cortland County, N. Y. Nathaniel, their brother, having married, joined his sister in Cortland County in 1833, and five years later settled in Abington. His mother, Freelove Stone Westcott, accompanied him and died in Abington, 1844, ae. 83 years.

Unlike most other localities where a century ago large numbers of the family lived and now are almost depopulated of Westcotts, the Abington section has not only maintained but increased the number of the kin. Upward of one hundred and fifty adult descendants of Stukely Westcott were living in or closeby Abington in 1938.

Plymouth, N. H.

Joseph Westcott was an early settler at Plymouth, N. H., removing in 1810 to Grafton, then Danbury, N. H. There was also Otis R. Westcott, born in N. H., 1823, and lived nr. Grafton; his anc. unknown.

Northern New York

At the time Gardiner Westcott and his sons Caleb, Henry and Palmer, moved from Deerfield (now North Utica), N. Y., to what was then (Jan., 1805) Watertown, or "Leghorn" of the Eleven Towns, the section had been settled only some five years. Watertown tp. was taken off from Mexico, Mar. 14, 1800, and Hounsfield tp. was taken from Watertown, Feb. 17, 1806. Jefferson County was erected in 1805. The Westcotts settled in the general section of Camp's Mills on Mill Creek, Field's Settlement and Stowell's Corners. Palmer Westcott operated a potash factory at Field's Settlement and Edgar Westcott conducted the first cheese factory in Jefferson County. It was located at the head of Coal Creek. Field's Settlement derived its name from Elijah Field, who with several sons and daughters, came from Woodstock, Vt., in 1805-6. Stowell's Corners derived its name from Ozni Stowell, a native of Willington, Conn., who, probably, married Mary ("Polly") Westcott, dau. Gardiner, in Cheshire, Mass., before the fam. moved to Deerfield, ab. 1803. Descendants of this fam. sometimes spell the name Stoel. Camp's Mills was settled by Elisha Camp, who was a captain in the War of 1812, leading the local militia to stand off the British at closeby Sacket Harbor.

The index of land deeds filed in the Jefferson County Court house at Watertown, N. Y., between 1808 and 1860 (search was not extended beyond 1860), show a deed in 1816 in which Palmer Westcott purchases land at Camp's Mills of Elisha Camp. This is in Hounsfield tp., and prob. the vicinity of where the pioneer Gardiner Westcott and three of his sons settled in 1805. The deeds are chiefly those to which Gardiner's descendants were parties: Alfred, 1851; Alvah, 1825-26; Chauncey, 1851; Charles P., 1853; Daniel, 1846; Henry, 1808-09-10-14-17-25-49; Henry, Jr., 1834-35; Isaac, 1860; James S., 1851; John, 1852; Johnson, 1838-59; Joseph, 1843; Lucy, 1848; Orvis, 1849; Palmer, 1808-14-17-25-49; Scott, 1851; Shubal, 1833-34; Susannah, 1833; Willard, 1835-43; William, 1836-47-53.

Others in New York were Joseph Westcott, native of Middleboro, Mass., who settled in Peru, Clinton County, in 1800, having previously lived for several years in Vermont. Preserved Westcott, native of Scituate, R. I., after living for a time in Middletown, Vt., and Eaton, Madison County, in 1819, settled in Adams, Jefferson County. Oliver Westcott, bro. of Preserved, came from Scituate about 1799-1800 to a 400-acre land tract nr. West Eaton, Madison County, where he lived until 1831, when he divided his farm among his children and settled at Richland, Oswego County, several of his children locating there also. Stukely Westcott, son of Stukely of Cheshire, Mass., lived for a time in Charlotte, Vt., and then ab. 1830, with his sons Stukely (fifth of the name in succession), Dyer and John, settled in Canton, St. Lawrence County. Johnson Westcott, Jr., whose father was a native of Scituate, R. I., and settled in Clarendon, Vt., before 1781, came from Vermont ab. 1844 and settled at Burrville, nr. Rutland, Jefferson County. David Westcott from Vermont, first settled in Fairfield, Herkimer County, before 1825, then in Adams, Jefferson County, and finally, nr. Clayton, same county, 1835. He was son of Ephraim of Vermont. John Westcott, whose father Daniel came from Cranston, R. I., before 1800 and settled at Fly Creek (nr. Cooperstown), Otsego County, pushed on to DeKalb, St. Lawrence County, before 1835.

Central New York

For Benjamin, James and Reuben Westcott, sons of Stukely of Cheshire, Mass., and all born in Rhode Island, who settled in Milford tp., Otsego County, in 1795 and 1815, see Westcott Genealogy, pages 60, 87, 99, 109. Daniel Westcott from Cranston, R. I., settled at Fly Creek, Otsego County, as already stated, before 1800. Albert Westcott and his wid. mother, came from Cranston, R. I., to Milford village, Otsego County, in 1820, where the mother d-1832, and in 1866, he finally settled in Iowa City, Ia. In Eaton, Madison County, Oliver Westcott settled by 1800, as already stated; also Preserved Westcott by 1810, and to Morrisville, same county, came George Westcott from Rhode Island by 1811. Gorton Westcott, after living for a time at Newport, Herkimer County, as stated, settled about 1818 at Truxton, Cortland County. Amos Westcott, bro. of Gorton, came from Killingly, Conn., in 1810-11, and settled nr. Oxford, Chenango County.

Westcott Family Organization and Celebrations

Banding together of members of old families for the study and recording of family lore and traditions, to rescue from oblivion the memory of sturdy and worthy emigrant progenitors and correctly enumerating their posterity, is not, as one has said, "a matter of the dead past or past dead," for deserving history deals with people and times—a past when American civilization was builded.

The real history of the country is not found in text books nor upon battle memorials, but in the homes of hundreds of thousands of pioneers whose deeds are recounted in the many published genealogies and the greater volumes of family manuscripts. The home life, the church life, the community life and the will to do of the pioneers and their descendants, convey the real history, and this, collectively, is the mission of approved genealogy.

And family organization to promote the recording of family history and genealogy, suggested the forming of the Society of Stukely Westcott Descendants of America.

While records exist of social gatherings or reunions of the Westcott clan, they refer always to the members of branches of the family. It was not until this Society was formed on January 13th, 1934, that a National association, in which all attested descendants are eligible to membership, was attempted. It was organized with a charter roll of 119 members, and now in its sixth year it has made great strides in furthering its aims and objects.

Not only the descendants of Stukely Westcott are eligible to membership, but also the descendants of Richard Westcott, William Arnold and Thomas Stafford as associate members. A complete roster of the membership in the Spring of 1939 will be found in the back of this book.

While the membership is widely scattered, a keen interest in kinship is manifested whenever and wherever possible. These opportunities have been numerous at the National celebrations and several regional reunions. In the family motto, "The Name Renewed," and the motto of the Society, "Know Your Kindred Better," the members find inspiration in seeking a place in the archives of history where the story of this old family of sturdy New England stock will be perpetuated for all time. The continued research which culminated in the publication of this Book of Appendices to the original history and genealogy of 1932, has been sponsored by the Society, and is one expression of what can be achieved by family organization.

The activities of the organized family may prove of interest to members of other old families, who, like the Westcotts, seek to have the family name perpetuated and their ancestors given proper recognition in history.

Early Gatherings

The first family reunion of which there is record, was held in 1866 on the old farm homestead of Asa Stone in Coventry township, R. I., although it is said that reunions were held regularly previous to that year by the family descending from Oliver Westcott, who about the year 1800, settled on a farm tract at West Eaton, Madison County, N. Y. It may be presumed that there were other gatherings even of an earlier period, but none are of record. Asa Stone was the youngest child of William and Lydia (Westcott) Stone. The exercises held on the Stone farm were opened with reading from the Bible of the first Stukely Westcott, which he brought with him from England and had been handed down in that branch of the family.

It is of record that, in 1878, over 250 descendants of Oliver Westcott, to whom reference has already been made, assembled on his old farm. In more recent years, this branch of the family has had its reunion each year. About 1857, descendants of William Westcott of Clarendon, Vt., and Savannah, N. Y., migrated to near Bangor, VanBuren County, Mich., and, since 1905, members of his posterity have had annual reunions. In the years of the 1860s and 1870s and the last in 1882, within the memory of this compiler, the Westcotts of Milford tp., Otsego County, N. Y., were accustomed to assemble each year, holding their reunions at different convenient places in or adjacent to the township.

A Wish That Culminated into a National Society

In 1930, Minnie Westcott Lunn (Mrs. Joseph Seth Lunn) of Oneonta, N. Y., expressed the wish that the Westcotts might have another reunion such as those she attended in Milford township, N. Y., when she was a child. She referred especially to the one in 1882 held on the old farm of her grandfather, Reuben Westcott. Her wish led to a reunion at Milford Center in 1931 at which 179 were present. At that time, the Stukely Westcott Descendants' Association of Milford tp., N. Y., was formed. (This Stukely Westcott [W. G., pp. 39-235] refers to a great-great-grandson of the first of the name, who lived in Cheshire, Mass., and was the father of the three brothers who early settled in Milford tp.) The late Brig.-Gen. James Westcott Lester of Saratoga Springs, N. Y. (W. G., p. 264-5), was the first president of this association. He died in office and was succeeded by Harris Lee Cooke, esquire, of Cooperstown, N. Y. (W. G., p. 266.)

This association has carried on a splendid work by creating an endowment fund for the perpetual care of the old part of the cemetery at Milford Center, where the pioneers of the family in the township—Benjamin, James and Reuben and their sister Dorcas (Fitch)—are buried.

Another reunion of this association was held at Oneonta, N. Y., in 1933, when 140 were present, including a number descending from other branches of the family, among them Dr. and Mrs. Allan F. Westcott of Annapolis, Md., Mr. and Mrs. Haydn B. Westcott of Ridgefield Park, N. J., William Mar Westcott of Apponaug, R. I., and William C. Driver of New Rochelle, N. Y. At this gathering, interest was manifested in the organization of a National society of Westcott descendants, and later, Harris Lee Cooke, esquire, then president of the Milford association, appointed a committee to have the matter in charge and arrange for an organization dinner-meeting in New York City. This meeting was held on the following January 13, 1934, the 257th anniversary of the death of Stukely Westcott.

In the Fall of 1933, members of the family living in Rhode Island assembled and under the leadership of V. Stukely Westcott of Pawtucket, organized and arranged to have representatives at the dinner-meeting in New York the following January.

The Dinner-Meeting and Organization

One hundred and nineteen descendants had each pledged one dollar to help defray the expenses of organizing and they became the charter members of the Society. Forty were present at the meeting, which was held in the Hotel Lexington in New York.

Dr. Allan F. Westcott, who was chairman of the committee on organization, presided and with him at the head-table, besides Mrs. Westcott, were Dr. and Mrs. Niles Westcott and Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe L. Whitman. At the other tables were Mr. and Mrs. V. Stukely Westcott, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Hadley, Miss Edith S. Arnold, Mrs. Jennie C. Noxon, Edmund Whitman Morris, Dr. and Mrs. Frederic P. Solley, Mrs. John Klein, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Westcott, Carlton L. Wastcoat, Mrs. Adelbert Niles (Morris) Potter, William Dyer Merriam, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Henry Frost, Mr. and Mrs. Coulman C. Westcott, *Mrs. Caroline W. Woodburn, Mrs. Lulu W. Iseman, Mr. and Mrs. *Haydn B. Westcott, the Misses Ethel G. and Florence E. Clarke, Miss Gwendolyn W. Jones, Mrs. Samuel Driver and William Mar Westcott.

(* Since deceased.)

Dr. Allan F. Westcott was made permanent chairman and Miss Florence Earll Clarke, secretary. The committee reported that of the 119 pledges received, seventy-seven had already paid one dollar each. Of the $77.00 received, $42.35 had been expended for travel, mimeographing, stationery, postage and miscellaneous items, leaving a balance in the hands of Haydn B. Westcott, acting treasurer, of $34.35.

On behalf of the committee, Roscoe L. Whitman, who throughout the family activities worked with a zealous interest, offered the following resolution for forming an organization of the Westcott posterity:

WHEREAS, Stukely Westcott, 1592-1677, with his wife and six children, came from England and June 24, 1635, settled at Salem in the Massachusetts Bay Colony, there becoming a member of the first Congregational Church formed in America, and worshipping under the pastorate, first, of Rev. Roger Williams, and, second, that of the Rev. Hugh Peters — being admitted freeman of the Colony in 1636 with a grant of land, and

WHEREAS, because of his continued adherence to the doctrines of Roger Williams, was banished from the Colony in 1638, as Williams had been in 1635, and finding refuge with his old pastor in the Providence Plantations, was accepted by him as a "loving friend and neighbor" and admitted as one of the thirteen original proprietors of the Providence Plantations and the Colony of Rhode Island, and

WHEREAS, with Williams, William Arnold and nine others, he founded in 1638, the first Baptist Church organized in America — the old First Baptist Church of Providence — and again in 1648, in Old

Warwick, with William Arnold and ten others, united in church relations and "agreed to support in faith and practice the principles of Christ's doctrine," and

WHEREAS, when eighty-three years of age, his home, together with the settlement of Old Warwick, was burned by the Indians, and now homeless and wifeless, was driven away to the home of his grandson at Portsmouth, R. I., where he died January 12, 1677, and

WHEREAS, this being the 257th anniversary of his death, it seems fitting that those of his living posterity who have pledged their interest in forming a National organization of his descendants, should form such an organization upon this occasion, that his memory may be perpetuated evermore, and hence—

BE IT RESOLVED that we, the undersigned descendants and consorts of descendants, here assembled in New York City on the thirteenth day of January, 1934, and others whose like pledges of interest in forming a family society are also hereunto named, do unite in forming and do hereby form such a National society, with "Articles of Organization," to wit:

Name

This organization shall be known as: SOCIETY OF STUKELY WESTCOTT DESCENDANTS OF AMERICA.

Family Motto

Renovate Nomine, meaning—"the name renewed."

Society Motto

Know Your Kindred Better.

Object

The object of the Society shall be (1) to commemorate in a fitting way, the outstanding anniversaries and events in the history of the family, (2) to memorialize the early family life by erecting suitable tablets, (3) to promote further genealogical study of the family, (4) to create and develop interest and pride in family achievement, (5) to provide, as far as is possible, care of the graves of ancestors, including the securing of official markers for the graves of those who served in the wars of our country, (6) to meet, know and enjoy the companionship of our kindred.

Eligibility

Any worthy lineal descendant, over twelve years of age, of Stukely Westcott, Founder in America of this branch of the Westcott family, or his or her consort, shall be eligible to membership with all privileges.

Fees

Initiation: One Dollar, payable with application for membership.

Dues: One Dollar, per annum, computed on calendar years, and payable with filing of application and in January of each succeeding year.

Officers

There shall be a President, First Vice-President, Second Vice-President, Chaplain, Historian, Secretary, Recording-Secretary and Treasurer.

Directors

There shall be a Board of Directors, of which the elective officers shall comprise eight members, and four additional members shall be elected.

Elections

Officers and Directors shall be elected, first, to serve until a meeting in 1935, and in that year and every second year thereafter, elections shall be conducted either at a duly called meeting or by mail, as ordered by a majority of the Directors voting.

Meetings

Meetings or reunions shall be held every second year, beginning in 1935, the place and date to be decided by a majority of the Directors voting, which vote may be taken by mail.

Vacancies

Vacancies in offices caused by death or resignation, shall be filled for the unexpired term by the President.

Charter Members

Those who each pledge the payment of One Dollar to help defray the expense of forming this Society, and are recorded on or before February 28, 1934, as having paid their pledges, shall be considered as having remitted their initiation fee, and upon the payment of dues for 1934, shall become charter members of the Society, provided such dues are paid on or before February 28, 1934.

Chapters

To further promote the object for which this Society is organized, the formation of local, county, state and sectional chapters is urged. Charters for such Chapters shall be issued upon application of ten or more members of this Society; such charters shall remain valid so long as ten or more memberships are maintained in this Society.

The name of the Society was omitted in reading the Resolution in order that it might be discussed before adoption. A number of names were suggested, including "Society of Stukely Westcott Descendants of America." With that name inserted, it was then moved and seconded that the Resolution as read—be adopted, and by a unanimous vote it was so adopted.

The following committee on nominations of officers was appointed by Chairman Allen Westcott: Dr. Niles Westcott, Miss Ethel G. Clarke, Miss Edith S. Arnold, and Roscoe L. Whitman. The committee presented the following nominations:

President—Dr. Allan F. Westcott, Annapolis, Md.
1st Vice-President—Coulman C. Westcott, Mechanicville, N. Y.
2nd Vice-President—V. Stukely Westcott, Pawtucket, R. I.
Chaplain—The Rev. Arnold Harris Hord, Philadelphia, Pa.
Historian—Roscoe L. Whitman, Westfield, N. J.
Secretary—Miss Florence Earll Clarke, New York City.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. Perry H. Murdick, Fanwood, N. J.
Treasurer—Dr. Niles Westcott, Providence, R. I.
Directors—Mrs. Merton L. Ford of Pasadena, Calif., and Oneonta, N. Y.; Mrs. Alice Stafford Hersey of Cambridge, Mass.; Milton Gregory Dexter of Worcester, Mass.

Upon motion, the nominations were closed, and officers were then elected as nominated by the committee. President Allan F. Westcott took the chair, and delivered an address of acceptance.

Motion was made and enthusiastically adopted that the Society should plan and put into effect a series of celebrations, starting at Salem, Mass., on Monday, June 24, 1935, and continuing in Rhode Island, to commemorate the 300th anniversary of the founding by Stukely Westcott of this branch of the Westcott family in America, and that the President should appoint a general committee to complete the arrangements. President Westcott stated he would appoint this committee at a later date.

Chapters of the Society

Charters were granted by the Society for the following Chapters: Milford Tp., N. Y., Chapter, No. 1, Feb. 9, 1934; Rhode Island Chapter, No. 2, Mar. 9, 1934; Greater New York Chapter, No. 3, Dec. 8, 1934; Northern New York Chapter, No. 4, Sept. 6, 1935; and Vermont Chapter, No. 5, Oct. 27, 1937.

In August, 1934, chiefly through the efforts of Dr. Allan Westcott, more than seventy descendants living in northern New York assembled at "Westcott Beach," near Sacket Harbor, for a reunion. An association was formed with Frank Nelson Westcott as President and Lulu Westcott Burgen (Mrs. Frederick L.) as Secretary-Treasurer. Members of this association assembled again in 1935 just prior to receiving its charter from the National Society. John Fancher Westcott was elected President and Mrs. Burgen re-elected Secretary-Treasurer. Again in 1936 and 1937, as Chapter No. 4, reunions were held, the same officers being re-elected each year, with Angie Fralick Waugh (Mrs. Harry L.) serving as Vice-President and Emily Ferguson Parsons (Mrs. Newton S.) as Historian. These officers were elected in 1938: Mrs. Waugh, President; Frank N. Westcott, Vice-President, and Mrs. Burgen was again re-elected Secretary-Treasurer.

At the third biennial reunion of Milford Tp. Chapter in July, 1935, Joseph Rogers Westcott was elected President, succeeding Harris Lee Cooke, and Reuben H. Westcott, Secretary-Treasurer. At this gathering the Chapter voted to invite the National Society to hold its second biennial reunion and celebration at Cooperstown on Lake Otsego, N. Y., in 1937. This invitation was later accepted by the Directors of the National Society. The reunion of this Chapter in 1937 was held at Cooperstown in conjunction with the National Celebration and at its business meeting, Jarvis B. Sargent was elected President to succeed Joseph Rogers Westcott and Mrs. Grace Davenport Roberts as Secretary-Treasurer. This Chapter has endowed an old cemetery where the pioneers of its members are buried and also placed a memorial tablet in the old Baptist Church at Milford Center where they worshipped. These officers were elected in 1938: Ray C. Rose, President; Harvey Westcott, Vice-President, and Jeannette Westcott Cook (Mrs. Carlton J. Cook), Secretary-Treasurer.

In March, 1935, the Rhode Island Chapter had its first reunion as a Chapter, assembling in Providence. V. Stukely Westcott was elected President; Ralph Westcott, Historian; Norman N. Westcott, Secretary; Leslie P. Westcott, Treasurer. In 1936, at its reunion in East Greenwich, Milton Gregory Dexter was elected President, succeeding V. Stukely Westcott; William Mar Westcott, Vice-President; Ralph Westcott, Historian; George Peck Westcott, Treasurer; Norman N. Westcott, Secretary. In 1937, a reunion was held at Manville, but election of officers was deferred. These officers were elected for 1938: Susan Westcott Handy, President; William C. Driver, Vice-President; George Westcott, Treasurer; Ralph Dexter, Historian.

Dinners have been held in New York City each succeeding January since 1934, the first two dinners being sponsored by the National Society. At the dinner in 1935, the Greater New York Chapter was formed with Dr. F. Howard Westcott as President and Miss Florence A. Westcott, Secretary-Treasurer. In 1936, these officers were re-elected. In 1937, Harry J. Westcott was elected President, succeeding Dr. F. Howard Westcott, and Miss Westcott was re-elected, and in 1938, they were re-elected. These annual dinners have been called the "little national celebrations" because of the distance some come to attend them. These officers were elected for 1939: Harry J. Westcott, President; Dr. F. Howard Westcott, Vice-President; Miss Florence Earll Clarke, Historian; Miss Florence A. Westcott, Secretary-Treasurer.

Through the efforts of Miss Rachel C. Wilkins, descendants of Nicholas Westcott, a pioneer in Clarendon tp., Rutland County, Vt., who reside in and adjacent to Vermont, an association was formed at Lake St. Catherine in that State in September, 1936. It received its charter for a Chapter in the following November, and in 1937, H. Phillip Westcott was made President; Leon D. Baker, Vice-President; Miss Rachel C. Wilkins, Historian; Frank N. Baker, Secretary; Nathan H. Wilkins, Treasurer. This Chapter has placed headstones at the graves of Nicholas Westcott, Jr., and his wife, Phebe Hines, thus again demonstrating one of the purposes of family organization. These officers were elected for 1938:

While they are not members of the National Society, there have been for more than a quarter of a century associations of Westcott descendants of pioneers Oliver Westcott at West Eaton, Madison County, N. Y., and William Westcott at Bangor, Van Buren County, Mich. Their annual gatherings are largely attended.

The 300th Anniversary Celebration in 1935 of the Coming to America of the Family Founder Arrangements for the Tercentenary Celebration in 1935 were made by the following committee: V. Stukely Westcott, Chairman; Dr. Allan Ferguson Westcott, Dr. Frank Howard Westcott, Dr. Niles Westcott, Coulman C. Westcott, Leslie P. Westcott, Harris Lee Cooke and Roscoe L. Whitman.

This Celebration resulted in an outstanding demonstration of family spirit, of love a posterity may bear an ancestor after an elapse of three centuries, of appreciation and of recognition of the deeds of forebears who sought and helped win liberty of action and conscience, and who helped create a civilization more dynamic, more far-reaching, more enduring, than the world has ever known.

It was appropriate that the first day of the Celebration should be held on June 24, 1935, exactly three hundred years before to the day, June 24, 1635, Stukely Westcott and his family arrived in New England. It was also fitting that the place of assembly should be in Salem, Mass., where the Westcotts established their first home in this country. The celebration continued for five days. The weather was ideal, a full program kept everyone busy and interested, and when the hour came for the final parting it was with many regrets, for all agreed that it had been inspiring to visit the homeland of their early forefathers and to have known their kin better.

The old law which had banished Westcott from the Massachusetts Bay Colony and likewise forbade his return "for a season," still remains on the statute books of Massachusetts, although several attempts have been made to repeal it, successful only in the case of Roger Williams. Amends for this law and the banishment from Salem of Westcott was made by the whole-hearted reception tendered his descendants by the people of Salem under the enthusiastic leadership of Park Commissioner Christian Lantz. Never before, perhaps, has there been a like occasion where a historic old city has so enthusiastically thrown open its doors and extended such unstinted hospitality to people visiting it to pay homage to one of its earliest citizens.

Quite happily, there had been erected in 1930, on the outskirts of Salem, "The Pioneer Village," representing the settlement in 1630, five years before the arrival of Westcott. Here there had been erected the bark and mat-covered dwellings called "English Wigwams," because they resembled the structures built by the Indians, who, in all probability, largely directed the original construction. However, the "wigwams" possessed modern improvements, as they included fireplaces and catted chimneys after the English fashion of the period. The "Governor's fayre house," with its huge central chimney, wide fireplaces and sparse furnishings, faced the "Village Common," and was the center of much interest. Oiled paper for windows, rush-strewn floors, wooden hinges, primitive furniture and utensils, the blacksmith forge, the sawpit, the apparatus for making of salt, the brick kiln, the fish flakes, the method of making shingles, and then the pillory and stocks in the "Village Square" for the punishment of wrong-doers—all suggested "living conditions" and life as Stukely and Juliana Westcott, with their little brood of six children, first found it in the Summer of 1635.

The descendants upon arriving at the "Village" at 1:30 P. M., proceeded to the "Square," where they were welcomed by Park Commissioner Christian Lantz, who then introduced the Hon. George J. Bates, Mayor of Salem. The Mayor extended a hearty welcome, and, at some length, gave the history of "The Pioneer Village," and called attention that it was much the same atmosphere and under conditions not unlike that the settlement presented when Westcott passed his first days in New England. Dr. Allan F. Westcott, then President of the Society, responded to the welcome of the Mayor, and then a tour of the settlement was made, which ended on the village common.

Scattered here and there and seemingly thoroughly at home, were some thirty men, women and children, all in the Puritan dress of 1635. Upon reaching the common, one of the settlers, the character portrayed by Herbert L. Rand, approached the water front, exclaiming to the other settlers, "See, brethren! Thar' come ye boat from yon vessel" . . Sure enough, some fifty yards off shore, a boat was approaching. An Indian in the garb of his tribe, portrayed by Charles Curtis, was at the oars, and in the boat were eight other persons.

The pageant, so magnanimously presented by the people of Salem, and to which the Westcott descendants had been eagerly anticipating, was under way. The hour of the official opening of the Celebration was at hand.

As the settlers gathered near the shore, one of them inquired "who those in the boat may be," while another said they were "English, no doubt, who come to settle amongst us." There was a confab among the settlers, and then it was announced, "We shall welcome them." To this there was a chorus of "Yes! Yes!" By this time, the boat had touched shore, and the Indian chief, having come ashore, approached the settlers, gesticulating, "White English man; his squaw; many papoose!" As this was taking place, those in the boat had also come ashore, and were approaching the group of settlers, the leader of whom extended his hand of welcome, exclaiming, "Welcome, strangers; thrice welcome!"

A tall, square-shouldered, stocky man, suggesting forty-two years of life in England, and unquestionably head of the little family, grasped the first settler's hand, saying he was "Stukely Westcott." He then introduced his wife Juliana, and their six children, Damaris, Samuel, Robert, Amos, Mercy and Jeremiah, all ranging in years from Damaris, aged 14 years, to little Jeremiah, a child one and a half years. Jeremiah being but an infant, was carried in the mother's arms, and as it was through Jeremiah that a majority of those present descended, much was made of the little fellow, greatly to his delight.

The character of "Stukely Westcott" was portrayed by Bradshaw Langmaid. His facial expression and his posture would let him pass anywhere for a Westcott descendant. Mrs. Arthur B. Porter portrayed Mrs. Westcott. Her impersonation recalled to many the grandmothers known to living generations. Ruth Merrill was "Damaris," John Porter was "Samuel," David Porter was "Robert," Thomas W. Adams was "Amos," Jane Arnold was "Mercy," and little Thomas Arnold was "Jeremiah." Other residents of Salem, representing the settlers of three centuries ago, were Oliver Goodell Pratt, George E. Merrill, Frank P. Febens, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Odell, Miss Ruth Odell, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Newmark, Mrs. J. Frank Donaldson, Jack Donaldson, Russell Leigh Jackson, Daniel J. Foley, Mrs. Margaret O'Keefe, Betty S. Cassino, Ernest Dodge, John G. Adams, Jr., Priscilla and Benjamin Haywood.

After the introductions, the first settlers inquired of "Westcott," "Whence came thee, brother?" and then ensued the following dialogue, while cameras clicked:

WESTCOTT: "We came from Yeovil in Somerset, England. For fifty-five days and nights, we sailed westward toward the new land of which we have heard. We sailed from Dartmouth in Devonshire, on Friday, May first. My friend William Arnold and his family, and William Carpenter, came with us. Our voyage was long and tedious. Contrary winds. Storms. But, finally, we landed safely in Plymouth Bay off Hingham, and we were thankful to God."

Scene in "The Pioneer Village," Salem, Mass., at the Time of the Westcott Tercentenary Celebration, 1935.

SETTLER: "'Tis well, Brother Westcott, but why did you leave the Plymouth Colony to come here?"

WESTCOTT: "We first accompanied our friends, the Arnolds, to Hingham, where they had friends. There we learned that Richard, William and Daniel Westcott were in Salem. Also we were told of Roger Williams, and that he was here. We hired the fishing vessel to bring us to Salem."

SETTLER: "You did well, brother."

WESTCOTT: "We are very happy now. We left forever, our relatives, our home in Ilminster and the graves of our ancestors in England because of the consciousness of our souls, to settle amongst you in this great land where we understand there is freedom and opportunity. We pray thee, receive us here. (To which there was a chorus of "Yes! Yes!" from the settlers.) You are very kind, and we thank God we may make our home here."

Westcott then looked around to the assembled Westcott descendants dressed in colorful garments of the late Spring season, and with a puzzled expression on his face, inquired of the settlers, "Good brethren, who are these fantastically clothed people? They cannot be Indians like the one who brought us ashore, but they are nearly as gaily dressed. Tell us, who are they?"

SETTLER: "I will ask them." Turning to the descendants, he inquired, "Whence came you, strangers; and who are you?" To this, President Allan F. Westcott of the Society, replied:

"We come from all parts of our country. We're loving descendants of Stukely Westcott unto the 13th generation, wishing to honor his memory and to memorialize his coming to New England."

SETTLER: (to Westcott): "Hear ye? They say they are your descendants unto the 13th generation."

Westcott thought this "very, very interesting," and said so; "he wanted to meet them," and did, and there were more snapping of cameras. This concluded the pageant.

The motorcade left the "Village" at 2:30 P. M., and under the guidance of Mrs. Charles M. Duren, a former genealogist of the Essex Institute at Salem, the descendants visited the location of Westcott's "home lot" on the North side of the present Front Street, now solidly built up on both sides of the street, but which previous to about the year 1850, faced the Old South River. From here, the party proceeded to the site of the old meeting house where Roger Williams was a pastor for a short time and where Westcott and his family worshipped while they lived in Salem, and thence visited the old Peabody Museum, the Essex Institute and the House of Seven Gables. Thus, the first afternoon of the Celebration passed. In the evening, there was a banquet at the Hotel Hawthorne, at which Velorus Stukely Westcott was chairman.

At the banquet, Mayor Bates again responded with a rousing address on "Salem," and then followed addresses by Roscoe L. Whitman, Historian of the Society, on "Stukely Westcott of England and Salem," and Dr. Allan Furgeson Westcott, the President of the Society, on "Our Society; Its Past and Future." The evening was brought to a close with benediction by Deacon Frank W. Westcott in the absence of the Chaplain, the Rev. Arnold Harris Hord, who was absent because of illness, and the singing of "Bold Stukely Westcott," to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne," the words of which were composed for the Society by its member, Mrs. Theodora Bates Cogswell, the poetess.

Should true blood-kinship be forgot
And never brought to min',

With ancient ties allowed to rot,
Heedless of auld lang syne?

Chorus:

For bygone days, dear Westcott clan,
For our forefathers bold,
We'll link our hands in kindliness
With loyal, lasting hold.

Bold Stukely braved strange hill and fen,
And dared the Indian horde
Defied the Massachusetts men
For glory of the Lord.

He challenged claimants from the West,
Dispersed those from the East,
And tackled with unfailing zest
Peril from man and beast.

So let us all who spring from him
Take our model true
That ancestor of old who found
Nothing too hard to do.

Second Day of the Celebration

With an early start from Salem, a luxurious motor-coach and several private cars, conveyed the descendants to the homeland of the Westcotts in Rhode Island. A visit was made en route to Lexington, Concord, Cambridge (where luncheon was had), Bunker Hill Monument, Charleston Navy Yard, Boston, Hingham (where the Westcott family passed their first nights in America), Plymouth (where dinner was had within sight of the rock on which the Pilgrim Fathers landed in 1620), and then in the cool of the evening breezes of Cape Cod, the motorcade moved on through historic Old Middleboro to end the day's journey at Providence in Rhode Island. These historical reminders of the Revolutionary War, in which so many of the Westcott blood participated, were made doubly interesting because the visits to each place were aided by representatives from either the local historical society, town council or chambers of commerce. Also by motor troopers who acted as escorts. Headquarters in Providence were at the old Narragansett Hotel.

Third Day of the Celebration

Commemorative and appreciation service in the old First Baptist Church at Providence, the society of which Stukely Westcott with eleven others, organized in 1638, was first in the minds of the visiting descendants on Wednesday, the third day of the Celebration.

Before assembling in the historic old church (the present edifice dates from 1775), the visitors visited the location on Main Street immediately South of the corner of Waterman Street, of the frontage of the "house lot" of Stukely Westcott while he lived in Providence, 1638-1647. The center of the frontage of this lot, according to old land deeds, roughly is the present entrance to the building of the School of

Design, and extended back to approximately Hope Street with the North line that of the present (upper) Waterman Street. The orchard and pasture in the six-acre "house lot" were on the hill.

The visitors then assembled in front of the old church, where the official celebration photographer, Hays Bigelow of Brattleboro, Vt., made a circuit picture of those present. Services in the church followed, President Allan F. Westcott, presiding. The exercises were opened with invocation by the Rev. Myron Nelson Wescott, a member of the Society and its Chaplain from 1935 until 1938, when he died in office. Addresses of welcome followed, Velorous Stukely Westcott extending the welcome of the Rhode Island Chapter, No. 2, and the Hon. James E. Dunne, Mayor of Providence, the welcome of the city. President Westcott made the response. Prof. Arthur E. Watson of Brown University, gave a history of the old church, and then the Historian of the Society, Roscoe L. Whitman, followed with a paper, "Stukely Westcott of Rhode Island." This was followed by a tenor solo, "A Prayer of Thanksgiving," by Donald J. MacDonald, and the exercises were closed with an inspiring address, "The Spirit of the Fathers," by the Rev. Arthur D. Cleaves, D. D., pastor of the church. The benediction was by the Rev. Myron Nelson Wescott. Miss Blanche N. Davis presided at the organ.

A short tour of Providence occupied the afternoon, visiting Main Street, along which the first settlers made their homes, College Hill and Brown University and the State Capitol and other points of interest. Many of those present not only descended from Stukely Westcott, but from William Arnold, Nicholas Power, John Greene and Roger Williams and their "house lots" were visited by them. By evening, the visiting descendants, a majority of whom had not met before the Celebration, begun to realize a great congeniality toward each other, and the prefixes Mr., Mrs. and Miss were generally exchanged for the Christian names. So, when the visitors sat down in the spacious banquet hall at the Narragansett Hotel in the evening, there was a unity of interests and absence of undue reticence in evidence at each of the tables.

During the dinner, several delightful solos were rendered by the Misses Mildred Copeland, violin; Gladys Muchahey, 'cello, and Louise Farnum Durfee, piano. An original poem, "Westcott, the Exile," from the pen of Theodora Bates Cogswell, the member-poetess, was read by Dorothy Whitman Morris-Potter (Mrs. Adelbert Niles Potter) and was greatly enjoyed. (For poem, see p. 24.)

Following the reading of the poem, John W. Haley, Historian of the State of Rhode Island, gave an address on "Times and Conditions in Providence in the Early 1600s." He conceded that while credit is being given Roger Williams as the founder of Providence, tribute also should be made to Stukely Westcott, Arnold, Greene and others. "Williams could not have succeeded alone, and Stukely Westcott stood prominently among his associates," Mr. Haley agreed. Again singing "Bold Stukely Westcott," and benediction by Rev. Myron Nelson Wescott, the third day of the Celebration came to an end.

Fourth Day of the Celebration

The morning of the fourth day—Thursday—was taken up by the biennial business meeting of the Society. This meeting was held in the Sunday school room of the old First Baptist Church. An invitation was extended by Miss Jessie Westcott Davenport of Milford Tp. Chapter, No. 1, to hold the second biennial Celebration of the Society at Cooperstown on Lake Otsego, N. Y., in 1937. The invitation was accepted, and adjournment came following the election of the following officers for 1935-6-7:

President—V. Stukely Westcott, Pawtucket, R. I.
1st Vice-President—Dr. F. Howard Westcott, New York City.
2nd Vice-President—Harry Jerauld Westcott, Passaic, N. J.
Chaplain—Myron Nelson Westcott, D. D., Scranton, Pa.
Historian—Roscoe L. Whitman, Westfield, N. J.
Secretary—Miss Ethel Clarke, New York City.
Recording Secretary — Mrs. Dorothy Westcott DeMond, White Plains, N. Y.
Treasurer—Dr. Niles Westcott, Providence, R. I.
Board of Directors (includes the officers)—
Dr. Allan F. Westcott, Annapolis, Md.
William Mar Westcott, Apponaug, R. I.
Mrs. Gladys Westcott Vaughn, Woodward, Okla.
Miss Frances J. Powers, Oakland, Calif.

Promptly at two o'clock in the afternoon, the largest motorcade of the Celebration left Providence for "Old Warwick," or "Shawomet," as the Indians caled it, and the "house lot" and home of Stukely Westcott, 1647-1677. His house on his six-acre lot stood on the old Shore Road near the corner of Stoney Lane, on the road leading from Apponaug to Providence via Cominicut and Hoxie. In the south-east corner of this lot and on the grounds of the present Warwick town grammar school, on a huge boulder weighing several tons, the members of the Society unveiled a handsome bronze tablet to the memory of Westcott. The inscription on the tablet:

(WESTCOTT COAT OF ARMS)
S-E-CORNER 6-ACRE HOME LOT, 1647-1677, OF
STUKELY WESTCOTT
BORN: ENGLAND, 1592.
ARRIVED NEW ENGLAND, JUNE 24, 1635.
FREEMAN: SALEM, MASS., 1636.
ONE OF THE 13 ORIGINAL PROPRIETORS
OF PROVIDENCE PLANTATIONS, 1638.
CO-FOUNDER, 1638, OF
FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH IN AMERICA.
EIGHT TIMES A MEMBER OF THE COURT OF COMMISSIONERS.
GENERAL ASSISTANT, 1653.
DIED: PORRTSMOUTH, R. I., JAN. 12, 1677.

SOCIETY OF STUKELY WESTCOTT DESCENDANTS
PAY HIM THIS TRIBUTE
ON THE TERCENTENARY OF THE FAMILY—
JUNE 24, 1935.

Following the unveiling of the tablet, another circuit picture was taken, and then the motorcade moved on to the old town of Cranston, where grandsons of Westcott and their respective large families, lived on farms with the beginning of the 18th century. Near old Sayres Corners (now Oak Lawn), is the home of Dr. Niles Westcott. The farm on which it stands has been in the possession of his line of ancestors since about the year 1700. Dr. Westcott and his wife opened their more than a century-old manor house to the visitors, and spread beneath the giant branches of the great tree nearby, sandwiches and coffee, which, as one descendant said, "I'd rather take this sandwich home as a souvenir of this lovely old place, than to eat it." The old place, all agreed, is a real expression of the long, long ago—the ancient trees, the endless lines of stone fences, the old family burying ground dating from as early as 1749, all attest the passing of the centuries.

From this old farm, the motorcade continued through Knightsville (it was originally called "Monkeytown") and Cranston back to Providence.

The closing banquet on Thursday evening at the Narragansett Hotel was what might be termed a "home talent" affair, and it was this that made it the more enjoyable. Mrs. Niles Westcott favored by several delightful violin selections, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Karl B. Surgis. "Stukely Westcott, the Man," was the subject of Dr. Myron N. Wescott in the closing address. He paid a fervid tribute to the Christian character of Stukely Westcott. Miss Betty Bates, in a most pleasing manner, rendered "The Westcott Clan," words by Theodora Bates Cogeswell and sung to the air of "Rosalie." The words follow:

We meet with thoughts turned toward the past, toward the past,
Toward folk who were true to the last, to the last,
Who, following Faith's dream across forest and stream
To conquer the wilderness vast.

Chorus

We are born of a pioneer clan;
They could dream and hope and do!
Westcotts of old, Stukely bold,
May your scions resemble you!

We too have our toil and our care, and our care;
Around us is change everywhere, everywhere;
But still the old dream calls our hearts by its gleam
Where Honor and Freedom shine fair.

Chorus

We're part of the land they made, that they made,
Their blood in our veins bids us aid, bids us aid,
With service supreme to preserve their high dream
And strive for the Right unafraid.

Fifth and Final Day of the Celebration

A gay party of twenty-five survivors of the four days of the Celebration boarded the "Westcott Chariot," as the motor-coach, which had continuously afforded transportation since the previous Monday noon in Salem, was now called, left Providence early Friday morning for an all-day tour of Rhode Island. The first stop was at Wickford, an Indian trading post by 1640, and here the old English church (1700) was visited. From here, the party proceeded South through the old homeland of the Narragansett tribe of Indians and on to Narragansett Pier. After the lungs were full of the fresh, ocean breeze, the party returned to Saunderstown and by ferry, crossed to old Jamestown, and then by ferry again, to Newport.

After visiting Gov. Benedict Arnold's old mill, the origin of which has occasioned so much controversy, his "burying ground" which in his will, he "dedicated for ever," was next visited, and greatly to the chagrin of the members of the party, some of whom were descendants of Gov. Arnold and his wife, Damaris Westcott, eldest child of Stukely Westcott, his grave and that of Damaris were not to be found—only the graves of their son Benedict and the latter's second wife were found. This hallowed old burial place of so much historical significance, has for many years been shamefully neglected and abandoned by the State of Rhode Island and Newport.

After luncheon at the Viking Hotel, the party again boarding the "Chariot," toured Newport's famous 10-mile drive, and after passing the homes of elite Newport, started back to Providence. On the way, a stop was made in Portsmouth for a moment of silence in memory of Stukely Westcott, who died there in 1677. As his long, full life ended here, so did the Celebration in his memory come to an official end.

The Second Biennial Celebration of the Society at Cooperstown, N. Y., August 5 to 8, 1937

Three dinners at Cooper Inn, commemorative services at historic Christ Church, with a visit to the graves of Judge William Cooper, who founded Cooperstown in 1790, and his illustrious author-son, James Fenimore Cooper, in the church yard, and a delightful outing at beautiful Five-Mile Point on Lake Otsego, were leading features of the second biennial celebration in 1937. The guest speakers were Supreme Court Judge Abraham Lincoln Kellogg of Oneonta, N. Y., whose subject was "Abraham Lincoln," and Harry V. Bush, historian of the Mohawk Valley Historical Society. There were also addresses by several members of the Society, and Mrs. Mary Virginia Morris Stanton sang the family song, "The Westcott Clan," and other selections in her rich soprano voice. The following officers for 1937-8-9 were elected:

Explanation to the Reader

Records which were published in the history and genealogy of "The Ancestors and Some Descendants of Stukely Westcott" in 1932, are not duplicated in the following Appendices; they are in addition thereto, as the title of this book indicates.

A person recorded herein, to trace his ancestry back to the Family Founder, Stukely Westcott, first finds the record of himself after consulting the index of Christian and surnames in the back of this book. He then refers to the page indicated by the index and finds his record. If, for example, he is of the X generation, he traces back or up the page or pages until he finds the first mention of the IX generation, where he will find the record of his parents. Then continuing to trace back to first mention of the VIII generation, and he finds the record of his grandparents. And so on until the beginning of the Appendix is reached.

The first record at the beginning of the Appendix will be that of his or her ancestor or ancestress whose record is also found on the page in the original genealogy corresponding with the number of the Appendix. In other words, "Appendix to Page 125" means that the earlier records are to be found on page 125 of the original genealogy.

The letter "b" affixed to a date, means birth, "d" death; "m" married; "m (1)" first marriage, "m(2)" second marriage, "p" or "pr" prior or previous; "af." after; "ab." about; "bur." buried; "cem." cemetery; "nr." near; "tp." township. Other abbreviations, such as "dau.' for daughter, "ch." for child; "chn." for children; "d-y" died young; "d-inf." died in infancy, "desc." descendant; "descs." descendants, will be understood.

(NOTE—In the records from 1768 to 1790 of the Baptist churches in and about Shaftsbury, are Mattesons bearing the Christian names of Thomas (1760; Ruth, prob. his wife), Sarah, Susannah, Caleb (Sarah, his wife), Thomas, 2d, James, David, Isiah, George, Zerobabel, Johnson, Lydia, Abraham, Jr., Archibald, Artemas, Abigail, Abraham, Amos, Henry. They are believed to have all descended from Hezekiah and Margaret. There was an Amos Matteson born in nearby Pawnal, Vt., in 1774 who m-Hannah Dunbar, b-Bennington, Vt., and they settled in Laurens tp., Otsego County, N. Y., in 1800, where both d-1852, leaving sons Leonard, Daniel, George, Amos, and dau. Martha. [See "Otsego Co., N. Y. Biographical Review, 1893," pp. 705-6.])

IV—Catherine Westcott, b-Apr. 17, 1705, on her father's farm nr. Allen's Harbor in the Quidnesset section of North Kingston, R. I., or Kingstowne, as it was then called, on which her grandfather first settled in 1671, d-af. 1743 at Bozrah, Conn.; m-Nov. 11, 1725, Daniel Wightman, b-Kingstowne Sept. 23, 1703, d-Bozrah, June 6, 1753, son Rev. Valentine (b-Apr. 16, 1681, d-June 9, 1747) and (m-Feb. 17, 1703) Susannah (Holmes, dau. Rev. Obediah) Wightman of Kingstowne (North Kingston) R. I., and Groton, Conn., son George (b-England, June, 1632, d-Quidnesset, Jan. 7, 1722) and (m-ab. 1663) Elizabeth (Updike, bapt. New Amsterdam (N. Y. City), July 27, 1644, d-Quidnesset, 1719) Wightman, son John (bapt. Burton-Upon-Trent, Staffordshire, Eng. Jan. 7, 1599, d-prob. Quidnesset, pr. 1669) and (———) Wightman, son Edward (b-ab. 1576, d-Apr. 11, 1612) and (m-Sept. 2, 1593) Frances (Darbye) Wightman. Elizabeth Updike dau. Dr. Gilbert and Catherine (Smith, dau. Richard, the Indian trader at Wickford R. I.) Updike, or op Dycke, as the name was then spelled. Edward Wightman, regarded as the founder of the Wightman-Whitman family in America, descended from George Wightman, gentleman, Manor of Ansley at Elmthrope in Leicestershire, Eng. Edward was "the last of the religious martyrs in England to be burned at the stake" (Apr. 11, 1612), "a Saturday between Good Friday and Easter Sunday," in Manchuet Place, Lichfield, Staffordshire. Two of his sons, John and Samuel, and five sons of John—Valentine, Daniel, Abraham, George and another whose name is unknown—emigrated to America in 1654, Valentine, who mastered the Indian language and was interpreter for Richard Smith at the latter's trading post, coming as early as 1645. Daniel was in Newport, R. I., in 1656. Of Abraham, little is known. George, in 1669, settled on land nr. Quidnesset Harbor (now Allen Harbor) in the extreme north-eastern part of the Quidnesset section. Closeby, after 1671, was the farm home of Catherine's parents, Zorobabel and Jane (———) Westcott. There is today a group of rocks called "Westcott Rocks," nr. the entrance to Allen Harbor, and on this farm is the old family burying ground where Catherine's parents, her grandfather and others of her kin, are buried. Both farms are part of the 1665 purchase from the Indians. On these neighboring farms, it may be preseumed, "the boy and the girl" met, possibly in late 1721 during the last illness of Daniel's grandfather George. Daniel was then nineteen years of age and Catherine was seventeen. Daniel's father, Valentine, was then a Baptist minister in Groton, Conn., where he located Sept. 6, 1707, and it is logical that he should have taken his family to be at the bedside of his dying father. Catherine and Daniel were married three years later. The old burying ground on the farm of George Wightman contains his grave and those of many of his descendants. As late as 1919, it was marked by a huge boulder on which is inscribed the years of his birth and death. According to an old deed, which in 1937 was in the possession of Herbert B. Wightman of Norwich, Conn. a descendant, Catherine and Daniel settled soon after their marriage in that part of Norwich township caled Bozrah. The deed dated June 13, 1728, reads: "I, Valentine Wightman of Groton (Conn.), for and in consideration of the love, good-will and personal affection, which I have and do bear towards my son, Daniel Wightman of Norwich, have given and granted one-half of the land I bought of William Stark of Norwich, as appears by deed of sale bearing the date of July 2nd, 1722." The 1922 Annual of Graduates of West Point has this record: "In the field with 7th Infantry, Belleau Wood, Chatteau Thierry. Severely wounded in chest while leading his platoon to relief of Marines in June of 1918. Left hospital Oct. 1, 1918, and attached to 110th Infantry near Chatel Chehery. Crossing Aire river to join his company, found 250 men, survivors of five companies, with no officers. Under a severe bombardment, he formed four companies with sergeants in command, and led his improvised battalion to a more favorable position. At this time his left shoulder was broken by a shrapnel bullet, and at the First Aid Station was tagged for hospital. Instead, he returned to his men, refusing evacuation. After dark he led an attack on a German machine-gun nest in Chatel Ferme, killing or capturing the enemy. The next day he was again wounded and a few minutes later instantly killed by a shell fragment. That night he was buried on the battlefield. His citation and posthumous award of the Distinguished Service Cross reads: 'For extraordinary heroism in action.' His body lies in Romagne cemetery, France, Grave 10, Row 5, Block A. The War Department honored his memory further by General Order 13, W. D., 1922, as follows: 'On the Fort Duvall Mass., Military Reservation the battery of 16-inch guns is named Battery Frank S. Long, in honor of 1st-Lieut. Frank S. Long, Infantry, killed in action in France, Oct. 5th, 1918.' "

Y., 1804, Allen Wightman, Jr., b-Norwich, Conn., July 7, 1782, d-Geneva, Wis., Mar. 18, 1866, son Allen, Sr., and (m-ab-1763) Rhoda (called "Molly"; Lathrop) Wightman, of Abraham, Valentine, first George, 1654. Rhoda Lathrop dau. Cyprian and Mary (Stark) Lathrop, and desc. of Rev. John Lathrop whom Gov. Winthrop mentions in his journal as arriving with others in the ship "Griffin," Sept. 18, 1623. Mary Stark was desc. of Aaron Stark, who d-New London, Conn., 1685, and a first cousin of Susannah Stark, wife of Abraham Wightman. Soon after the Revolutionary War, he migrated from Connecticut and settled at German Flats, a military district in the Mohawk Valley of New York set off early in the war. He was commissinoed Ensign June 10, 1807, in Capt. James Delong's Co., Lt.-Col. Daniel Petrie's (Herkimer Co.) inf. regt., promoted to Lieutenant of his company Feb. 11, 1811, and resigned Mar. 2, 1814. Soon after this, he settled finally on a farm tract on the old Seneca post-road near Skaneateles, Onondaga County, N. Y. He died in 1835. Allen, Jr., one of eleven children, was a farmer. When the new country in Alleghany County, N. Y., promised better fields, he and two of his brothers, Aruna and Simon, removed to and settled at Bolivar, then a part of Friendship. Here the brothers were highly respected citizens, being chosen leaders in town government. Allen evidently inherited the adventurous and aggressive spirit of his ancestors, for with the opening of lands in Michigan, he, a man past fifty, joined in the migration to the new country. At about 1836, he arrived at a place nr. Madison, Wis., which was then only an Indian trading post, and set to work clearing a farm. In 1850, he was paying taxes on 150 acres at Windsor, Wis., probably what is now the town of Sun Prairie, and here, five years later, Love, his wife, passed away. He was a tall, broad-shouldered man, with a heavy, deep voice, kindly, friendly disposition, industrious, thrifty. They raised two little girls who were left orphans in the neighborhood, one being Orra, who m(1)- —— Bush, m(2)-Addison Porter Wightman, and their issue: Rufus.

VII—Rufus Randall Wightman, b-Skaneateles, Onondaga County, N. Y., Jan. 25, 1810, d-St. Louis, Mo., Apr. 17, 1899; m(1)-Nov. 15, 1832, Lamira Smith, who d-Jan. 30, 1845; m(2)-Apr. 22, 1846, Maria Mathilde Mead of Canandaigua, who died three weeks before her husband. Of his youth little is known, other than he received only a common school education, but Oct., 1842, some nine years after his first marriage, he began reading medicine with Dr. D. P. Stryker of Southport, Chemung County, N. Y., and later entered a medical school. He practiced medicine in New York, Michigan and Wisconsin. Previous to the death of his mother in 1855, word came of her failing health, and this decided him upon removing to Wisconsin to live. He remained on his father's farm at Sun Prairie, until after his mother died, and then went to Milwaukee, Wis., where he bought property and built a business block. Two years later, he removed to Hartland, Wis., where he conducted a flour mill, practicing medicine at the same time. Later, he lived in Michigan, but soon returned to Wisconsin, settling at Madison, where his children were educated at the University. He had sandy, or red hair, fair skin, and clear, deep blue eyes. By middle age, his hair had turned pure white, and with full beard and hair grown long on his neck, he resembled very much the pictures of Longfellow. His wife, [8]Maria Mathilde Mead, was dau. [7]Philip and Viana ("Anna") (French) Mead, both of Vermont and Canandaigua, N. Y., of [6]Philip, [5]Timothy, [4]Timothy, [3]Jonathan, [2]John, [1]William. A bro. of Timothy Mead, Jr., was James Mead (see W. G., p. 321, for ancestry). Timothy Mead, Sr., b-Horse Neck, N. Y., but lived at Nine Partners, Dutchess County, N. IV—(a) Penelope Arnold, b-Portsmouth, R. I., Aug. 3, 1669, d-South Kingstown, R. I., af. 1743, m-ab. 1689, George Hazard of South Kingstown, where he d-Jan., 1743. Penelope was a child eight years of age when at the home of her father, her great-grandfather, the first Stukely Westcott, sickened and died. George Hazard was son of Robert (1635-1710) and Mary (Brownell, 1639-Jan. 28, 1739) Hazard, of the first Thomas (1610-1680) and Martha (d-1699) Hazard. Thomas came from Wales in 1635, first settling in Boston, where Mar. 25, 1638, he was admitted freeman. On Apr. 28, 1639, he with eight others, signed a contract preparatory to the settling of "Nieuport" (Newport), R. I., and was one of the founders and first settlers of the town, being made June 5, 1639, one of the "proprietors" of the land, and Sept. 2, 1639, a freeman of the town. He was a member there Mar. 12, 1640, of the "Generall Courte." His son, Robert Hazard, was admitted freeman of Portsmouth, 1665. In 1676, he was member of a committee to procure boats for defense of the colony. The Boston Gazette, Feb. 12, 1739, in its notice of the death of Mrs. Robert Hazard, dated Newport, Feb. 9, said "Mary Hazard, widow of Mr. Robert Hazard of South Kingstown and grandmother of the late deceased George Hazard, esq., late deputy governor of Rhode Island, departed this life on the 28th of January in the one hundredth year of her age and was decently interred the Wednesday following. She has five hundred children, grand-children and great grandchildren, and left behind her living 205 of the aforesaid number. She was accounted a very useful gentlewoman, both to the rich and the poor on many accounts, and particularly amongst the sick for her skill and judgment which she did gratis." Two of her sons, George and Stephen, became ancestors in the Westcott lines. George Westcott was presumably b-ab. 1665. He was deputy to the Colonial assembly in 1701 and seven subsequent terms. In 1719/20, he was lieut-colonel of the militia on the "mainland" (South Kingston, R. I.). He died possessed of farms, slaves, horses, Penelope m-Robert Robinson, Sr., b-ab. 1695, of whose ancestry there is tradition he was son of James, one of three generations of sea captains, all lost at sea, and descending from the Earl de Gray, Marquis of Ripon, whose family name was Robinson. (Frederick W. Robinson of Boston, secretary of the Robinson Family Society, of Robert Robinson said of his social position, that "the Arnolds would not have allowed any marriage with an unknown peripatetic even if the name was Robinson.") He was undoubtedly a Quaker. His connections by marriage and his descendants for generations were members of the Friends. He was admitted freeman 1736. Only issue: Robert, Jr.

V—Robert Robinson, Jr., b-Feb. 7, 1729-30, and based upon the will of his uncle, Benedict Arnold (1733), he was left an orphan when three or four years of age. He m-May 30, 1755, Phebe Carr of James and Abigail, of Edward, of Governor Caleb Carr. (App. p. 137, also Damaris Arnold, Westcott Gene., p. 137.) He was admitted freeman 1746. Only issue: Benedict.

VI—Benedict Arnold Robinson, b-Jamestown, R. I., Feb. 12, 1758, d-Yates County, then Ontario County, N. Y., Feb. 18, 1832. Following the culpability of his second cousin, Gen. Benedict Arnold, he dropt his middle name, and sought by every means to conceal his connection with the Arnold family. He removed from South Kingston, R. I., to the Genesee country of western New York, in 1789, and m-Sept. 1, 1792, Susannah Brown, dau. Capt. Daniel and Abigail (Crary) Brown of Stonington, Conn. She was a lineal descendant of Nicholas Brown, Thomas Newhall, Allen Breed, Walter Palmer and others of the Massachusetts Bay colony, and of Capts. George Denison and John Gallop, who in the early days of the New England colonies achieved distinction in civil and military affairs. Ontario County was the first to be set off from old Montgomery County. This was in 1789, and the territory included within its boundaries all that part of the state West of Seneca Lake, amounting in the aggregate to more than two million acres. It was the most remote settlement West of the Hudson river. To this wild region "infested with wolves and other wild animals, including rattlesnakes which were overwhelmingly numerous," Benedict Robinson, with other Rhode Island families, including the Arnolds, Browns, Carrs, Gardiners, Hathaways, Hazards (see Penelope Hazard, app. pp. 132), migrated under the leadership of Jemima Wilkinson, a Quakeress, who believed she had a divine mission to fulfill. "They were," states O. Turner in his history of "The Phelps and Gorham Purchases," "a very orderly, sober, industrious, and some of them possessed handsome properties." Wilkinson's leadership soon weakened. Benedict was first to rebel, breaking the Quakeress' absurd law against wedlock by marrying within three years after his arrival. He gave one thousand acres of land to the "Universal Friend," as Jemima styled herself, but he never again accorded to her the reverence of the early days. He was "the most considerable property holder among the pioneers." With Thomas Hathaway, they owned two townships. He was surveyor for the settlers. Following his marriage, he abandoned the log cabin and removed to a frame house which he erected and which commanded a magnificent view of Seneca Lake and the surrounding country. They were lavish in the entertainment of such travelers as came their way; among their earlier guests were Louis Phillipe, afterwards King of France, who, during his sojourn in America, found in this isolated region protection from his enemies, Governor Clinton, who, with his wife and staff, made a tour of the section in the 1790s. The Indians, whom Gen. Sullivan had put to flight, were still numerous enough to quickly destroy the settlers. They were sullen, hostile, vindictive, but were treated kindly and with respect and their favor was finally won. Into Susannah Robinson's immaculate kitchen the red men would file, a dozen at a time, squat around the great fireplace, and roast the birds they had shot (feathers and all) at the end of their long arrows. Then, after Susannah would add something from her stores, they would grunt their satisfaction and leave. At the end of an exhausting day of traveling toward their new home, Benedict Robinson wrote in his journal (which in 1933 was in the possession of his great-granddaughter, Marjorie Hatmaker Paul of Virginia): "Evening sitting, and exhorted to humiliation and prayer and a daily walking with the Lord." VII—Abigail Robinson, b-May 5, 1802, d-July 13, 1882, educated in the Friends' school at Aurora, N. Y.; m-Jan. 21, 1824, John Hatmaker, b-July 18, 1793, d-Jan. 11, 1877. He studied medicine with Dr. Joseph White of Cherry Valley, N. Y. In 1821, he was licensed to practice by the Otsego County Medical Society, and "went west," settling in Penn Yan, N. Y., where he was one of the founders and the ruling elder for fifty-four years of the Presbyterian Church; also one of the founders of Auburn Theological Seminary and trustee of the Elmira College for women. He was a strong advocate of anti-slavery and temperance. Abigail, his wife, reared a Friend, went with him into the Presbyterian Church, but adhered to Quaker dress and the Friends' form of speech. John, her husband, was son of Henry (1755-1828) and (m-Oct. 9, 1792) Barbara Eliza (Fritcher, b-German Flats (now Herkimer), N. Y., Feb. 8, 1773, d-1866) Hatmaker, and grandson of Adam Hatmaker (b-Germany, ab. 1725). Adam is said to have been an officer in the German army, or a government employe. While at a seaport, he was either kidnapped by pirates or taken a prisoner of war and carried to sea. Several months later in ab. 1755, he was landed in Philadelphia, where eventually he married and lived for a time. He then removed to Stone Arabia in the Mohawk Valley, where he served in the Revolution in Capt. John Ruff's co., Col. Jacob Klock's 2nd regt. of Tryon County militia. He had two sons, George and Henry, the former living in Williamsport, Pa. Henry accompanied his parents to the Mohawk Valley, where, at German Flats, he married Barbara Eliza Fritcher, dau. Henry Fritcher, who, during the Revolution, was a private in same co. and regt. as Adam Hatmaker. In 1781, Henry Fritcher and his wife, while pulling flax on their farm nr. Stone Arabia, were captured by the Indians, taken away and were never heard from thereafter. Their daughter, Barbara, then seven years old, was adopted by a Mrs. Beasly, who then had taken refuge in Fort Herkimer, with whom she lived several years. Later, she lived in Gen. Herkimer's family until she married in 1792. Well-authenticated family tradition is that while Barbara lived in the Herkimer home, Gen. Washington came to the valley and with his staff dined at the Herkimer fort. After the meal, little Barbara could not be found. It was feared she had wandered out and been captured by the savages. But later she was found in a state of intoxication under the table. She had tasted the wine in the glasses, one of which had touched the lips of George Washington! And so, little Barbara had succumbed to the sediments of Gen. Washington's wine glass! Later in life, she became severely opposed to intoxicants. Upon the death of her husband, Barbara Fritcher Hatmaker left her home on the small farm nr. Stone Arabia and went to Yates County to live with her son John and his wife Abigail. Of her it is said that her face was fair, and she was always cheerful and bright. She wore large lace caps with high crowns and wide, full ruffles. She spoke broken English and could read only Dutch. After her marriage, she became a devout member of the German Lutheran Church in Stone Arabia. She zealously read her Dutch Bible and often was heard, when alone in her room, singing in a low, sweet voice, her favorite hymns. As a girl she was very gay, and said she often wore out two pairs of pumps in a single night, dancing. John and Abigail had issue, 10 chn.: Phebe, Lucy, Abigail, John, Henry, Susannah, David, Stephen, Frances, Henrietta.

V—Caleb Arnold, b-May 26, 1725, d-Feb. 5, 1784; m(1)-Patricia Brown; m(2)-June 2, 1773, Annie, dau. Daniel Arnold of Smithfield. He and his eight sons and three sons-in-law served in the Revolution. While every male member of this family was away serving in the army, Caleb's daughters, Patience, Achsa and Lucy, together with a daughter-in-law, Isceah, and his second wife, Annie, remained on their homesteads exercising indomitable energy, patience and patriotism. They tilled the farms when it was necessary and found time and strength to perform in addition to these labors, the duty of nursing the sick and wounded among the soldiers. "Arnold's Hill," near Gloucester, overlooks many miles of Connecticut and was the site of the house in which Caleb lived. The house of his son William was standing in the late 19th century. "The Beacon Light" was often displayed from this hill and muskets were fired three times to give the alarm to the Patriots within hearing. When the famous first alarm was sounded, General Israel Putnam, who was at work within hearing on his Connecticut farm, left his plow and made his renowned ride to Boston. The family were Quakers. Fred A. Arnold, descendant of the same family and who made an exhaustive research of Arnold family statistics, had in his possession, an Orderly Book dated at Providence, Jan. 14, 1777, which conveys an idea of the precaution the colonists took to give warning of the possible approach of the British. The order: "It being necessary for the safety of the Army & Country that alarms should be speedily diffused and Communicated. The General therefore orders that when any Motions are made by the Enemy after tomorrow night, that they make it necessary to cause an Alarm of the Troops at their respective Posts—a Fire will be made on the little Hill to the East of the lines at Warwick, and three Canon to be fired at Warwick followed by three at Patuxet and three at Providence near the College, which is to be the signal for a General Alarm. A sentry to be placed in the upper story of the College at the South Window, a fire will be Built tomorrow Evening on Sd. little Hill to give the Sentries the Course and Direction of the Hill. A Sentry to be furnished Constantly from Col. Eliot's Regt. of Artillery to be posted at Sd. Window who will keep a constant Lookout to Sd. Hill and on Appearance if the Fire thereon, to give immediate Notice to the Officer of the Guard, who is to do the like to Headquarters." Caleb served as Deputy in 1773-1778, and was on the War Committee in 1780 in Gloucester. He died intestate. Issue, 11 chn.: (of whom) Israel, Achsa, Caleb, Oliver, William, Patience, Lucy.

IV—John Stafford, b-Old Warwick, R. I., May 5, 1735; m-Jan. 18, 1753, Mary, dau. Isaac King of Scituate, R. I. Abut the year 1780, in that first notable rush of migration "up country," as the natives referred to moving into the "back country" or "the wilderness," from the coastwise towns of Rhode Island, which began in the 1760s and continued well into the 19th century, seven at least of the children of John and Mary removed from Scituate to the northwest part of the town of Guilford, Windham County, Vt. Record is not available, but it may safely be assumed that the parents of these children, all sons, accompanied them to Vermont, for the oldest was about twenty-seven years of age, while the youngest was about eleven. John's older bro., Joeb, had settled in Cheshire, Mass., or New Providence, as it was then called, in 1767, and thus John in settling in Vermont, located in the same general section. John and Mary had issue, so far as known, 7 chn.: Isaac, John, Samuel, Stukely, Thomas, Job, Obadiah.

II—Jeremiah Westcott; m-July 27, 1665 (not 1666, W. G., p. 156), Eleanor England. Her parents, William and Elizabeth England, were of Portsmouth, R. I., where William was one of the original settlers, 1638. The maiden name of Elizabeth is unknown. (She m(2)-Hugh Parsons from England, and had four chn., amng whom was Hannah who m-Henry Matteson, parents of Hezekiah who m-Margaret Westcott, dau. [3]Zerobabel, [2]Robert, [1]Stukely.) Issue, 7 chn.: Jeremiah, Jr., Eleanor, Persis, Stukely, Samuel, William, Benjamin.

III—Jeremiah Westcott, Jr.; m-ab. 1686, Mary Warner. It states (W. G., p. 156) that "due to the incomplete records of Coventry (R. I.), of the issue of Jeremiah, Jr., only the following chn. are known: George, Jeremiah, III, Thomas, Eleanor." Further research shows they had also Stukely, Mary, Ann, James, and probably Richard, Charles and Peleg. While the following may not be in order of their birth, the chn. prob. were: Jeremiah, III, Stukely, Richard, Mary, George, Ann, James, Thomas, Charles, Eleanor, Peleg.

IV—Jeremiah Westcott, III, b-1687; m-Sarah Smith (W. G., p. 165).

IV—Stukely Westcott, b-ab. 1688; m-Freelove ——. In 1702, they were in Warwick, where there are records of land deeds in his name.

IV—Richard Westcott, b-ab. 1689-90; m-Bethiah ——. Only known issue: Thomas, b-Nov. 26, 1717.

IV—Mary Westcott, b-1893; m-1738, William Kelly of Providence. No issue.

IV—George Westcott, b-ab. 1694-5, d-af. June 10, 1764; m-Elizabeth ——. Issue, of rec., 5 chn.: George, Jr., Oliver, Thomas, Jobe, Sarah, and prob. others.

V—George Westcott, Jr., b-Coventry, Apr., 1730, d-June, 1814; m-Phebe Wade (?), b-Oct. 22, 1743, d-Sept. 11, 1825. They lived in that part of Scituate tp. which was set off as Foster tp. Issue, of rec., 5 chn.: George, III, Ziba, Oliver, Preserved, Susannah; prob. others.

VI—George Wescott, III, b-Scituate, R. I., 1762, d-Clarendon tp., Rutland County, Vt., Jan. 11, 1799, from causes contracted in Revolutionary War. (His surname is spelled Westcoat in pension claim and Wescott in Clarendon tp. records and Wescott as he signs his will.) He m-Sept. 9, 1784, Phebe Salisbury, b-Scituate, May 31, 1766, d-Jan. 10, 1857, at home of her son, George W., in Harmony, N. Y., and is bur. nr. the old house. He is bur. in Chippenhook cem., Clarendon tp., which cem, is nr. his old farm homestead. While residing in Scituate and twenty years of age, he served as private in Capt. William Humphrey's co., Col. Jeremiah Olney's R. I. regt., and was discharged Dec. 20, 1782. His bro. Ziba (W. G., p. 158) was in same co. There is a fam. tradition that George when thirteen years old (1775) reported for service and when he could not comply with army requirements, was accepted as an errand boy to Gen. Washington. Records at pension bureau do not refer to this, but do mention "other services." Numerous sons of his posterity, including his own son, have been given the name "George Washington Wescott." Clarendon tp. records show that he and his bro. Ziba jointly purchased for fifty pounds, Sept. 4, 1781, fifty acres of land from Joseph Williams; land "beginning at a stake and stone in the northwest corner of Oliver Wescott land." The deed mentions them as "of Scituate," and was drawn in the year before their service in the Olney regt. Whether they were in Clarendon at the time of this purchase, there is no record. It appears probable the land was bought at the suggestion of and through their uncle Oliver Wescott, who, in the previous year, June 5, 1780, also purchased land in Clarendon from Joseph Williams. Ziba Wescott, bro. of George, responded to the Lexington Alarm from Fairfield, Conn., and served continuously until Dec., 1777, when he was discharged at Saratoga. At the time of his discharge, his uncle Oliver was living in Clarendon. Not being far from his uncle and it being mid-Winter, Ziba perhaps visited him before returning to Rhode Island and from the knowledge he thus gained of the new Vermont country, persuaded his bro. George to purchase land there with him. This they did, as stated, in 1781. George before Feb. 2, 1781, took the freeman's oath in Clarendon, he being number 131 on the list. However, the two brothers must have decided their country needed them more than their new land in Vermont, for in the Spring of 1782, they enlisted in the Olney regt. It was mid-Winter when they were discharged from the army, so it seems certain they would not have immediately gone to Vermont. There is record of Ziba and his aunt Susannah, being in nearby Ira tp. in 1787, but George, not having a maiden aunt to keep house for him, married, as stated, Phebe Salisbury in 1784. Phebe was dau. Capt. Abraham and Zilpha (Westcott) Salisbury of Scituate and Clarendon. Zilpha Westcott was dau. Ezekiel and Mary (Dyer) Westcott (App. 217). Capt. Salisbury and Zilpha had been in Clarendon since before 1770. He won his rank of captain by hastily forming a co. of militia in 1777, for protection against British raiding detachments. Phebe Salisbury Wescott, wid. George, was allowed a pension Oct. 22, 1844, at which time and in 1855, she lived in Springfield tp., Erie County, N. Y. In his will, dated Sept. 6, 1799, George bequeaths parts of his farm to his wife and to each of his children, none of whom were then of age. Among the items in the inventory of his estate, is an agreement wherein his father-in-law, Capt. Salisbury, is to pay him $30, May 1, 1800, for two cows and two calves. In later years, ac. deeds on file Clarendon tp., Jeremiah, eldest of his six chn., purchased the land bequeathed by the father, from his only bro. and four sisters. His wid., May 19, 1810, sold the land left to her, to Andrew Potter, bro. of the father of her son Jeremiah's wife. There is fam. tradition that George and Phebe had son Amos, who was scalded to death, but if so he died before his father, for in the latter's will, only the following chn. are mentioned: Jeremiah, Lydia, Phebe, George, Zilpha, Sybel.

VII—Jeremiah Wescott (W. G., p. 156), ac. fam. records, was born in Clarendon tp. in 1783, but this is evidently in error, for his parents were m-Sept. 9, 1784, and t. c. rec. says he was b-June 5, 1785. He d-Fair Haven, Vt., Aug. 5, 1856, and is bur. in Chippenhook cem. beside his father, there being no marker at his grave. There are many land deeds on file in which he was grantor and grantee. He was one of the executors of his father's will, and settled the estate. He m-ab. 1808, Wealthy Potter, dau. David (1764-1846) and Phebe (1759-1845) Potter, natives of Rhode Island, both of whom died in Clarendon tp. and are bur, beside their dau. in Chippenhook cemetery. Issue, 6 chn.: Amos, Clarissa, George, David, Jeremiah, Phebe.

VIII—Amos Wescott (W. G., p. 156). He lived on a part of the original farm of his grandfather. His wife, [7]Sophia Green was dau. [6]Walter (b-Clarendon, July 27, 1781, d-same, Feb. 25, 1848) and m(2)-ab. 1810) Lovina (Colvin, 1783-1872) Green, of [5]Peleg (1747-1835) and Lucy (Green, 1752-1835) Green, of [4]Elisha, [3]Peleg, [2]Daniel, of first John Green of Quidnessset, R. I. Peleg was a soldier of the Revolution and his son, Walter, served in the War of 1812. Peleg was an early settler in Clarendon, coming from West Greenwich, R. I., ab. 1778. He was number 133 on the list of settlers who took the freeman's oath before 1781. He was b-North Kingston, R. I. He, his wife, Lucy, son Walter and wife, Lovina, and Sophia, are buried in Chippenhook cem. Issue, to Amos and Sophia, 3 chn.: George, Arunah, (not Annah), William.

VII—George W(ashington) Wescott, as his signature appears, b-Clarendon, Vt., Feb. 27, 1793, d-Apr. 14, 1869, at home of his dau. Sarah D., in Union City, Pa., and is bur. in Ebenezer cem., Harmony, Chautauqua County, N. Y.; m-1818, Olive Waterman, b-Cummington, Hampshire County, Mass., Nov. 27, 1800, d-Mar. 19, 1886, at home of her son, Abram S. Wescott, and is buried beside her husband. Olive was fourth ch. of Calvin and (m-Cummington, Mass., May 30, 1791) Olive (Bates) Waterman. [6]Calvin Waterman, of French descent, was of [5]Anthony, [4]Anthony, [3]John, [2]John, of first Robert Waterman of Marshfield, Mass., by 1638, [5]Anthony, Jr., died early, leaving two young sons, James and Calvin. They settled in Cummington, but Calvin moved before 1800 to nearby Windsor, Berkshire County, Mass. He and his wife, Olive, appear here in deeds. He was called housewright; also millwright and owned a grist-mill on the Westfield (Mass.) river. In the census of 1820, he was listed as head of family in Ontario County, N. Y., but settled there probably several years before. He was a native probably of Halifax, Mass., and b-ab. 1768. He d-Oct. 19, 1823. About 1816, or, perhaps, before, when about twenty-three years of age, George W. Wescott, with his mother and her fam., removed from Vermont to Palmyra, Wayne County, N. Y., in which county a number of Wescott families from Clarendon, Vt., settled ab. this time. Here George W. and Olive met and were married in 1818, and at Perrington, N. Y., Jan. 22, 1819, their first ch., Laura, was born. They continued to live here for ab. three years and then removed to Hamburg, N. Y., where he had a small farm, tan yard and shoe shop. Here the fam. were sometimes the guests of Indians at their reservation three miles away. While at Hamburg, George met with reverses in trying to help a friend, but undaunted, removed with his wife and five small chn., in 1826, to settle in the woods in Harmony tp., there to struggle in clearing a 60-acre farm from the wilderness, raising their provisions and making cloth for their clothes. In the Spring, 1840, they removed to a farm of 100 acres in the same tp., and in conjunction with it, he had a brick yard. Here the entire fam., except the three oldest chn., were enumerated in the census of 1850. George was a tall man, typical of the Westcott stature, with light complexion and blue eyes. A descendant tells of him that he "was pleasant and kind in his family and firm in government," another Westcott characteristic (as this writer recalls his grandfather). When he was twenty-one years of age, he sold, Mar. 8, 1814, to his elder bro. Jeremiah, the land in Clarendon which his father willed to him. George and Olive had issue, 10 chn.: Laura, Diana, Sybel, Jeremiah, Abram, George, Oris, Olive, Rush, Fanny, Sarah.

VI—Oliver Westcott, b-Scituate, R. I., June 2, 1767, in that part of the town which was set off Aug. 24, 1781, as town of Foster, d-nr. Daysville, Richland tp., Oswego County, N. Y., Jan. 18, 1849, and with his wife and others of his family is bur. in the old Willis cem. in Richland tp. He m-1788, Anne Brown, b-Glocester tp. (adjoining Scituate on north), Aug. 19, 1770, d-Richland tp., Oswego County, June 2, 1867. Anne was dau. Esek and Mary (Sayles, b-1754) Brown, of Elisha (b-1717) and Sarah (Olney) Brown, of Chad (b-1705) and Sarah (Smith) Brown, of John (1630-ab. 1706) and Mary (Holmes) Brown, of first Rev. Chad and Elizabeth Brown of Providence, 1638. Mary Holmes was dau. first Rev. Obediah and Catherine Holmes. Mary Sayles was dau. Richard and Mary (Phillips) Sayles, of John Sayles, Jr., of John and Mary (Williams) Sayles. Mary Williams was dau. of Roger Williams, who settled Providence, 1636. Esek Brown, father of Anne, was an Ensign of the Third Co., Trained State Militia Bands of Glocester, 1781 and 1784, and a Lt. in the Fourth R. I., regt., 1800. He is said to have been an officer in the Continental Army (see Hist. of Glocester). In 1788, he voted against the adoption by Rhode Island of the new Constitution. He acquired considerable estate in northern Vermont, although he remained all his life in Glocester, where his father and grandfather resided. Esek and Mary had 16 chn. Oliver and Anne were counted in Scituate in the census of 1790, where their first five children were born. He had a small farm in Scituate. Between August, 1798 and 1803, the family migrated from Scituate to Madison County, N. Y., several years before the county was set off (Mar. 21, 1806) from old Montgomery County, and here in the wilderness on the shores of Hatches Lake and nr. what is now West Eaton, they settled on a 400-acre tract of land with only a few settlers and the Indians, with whom they became friendly, for neighbors. With their five sons, Paul, Esek, George, Jeremiah and Oliver, Jr., and one dau., Elizabeth, none of whom were yet twelve years of age, they started life anew in a home hurriedly built of logs and bark. Oliver was in his early thirties and Anne in her late twenties. They must have possessed the determined pioneering spirit of their ancestors which was so characteristic of the early settlers in central New York. Out of the forest they hewed a home-farm where they reared their family of thirteen children, two more sons and five daughters being born to them in their new home. Late in life, Oliver divided his farm among his children, and Oct. 7, 1831, acquired a 30-acre tract of land in Richland tp., to which he added more land on Aug. 30, 1847, two years before he died. His daughter Philena, and her husband, Brayton Slater, he being the son of pioneer settlers at West Eaton, settled nearby in Richland at the same time. Oliver and Anne made their home with this daughter in their advanced years. He lived to be eighty-two years of age and Anne passed away in her ninety-second year. In 1878, more than 250 of their descendants assembled on the old homestead for a family reunion. Since then similar gatherings have been held by their descendants nearly every year and in 1938, the twenty-seventh annual reunion was held. This record is truly worthy the family spirit. Oliver and Anne had 13 chn.: Paul, Esek, George, Jeremiah, Elizabeth, Oliver, Jr., Lydia, Pharley, Lucy, Isiah, Philena, Patty, Pauline.

VI—Susannah Wescott in 1783 was a member of Baptist Church at Ira, Vt., where she was counted in the census of 1790, living at home of her bro. Ziba.

V—Oliver Wescott (so spelled in old records), b-ab. 1738, d-af. 1799; m(1)-Rhoda ——, m(2)-Phebe ——. In 1776, with wife Phebe, he was living in Scituate, R. I. Four years later, June 16, 1780, he buys for thirty pounds, fifty acres of land in the Chippenhook section of Clarendon tp., Rutland County, Vt., from Capt. Abraham Salisbury, whose wife was Zilpha Westcott (app. 217). This farm adjoined the George Wescott farm at the southwest corner. Salisbury had been made captain of the local militia in 1777, and in 1781, Oliver served in his company for "the defense of the frontiers of Vermont." The company pay-roll shows he was paid for thirteen days service and eighteen miles. He was number 141 on a list of 392 men who before Feb. 2, 1781, had taken the freeman's oath in Clarendon. In the census of 1790, he is enumerated with two males over sixteen years of age (one of whom was himself) one male under sixteen, and two females over sixteen (females under sixteen were not counted). On March 13, 1790, Oliver sells land in Chippenhook to his nephew George Wescott, again Feb. 22, 1798, he sells land to Oziel Smith, and Mar. 26, 1799, sells to his son Johnson, both "of Clarendon," for one hundred dollars, "one certain tract of land or parcel of land lying and being in the west part of Clarendon (Chippenhook) * * north of James Eddy." Eddy's wife was Mary Salisbury, dau. Capt. Abraham and Zilpha (Westcott) Salisbury. Johnson Wescott on the following day, Mar. 27, 1799, conveys the same land by deed to his uncle Thomas, who, a year later, Apr. 4, 1800, sells it to Thomas Black. Issue of record to Oliver: Johnson, Ephraim, Hannah, Job, Phebe, Sarah, Mary, and probably others.

VI—Johnson Wescott, b-Scituate, R. I., ab. 1758-9; m-Clarendon, Oct., 1795, by Lewis Walker, J. P., his cousin, Rhoda Simonds (Simons), b-1776, d-Apr. 15, 1849; she is buried in East Hubbardton, Vt., where probably Johnson is also buried. Rhoda was dau. John and Sarah (Wescott) Simons, who, in 1797, were recorded with twelve children in Clarendon. When Johnston tp., R. I., was formed Mar. 6, 1759, and named in honor of Augustus Johnston, the attorney-general of the colony at the time, his surname was given to many children for their Christian name, the "t" eventually being dropped. Johnson Wescott probably so derived his name. He took the freeman's oath in Clarendon before Feb. 2, 1781, his name appearing as number 332 on the list. Being of age at this time, his birth would have occurred ab. 1758-9. He buys land in Clarendon, Feb. 9, 1798, from Otis Ide, and Mar. 26, 1799, he purchases for one hundred dollars, land from his father and sells it next day to his uncle Thomas Wescott. On Feb. 2, 1809, he sells the land he bought from Ide to Job Priest. There being no further records found of him in Clarendon, it is supposed in that year or soon thereafter he removed to Hubbardton, Rutland County, Vt. The statement is made in the "History of Pittsford" (Vt., 1872) that Johnson was born in Clarendon, which is, of course, in error, and also that "in the war of 1812 he enlisted as a soldier and served several months." (It appears more likely he served with his father in the militia in 1781; in 1812 he would have been over fifty years old.) Issue, of record: Oliver, Caleb, Gardner, Johnson Jr., and prob. others.

IV—Eleanor Westcott, b-Warwick, R. I., 1711, d-Cranston, R. I., p-1779; m-ab. 1731-2, William Stone, b-Warwick, 1712, d-Coventry, R. I., Feb. 21, 1786, third ch. and son of John (1675-1759) and Hannah (Barnes, 1679-1712, of the Rev. Thomas and Prudence Albee Barnes) Stone, of the first Hugh (b-England, 1638, d-Warwick, 1732) and (m-1665) Abigail (Burzecut, d-1723, of Peter and Mary Burzecut) Stone. Hugh Stone was a blacksmith by trade, as was his father-in-law, Peter Burzecut. He succeeded to the latter's business. The Warwick town council granted Burzecut an "aker adjoinge to the northerern end of Stukely Westcoutt's house lot" to induce him to "uphold the trade of a smith." In 1663, Westcott was one of a committee to lay out the acre of land for Burzecut, also land for a Towne House and a burial lot, all of which adjoined the Westcott "house lot." However, Burzecut, who was of Huguenot extraction, owned 259 shares as one of the original purchasers of "Shawomet," the Indian name by which old Warwick was known, and Mar. 4, 1650 was one of 28 "inhabitants" then entitled to share in the division of the 'common' land. He and Stukely Westcott each sued the other Nov. 27, 1656, but Feb. 2, 1657, they reached an amicable adjustment of their differences without the intervention of court or jury. While William Stone was still quite young, his father removed to a farm at Meshantituck, in Cranston. There he remained until 1779, when he went to Coventry, where he died. He was bur. at Scituate in the fam. burial ground of his son Jeremiah. Eleanor died in Cranston before the family removed to Coventry, but the exact date is unknown. Her husband is described as a man of industry, integrity, and much respected and beloved as a "kind husband, tender parent, and good neighbor." He was a captain in thte Providence County militia, 1746. William and Eleanor, who derived her Christian name from her grandmother, Eleanor England Westcott, had 5 chn.: William, Freelove, Jabez, Jeremiah, James.

VI—Westcott Stone, b-Cranston, R. I., 1761, d-Sept. 2, 1838; m-1804, Abigail ("Abbie") Smith, who d-Feb. 2, 1859, ae. 75-5-8. He first went to Abington, Pa., in 1806, and started clearing a 325-acre timber tract in what is now western Scott township, Lackawanna County, returning to Rhode Island for his family, which he brought back in the following year. He received a deed to the land in 1809. The land was first acquired by William Gray, who, in 1775, deeded it to John B. Wallace, who in turn deeded it to Major Westcott. Being a man of unusual activity, he pursued at the same time, the occupations of farming, physician and lumber merchant and was also a deputy sheriff. He built a grist mill and a saw mill in 1808, which were a great convenience to the new community. His grave is in the family burial plot on his old farm, the location of which he selected one day while horse-back riding with his son Earl. It is marked with an official insignia of the D. A. R., indicating he was a soldier of the Revolution. He also served in the early militia of the Abingtons, with the rank of major in 1808, and thus came to be known as "Major Westcott." Coventry on land owned by his grandfather Benjamin Westcott (WG., p. 180) and nr. site of Werden's meeting house, being near Coventry Center. He m-Jan. 24, 1802, Phebe Greene, b-Coventry, May 31, 1781, d-Coventry, Jan. 24, 1864, dau. John and Ruth (Matteson of Philip, soldier of the Revolution) Greene of Coventry, and sister of Pollonia, who m-James Stone and settled in Abbington, Pa. (For ancestry of Pollinia, see VI—James Stone, this app.) John Greene was a soldier of the Revolution, his widow receiving a pension. He was the son of Increase and Ruth (Greene) Greene, of John, James, the first "Surgeon" John Greene of Providence and Warwick. Phebe died on the sixty-second anniversary of her marriage. Asa went to live with his son Lowry in Willimantic after the death of Phebe, but dwelled the greater part of his life in Coventry. He was a farmer and mill-owner, served the town in various offices and was so highly regarded by his fellow townsmen as to be consulted frequently regarding their personal affairs. In form and features, he is said to have resembled more the Westcotts than the Stones. In the Providence Journal, Sept. 5, 1866, under the caption, "Stone Family Gathering," which was held on his old farm, is stated "the exercises were commenced by reading from an old family Bible, owned by the heirs of Asa Stone, and brought from England by Stukely Westcott, the companion of Roger Williams in his exile journey from Massachusetts to Rhode Island. With the descendants of Stukely Westcott, the family of Hugh Stone (emigrant) has been largely connected." (For accurate history, it must be stated that Stukely Westcott was not "the companion of Williams in his exile journey," but did join Williams in Providence two years later.—R. L. W.) This old Bible was handed down to Asa Stone from his mother, Lydia Westcott Stone. (See hist. elsewhere.) The Bible is now carefully preserved by the R. I. Historical Society. Lemuel and Anna migrated to the old Abington township in the Spring following their marriage, the first home in the new settlement being a log cabin. He later built a frame house which is still standing. At the time he left Rhode Island, he was an Ensign in the West Greenwich co., 3rd R. I. regt., and upon reaching the Abingtons was soon commissioned a lieut. of the local militia company. He was a carpenter by trade, but following farming in Abington, where he was chosen Justice of the Peace upon the incorporation of the town in 1806. He became a charter member of the first Baptist church formed in the section, and was also the first supt. of Sunday school there. IX—Edward Jencks Stone, b-Clark's Green, Pa., June 25, 1856, resided 1938 Waverly, Pa.; m-June 28, 1888, Anna May Whaling, b-Sept. 10, 1858, dau. Samuel and Elizabeth (Rice) Whaling, and granddau. Mark and Elisa Whaling of Abington tp. On the occasion in 1936 of an "Old Home Day" luncheon at the Waverly Fair, the Scranton "Republican" said of Edward J. that "as he grew from boyhood, his liking for mechanical work rather than farm tasks, was evidenced. Later, he went to Pittston to learn the trade of wagon making. After he served his apprenticeship, he went back to Waverly and started a wagon making and repair shop with his brother Pardon Stone. Together they patented and manufactured a spring support to hold wagon tongues off the ground. Automobiles and trucks soon made this product an antique, and with the decline of the wagon-making busines and the advent of bathrooms and modern plumbing, Edward J. turned to this last trade. He helped drill the wells and put up the windmills to supply the water for 'those newfangled homes with running water.' Always interested in labor-saving devices, he was one of the first families to have a gasoline engine to run the washing machine, and his one of the first homes in the Abingtons to be piped with acetylene gas, between the periods of oil lamps and electricity. Then came the era of steam heating, and he became a steam-fitter, inventing his own pipe-wrenches to suit the needs of the work. His interest in home water supply led him to an interest in water service on a community scale, and in 1917, he bought the Clark's Summit Water Company. Ten years later, this was sold to the Community Water Service Company, and he retired, although still to run a small water company in nearby Glenburn Park." He and his wife celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on June 28, 1938. Issue, 5 chn.: Mary W., Edward S., Howard I., Theodore J., Elizabeth L.

III—Stukely Westcott, 1672-1750; m-Priscilla Bennett, 1673-1754. In old land deeds at Warwick, are records of transactions he had with his bros. Jeremiah and Josiah in 1696, with John Warner, Jr., in 1704 and 1708, with his bro. Josiah again in 1708-9, with Robert Potter, in 1708, and John Gerardy in 1712. In 1715, when his son Josiah was twenty-one, he deeded land to him. It appears that his oldest bro. Jeremiah, Jr., having succeeded to his father's homestead in Warwick, Stukely became something of a leader of his four younger bros., Josiah, Samuel, William and Benjamin, in settling on farm tracts in the Meshanticut 1,000 acres, which, in 1700, were unallotted. These farms were along the Meshanticut creek running north-easterly from the Pawtuxet river at Natick. (See map, p. 16.) It is also probable the five bros. held "rights" in this land before it was allotted. Issue, 4 chn.: Josiah (not Joseph, as W. G., p. 172), Stukely, Freelove, Benjamin.

IV—Josiah Westcott, b-Old Warwick, Dec. 2, 1694, d-Cranston, Sept. 22, 1773; m-Feb. 28, 1719, Frances Clarke, b-Cranston, 1698, d-Aug. 16, 1775, dau. Jacob (b-England, 1668, d-Providence, 1754) and Ethelanah (Burton) Clarke, of Abraham Clarke who was a tailor in Bristol, England. When Jacob was eleven years of age, his father deceased, he bound himself, July 4, 1679, for ten years, to William Harris, then of Pawtuxet, R. I., one condition of the agreement being that Harris "in the end of his (Jacob) said terme shall give unto his said Apprentice foure acres of land in New England if the said Jacob Clarke, his apprentice, shall faithfully and honestly serve his said master dureing the said terme." Young Clarke seems to have faithfully and honestly served Harris, for in 1689, he was by deed of gift, given forty acres of land "in Providence Colony," instead of the four acres originally agreed upon, and to this Harris' dau. Howlong Fenner, added more land. (Ethelanah Burton's sister Hannah, b-1665, m-Timothy Carpenter, of Ephraim [1640-1700], of William and Elizabeth [Arnold, of first William] Carpenter; Ephraim Carpenter m[1]-ab. 1661, Susanna Harris, dau. William and Susanna Harris, emigrants to whom young Jacob Clarke bound himself, and m[2]-Dec. 3, 1777, Susanna, dau. William and Elizabeth England and younger sister of Eleanor, who m-Jeremiah, son of first Stukely Westcott.) Ethelanah Burton, b-1672, d-Mar. 5, 1757, was the fifth child of William (1714-) and Hannah (Wickes) Burton. Hannah Wickes, b-England, 1634, d-Warwick, pr. 1701, was dau. John Wickes, b-Staines, England, 1609, d-Warwick, Nov., 1675, who embarked at London on the "Hopewell," Sept., 1635, with his wife Mary, and their infant dau. Hannah. The graves of Josiah and Frances (W. G., p. 173) were plainly discernible in 1932, but had been practically abandoned by the authorities of Rhode Island. Issue: Priscilla, Ethelanah.

V—Priscilla Westcott, b-ab. 1720, d-af. 1797, m-by William Burton, J. P., Nov. 26, 1741, John Battey, Jr., b-Mar. 13, 1720, d-Warwick, Nov. 14, 1797, son John (m-Sept. 15, 1707) Margaret (Carr) Battey, of first Samson Battey of Jamestown, R. I., and one of the "proprietors" of East Greenwich, R. I., 1677. John and Priscilla resided Scituate tp., R. I., where their chn. were born. John, in his will, mentions wife Priscilla, grandson Caleb, son of his eldest son John, deceased; chn. of Joshua, deceased, namely Owen and Benjamin A.; granddau. Frances, wife of John Webb; dau. Frances, wife of Theophilus Blackmar; dau. Lydia, wife of Rhodes Fenner, deceased; ch. "of my dau. Mercy Clark, deceased"; dau. Sarah, wife of Gideon Austin; dau. Anne, wife of Thomas Henry; son of William Battey, who was "Amasa Bettey whom I brought up." William Burton, J. P., was the third cousin of Priscilla; he also married Ethelanah, her sister; thus two sisters married two Battey brothers. Issue, 11 chn.: John, Joshua, Margaret, Caleb, Priscilla, Frances, Lydia, Mercy, William, Sarah, Anne.

VII—James S. Westcott, b-Deerfield, 1798; m-Adeline Smith, b-1808, dau. Eben of N. Y. They probably lived on at least a part of the original farm of his grandfather Gardiner Westcott until 1845, in which year he sold his land there and five years later was counted in the census of 1850 at Hounsfield, with wife, Adeline, and six chn. Issue, pr. 1850: Martha, Rua, James, Emily, Susan, George.

VIII—Martha E. Westcott, b-1833; m-her third cousin, Ashel Westcott, Jr., of Ashel, Daniel, of pinoeer Gardiner Westcott. (For issue, see Ashel, this app.)

VIII—Rua S. Westcott, b-1834.

VIII—James A. Westcott, b-Sacket Harbor, 1837, d-1895; m-Mary Case, who pre-deceased her husband. Issue, 8 chn., prob. not in following order: Albert, Nina, Earnest, Charles, Arthur, William, Roy, Gertrude.

IX—Albert Westcott, b-1861. He was oldest of the chn. He became blind when three years of age. An old man 77 years of age, blind, hard of hearing, bent over with his years and possessing little of worldly goods, he attended the Westcott reunion at "Westcott Beach," nr. Sacket Harbor, in 1938, and with his constant companion, an old hand-organ, was kindly received by his kinspeople. Unm.

IX—Nina Westcott, resided 1938 Hartford, Conn.; m-James Courtney.

VII—Giles Westcott, b-Hounsfield tp., Jefferson County, Dec. 13, 1805, d-Arlington, O., Aug. 7, 1891; m-Jan. 11, 1831, Almira Sawyer, b-June 30, 1812, d-Sept. 12, 1891. From his obituary notice it is learned that "he moved from the place of his birth to Solon, Cuyahoga County, O., in 1834 and from there to a farm near Arlington, Hancock County, O., in 1845. Later, he moved to the village of Arlington. He and his wife were members of the Arlington M. E. Church for forty-five years. He clung to some habits formed in earlier days, for his children often told that he could tie no other than a sailor's knot (which suggests that his youth might have been passed as a sailor on Lake Ontario), and he long continued tilling his ground with a yoke of oxen after others had changed to teams of horses. He was a very meek, quiet man, but enjoyed the jokes and wit of others." Issue, 7 chn.: Mary, Eunice, Augusta, Nelson, Eliza, Alvira, Levi.

Appendix to Pages 198-199-200

IV—Oliver Westcott, b-Cranston tp., R. I., Sept. 5, 1720, d-Scituate tp., R. I., Jan. 20, 1795; m-Dec. 30, 1744, Susannah, dau. Joseph and Martha (Pray) Wilkinson, of Samuel, of the first Lawrence (d-1692) and (m-1649) Susannah (d-1692, dau. Christopher Smith of R. I.) Wilkinson. Lawrence Wilkinson was a lieut. in the army of Charles I. After the fall of that monarch and his estate being sequestrated, he came in 1645 to New England from Lancester, Durhamshire, England, and settled in Providence. Through his maternal line, Lawrence descended from Edward I. He was a deputy in Rhode Island. Oliver Westcott having passed his youth on his father Josiah's farm one and a half miles West of the present Oak Lawn railroad station in Cranston tp., and finding it too small to support all his brothers and sisters and himself, sought a livelihood elsewhere. What took him to the northwest corner of Scituate tp., does not appear, but it may be assumed that he was there by early 1744 when he was twenty-four years of age, and at the time, working on a farm for the Wilkinson family. In this family was a daughter Susannah. Oliver and Susannah were married in December, 1744, and eight years later, 1752, Susannah's father having died, his bro. Benjamin, sold the farm to Oliver. The deed was drawn and signed in that year, but was not recorded until 1756. Susannah's mother, Martha (Pray) Wilkinson, and Sarah Waterman were the witnesses. (The Waterman family lived closeby nr. Chepachet on Chopmist Hill.) Oliver and Susannah had two sons, John and Caleb. While both of them remained in Scituate, it appears the part of the old farm on which the house stood, fell to Caleb. All that is left of the original or probably the Wilkinson house, is an "old vine-covered chimney." The second house was succeeded by a third which was built before 1826. (See "Three Old Westcott Homesteads in Rhode Island," p. 21.) There is authority for the statement that there was a deed dated in 1696 in connection with this old farm. Such a deed would have been in the Wilkinson family. This old farm is in the northwest corner of Scituate township, five miles from the present village of North Scituate and four miles from Chepachet, just off route 102. When this route was built, the road was straightened out through a wooded land of the farm, hiding the house from the highway. There is an old family burying ground on the farm, but the graves are of a grandson and his posterity. The burial place of Oliver and Susannah is not known. They had 6 chn.: John, Prudence, Sybilla, Caleb, Mehitable, Phebe.

V—John Westcott, b-Scituate tp., Mar. 26, 1746, d-same, Dec. 26, 1831; m-Oct. 21, 1770, Amy Clark, b-Providence, Oct. 15, 1750, d-Mar. 26, 1814. He is called "Revd. John," having been presiding elder of Baptist churches in Scituate and Foster. His Bible, replete with records, was in 1938, in possession of Harrison R. Westcott, desc., of New Haven, Conn. From R. I. Hist. Soc. Collection, is the following: "By virtue of a Warrant at the Request of Sundry of the Proprietors of said (Westquanaug) Purchase Signed by John Westcot (sic) Esq Dated the 12th Day of March 1779," a meeting was called to be "held in the house of Fleet Brown in Scituate in said Purchase on the First of May 1779." In the warrant, Westcot, as "one of the States Justices of Peace in the town of Scituate" * * "warns said Owners" to attend. Issue, to John and Amy, 7 chn.: Susannah, Christopher, Stephen, Artemas, Charles, Josiah, George G.

I., Nov. 27, 1783, d-Oct. 5, 1873, dau. Capt. Dutee and Almy (Niles) Jerauld. Capt. Jerauld (b-East Greenwich, R. I., 1748, d-at sea, 1786) served in the Revolution as commander of R. I. troops. He was son of Dr. Dutee Jerauld, of Dr. James Jerauld (Jacques, French), first of the name in America. Almy Niles is said to have been a granddau. of Capt. Nathaniel Niles, grandson of Rev. John Niles, a Welshman, who came from Wales and settled in Braintree, Mass. Capt. Nathaniel Niles lived in Warwick. Christopher Westcott migrated from Rhode Island soon after 1800, to the town of Richfield, Otsego County, N. Y. This was some nineteen years before Richfield Springs was acclaimed a favorite resort. In 1816, he removed to Butler, Wayne County, N. Y., and later to Perrysburg, O., where he and his wife passed the remainder of their lives. While visiting relatives in Colorado, Feb. 2, 1900, she wrote a long letter to her "Aunt Alcy" (Field), and from this letter, the data of her family was gleaned. She was interested in family research. It is said that while in London, she was shown by Bishop Westcott, Lord Bishop of Durham Cathedral, a book over 400 years old in which records of early Wescotes in England are found. In her letter, she states that she found in the Newberry Library, Chicago, that the mother of Stukely Westcott was Damaris Stucley.

VIII—Susan Ellen Waterman, b-Cumberland Hill, R. I., Aug. 23, 1856, resided 1938 Manville, R. I., member S. S. W. D.; m-Manville, Oct. 3, 1889, Thomas Henry Handy, b-Manville, Mar. 12, 1863, second son Russell (b-Burrillville, R. I., Feb. 25, 1830) and (m-Dec. 24, 1857) Euphemia (Ketcham, of Dutchess County, N. Y.) Handy. Russell Handy was supt. of mills at Manville for thirty-seven years and made many improvements in machinery. He purchased a mill in Kinderhook, N. Y., and placed his sons Edward and Thomas in charge. After the mill was destroyed by fire, the brothers returned to Rhode Island and opened in Providence an office for selling patent improvements for spinning cotton invented by their father. In 1887, Russell bought the Lapham estate in Manville and built a mill for the manufacture of cotton plush in which he and his sons were pioneers. Patented mechanical inventions of Russell helped make the business a success. The plant was and still is called Contrexeville (named for the health resort of that name in eastern France, where the senior Handy twice journeyed in an effort to regain his health). Russell died Nov. 22, 1887, only a few months after the mill was put in operation. Edwin Handy then became president, in which office he continued until his death, May 1, 1904, and Thomas H. was treasurer. After the death of his father, Thomas H. was elected warden of the Emmanuel Episcopal Church, Manville, and as Junior Warden and later Senior Warden, has served on the vestry for a half century. For forty years, he was supt. of Sunday school and teacher of the Men's Bible class. Like his parents, Thomas H. was always interested in church work and was a member of the Churchmen Club for many years. He was a trustee of St. Andrew's Industrial school, Great Barrington, Mass., President of Woonsocket (R. I.) Trust Co. and member S. A. R. Through his mother, he descended from Richard Rogers and Timothy Ketcham, Rev. soldiers; also from Johannes Verveelan from Amsterdam, Holland, and Giseon Schaets from Leerdam, Holland, both early settlers of New Amsterdam (New York City), and through his father, from Jireh Ballou, Rev. soldier. Within sight of the Contrexeville mill, the home and estate, "The Breezes," of Thomas H. and Susan Ellen, have been the scene of pleasant gatherings of the Westcott kin of Rhode Island and Massachusetts. VI—Thomas Westcott, b-Providence tp., Sept. 24, 1750, d-killed in a grist mill at Mink Cove, Nova Scotia, Nov. 9, 1809 "in the 60th year of his age," ac. headstone at his grave in Baptist cem., Sandy Cove on Digby Neck, N. S. He was married twice, but name of his first wife has not been learned. She prob. d-R. I., ab. 1777. He m(2)-ab. 1779, Chloe Carpenter, dau. Dr. Caleb and Elizabeth (Wilson) Carpenter, natives of Providence, who first ab. 1776-7, removed to Guilford, Windham County, Vt. When Chloe "was about sixteen years of age," her parents appear to have been "in New York (State?)," as "about Christmas time, they drove across Massachusetts in a sleigh with their silver and other valuables, and probably first went to New Brunswick." Caleb Carpenter was a medical man and a Loyalist. The first wife of Thomas having prob. died soon after the birth of their son Jeremiah, he makes his will Sept. 25, 1778, in which he mentions "the hazards of the sea and prize money." He probably was about to engage in privateering. In the light of the old records, it appears probable that he and his bro. Zepheniah, inherited the pro-British ardor of their grandfather Samuel Westcott, who in his will, June 22, 1758, states he is then bound on an expedition against His Majesty's enemies, referring to what is now called the "French War." Thomas' will was not probated until June 5, 1786, he then having been absent from Rhode Island for eight years and was assumed to be dead. His uncle Samuel was appointed June 12, 1786, seven days after the will was probated, guardian of his only ch., Jeremiah, and June 12, 1787, when the son was fourteen years of age, Abedneg Potter was made his guardian. Jeremiah was of age as early as Jan. 2, 1792. That this Thomas of Rhode Island and the Thomas who was granted land at Sandy Cove, Digby County, N. S., Feb. 20, 1784, were the same person, is predicated upon the fact that the record of his death in Nova Scotia checks as to birth with the record in Rhode Island, also the evidence of his being a Loyalist in Rhode Island as well as in Nova Scotia and his disappearance from his native home. His desc., Bernard Havey (IX in this line), in 1937, when in the 95th year of his age, records that "Thomas Westcott came from New York and after stopping at Shelburne-Yarmouth (N. S.), settled in Digby Neck, and was killed in a grist mill at Digby." Thomas is recorded as a cooper and mariner in Providence and carpenter in Nova Scotia, 1786. Susanna Gorton, wife of Benjamin Barton, d-May 28, 1734, dau. Samuel and Mary (Maplet) Gorton, former b-Lancaster County, Eng., 1592, d-Warwick, R. I., 1677. Mary Maplet was dau. John and Mary Maplet, of Rev. John. Margaret, wife of Rufus Barton, m(2)-Walter Todd. Joseph Barton, husband of Mary Westcott, followed a seafaring life until the beginning of the Revolutionary War. While in command of a vessel at one of the islands of the West Indies, he fractured one of his legs. A surgeon of the place decided the leg must be amputated and every preparation was made for the operation, when Joseph, in the most peremptory manner, put a stop to all further proceedings in that direction, declaring he would return home with both legs or not at all. Consequently, his leg was preserved and fully restored to its original soundness. At the beginning of the war, he gave up the sea and joined his brother's regt. of R. I. troops. He was a volunteer in the daring expedition led by his cousin William Barton, to capture Maj.-Gen. Prescott, and served in the war as a lieutenant. He was later known as Major Barton. At the close of the war, or Apr., 1790, he with his wife and family, removed to Chester, Windsor County, Vt., where he purchased land and carried on farming until about 1795, when he was attacked by an illness which incapacitated him for work during the remainder of his life, disqualifying him for further usefulness. Joseph and Mary had 6 chn.: Caleb, Martha, Augustus O., Maria T., Jabez, Theodore.

VI—Caleb Barton, b-Providence, May 2, 1775, d-Salem, Mass.,. Sept. 5, 1820; m(1)-1798, Mary Ward of Chester, Vt., she d-1799; m(2)-Rachel Thompson, b-Rindge, N. H., 1779, d-Salem, Mass., Mar. 4, 1824, dau. Richard and Rachel (Barnes) Thompson, of William and Abigail (Jones) Thompson, of Deacon James and Abigail (Hamlet) Thompson, of Lieut. James and Hannah (Walker) Thompson, of Simon and Mary (Converse) Thompson, of James (1593-1682) and Elizabeth Thompson, who came to New England with Gov. Winthrop in 1630. (See "Memorial of James Thompson" [of Charlestown and Woburn, Mass.], 1887, by Leander Thompson.) Caleb was fifteen years of age when his father removed to Vermont. When eighteen years of age, he started teaching school in the winters and assisting his father on the farm during the summers. He left Chester in 1809 and settled at Leominster, Mass., taking his father and mother with him. Here he purchased the furniture, good-will, etc., of a public house from Simeon Boyden (afterwards of the Tremont House, Boston, and Astor House, New York), which he continued to operate until Apr., 1813, when he sold out and took a newly-erected hotel in Franklin, Mass. The following March 1, 1814, he removed to Salem, Mass., having purchased the Salem Hotel, which he continued until his death. He held a number of public offices and commanded a company of cavalry in Salem at the time of his death. Issue, 5 chn.: By Mary: Jabez; by Rachel: Jabez, John, Joseph, Mary.

VII—Jabez Ward Barton, 1799-1799.

VII—Jabez Ward Barton, b-Chester, Vt., Sept. 20, 1802, d-Waverly, Mass., Nov. 1, 1888; m-July 14, 1822, Rebecca Farmer Rogers of Billerica, Mass., b-1800, d-Feb. 15, 1889. As a boy, Jabez was employed first in a dry goods store in Boston, and then on several sea voyages. He was eighteen years of age when his father died, and was called home to take charge of the Salem hotel, and to look after his mother, his two younger brothers and a baby sister. He was a member of the Salem Light Inf. and also of a company Hussars. When nineteen, he was commissioned a brigade-major, and as such performed duty in the reception given to Gen. Lafayette at Boston in 1824. He opened the first theatre in Salem and conducted it for several years. A line of stage coaches was run between his hotel and Wilde's hotel at Boston. Leaving Salem, he operated the hotel at Lynn Mineral Springs until 1835, when he took the management of the new Maverick House at East Boston. The hotel became a summer resort for fashionable Bostonians and a year-round house for many guests. Notable dinners were given here under his direction, among them the Cunard dinner in 1840 at the opening of the first line of steamers from England to Boston, and the great dinner in the same year, to Daniel Webster by the merchants of Boston, which, with plates laid for 2,300 guests, was served in a tent facing the hotel. In 1841, Major Barton assumed charge of the old Albion Hotel, Beacon and Tremont Streets, Boston, which became the headquarters for the literary, artistic, fashionable and social life of the period. Here Emerson, Longfellow, Hawthorne, Whipple, and others, gathered weekly and dined. The famous dinner to Charles Dickens in 1842, was served under his direction. In 1854, he left the Albion, whose owner wished to convert it into other uses. In 1856, he became manager of the Coolidge House, then a new family hotel in Boston, where he remained until 1872, in which year he retired to live with his son Samuel, in Waverly, Mass. He was called "the prince of inn-keepers." Hawthorne, in one of his note-books, speaks of him as "a very Lord Chesterfield in manners." He was a member of Columbia Lodge, F. & A. M., Boston, and performed official duties at the laying of the corner stone of the City Hall, Boston. He belonged to and filled all the offices, including Past Grand of the Suffolk Lodge of Odd Fellows. He was an honorary member of the Boston Chess Club. Thomas Tibbles, pioneer and politician of Nebraska. After graduation in 1890, Herbert Bates taught English in the Uni. of Nebraska, and while there he wrote his "Songs of Exile" (published 1896 by Copeland & Day). He also wrote stories and poems for the Youth's Companion, the Chapbook and other magazines. In 1897, he began teaching in the Manual Training High School of Brooklyn, N. Y., and remained there as head of the English department until his death. He was prominent in the education world, both for his lectures and articles and his books. In the National Council of Teachers of English, he was for years, the chairman of the committee on home reading. He was the editor of many English textbooks. His most valuable contribution to his field was his "History of English Literature" (published 1918), which is widely used in secondary schools and colleges. He had a great love for the sea, and his vacations were spent at his summer home in Buck's Harbor, Me., where he delighted in boating and sketching. Among his many masterly achievements, there were none perhaps which better memorialize his accomplishments than his brilliant translation of Homer's Odyssey (published 1929), which he did not live to see published. Under the caption of "A Poet and His Songs of Exile, a Memorial to An American Scholar," the Boston Transcript of Jan. 27, 1932, pays a high tribute to Herbert Bates. Issue: Owen, Alan.

IV—Ezekiel Westcott (erroneously given in W. G. as V generation), b-ab. 1701; m-Aug. 17, 1718, Mary Dyer, dau. Edward (b-1670) and Mary (Greene) Dyer, of Samuel and Ann (Hutchinson) Dyer, of William and Mary Dyer. Ann Hutchinson was dau. Capt. Edward. In 1733, Ezekiel's father gave him sixty acres of land, part of the home farm lying West of the Pochasset river. This land he sold in 1734 and removed to Scituate tp. From here in 1744, he enrolled in the train band of Providence County. He was enumerated at Scituate in 1744 census when his fam. consisted of four persons. However, by that year all his known chn. had married and four of them soon settled in Clarendon tp., Rutland County, Vt., where the surname was usually recorded "Wescott." Issue, 5 chn.: Zilpha, Sarah, James, Ezekiel, Penelope.

V—Zilpha Westcott (by some called "Sophia"); m-ab. 1760-1, Abraham Salisbury "of Scituate," and by 1770, settled in Clarendon, Vt., with four chn. Two more chn. were born to them there. Abraham was number 31 of those who by 1781 had taken the oath in Clarendon. On first page of first book of Clarendon town records, a deed is recorded in which Joseph Williams sells "100 acres of land to Abraham Salisbury of Clarendon on Otter Creek, and in the original rights of Seth Chace (Chase)." The deed, dated Apr. 9, 1770, he signs with his mark. In 1777, Salisbury hastily formed a militia company among the settlers of Clarendon, Wallingford, Rutland and Pittsford tps. for protection against the British foraging detachments, and became its captain. His company was again called out in 1781 for "the defense of the frontiers of Vermont." Late in life, Capt. Salisbury removed to N. Y. State. Issue, 6 chn.: Sarah, Mary, Phebe, Gardner, Ezekiel, Abraham.

VI—Sarah Salisbury, b-Scituate, R. I., Nov. 23, 1761.

VI—*Mary Salisbury, b-Scituate, Nov. 16, 1763, d-Vt., 1829; m-James Eddy of Clarendon. They were Baptists, as was her mother, but Capt. Salisbury was a Methodist. Eddy purchased land in Clarendon in 1801 from Jeremiah Wescott (app. 156), but prior to 1781, he took the freeman's oath there. Issue, 10 chn.: James, Peleg, Ezekiel, Zephannah, Sophia, Hannah, Zilpha, Mary, Nancy, Sophia (again). Of issue: Zephannah.

VI—Isaac Howard, b-Scituate tp., R. I., 1766; m-Jemima Tarbox. Removed with his father and step-mother to Charlton, Mass., before 1784, and before July, 1797, to Columbus, Chenango County, N. Y. Later, settled nr. boundary line of Erie and Warren counties, Pa., while his half-brother Thomas, remained at Columbus.

VI—Sarah ("Sally") Howard, b-Scituate tp., 1768-9; m-William Austin, and settled at Clarendon, Vt., where Nov. 27, 1798, they purchased the farm of her uncle Ezekiel Westcott from his widow. Issue: One son, 2 daus.

V—James Westcott; m-ab. 1764, Lydia Spink, and settled in Clarendon,

* James Eddy, who 1932 resided Wallingford, Vt., is said to desc. from Mary Salisbury Eddy.

Vt., prob. pr. outbreak of the Revolution. There, Feb. 19, 1776, their third child William, was born. James appears among the earliest names of the 392 men who previous to Feb. 2, 1781, had taken the freeman's oath at Clarendon, being number 81 on the list. From the company pay-roll it is learned that James served in 1781 in Capt. Abraham Salisbury's co. of militia and was paid for thirteen days and eighteen miles, which suggests he was at Castleton, Vt. Again, in Oct., 1781, he was paid for ten days in Capt. Israel Hurlburt's company. On Sept. 14, 1781, he purchased from James Rice, a tract of land in Chippenhook section of Clarendon tp., which he owned as late as 1809. He was counted in the census of 1790 at Clarendon with five sons under sixteen years of age and two daughters. There is a treasured tradition in his posterity that he was first to open a slate quarry in Vermont. Issue, far as known, 6 chn.: Ezekiel, James, William, Ezekiel (again), Thomas, Eldredge, 2 daus.

Lyman and Elizabeth (Wood) Dean, natives of Sharon, Conn., who were early settlers in Savannah. William and Huldah lived on Howland Island nr. Savannah. This island is now a State Conservation Park. With their five-horse team and covered wagon, they left Savannah in March, 1857, and passing through Canada, arrived in Bangor in three weeks. They settled on a heavily timbered 120-acre tract of land at Bangor Center, where they passed the remainder of their lives. Some of the oak, walnut and whitewood trees being of enormous size, it was a considerable task to fell them, clear the land and prepare it for crops. They brought what furniture they could in the "prairie schooner," shipping the rest to Kalamazoo, then the nearest railroad station. Between Kalamazoo and Bangor Center at the time, only a blazed trail led the way through the dense forest. Their toil, trials and privations and their frolics, bees and hunting exploits were the experience of the settlers in those pioneering days, carrying on with the spirit of the earlier pioneers "back East." V—Ezekiel Westcott, d-between 1794-8; m-Mary ——, who d-Clarendon, Vt., Mar. 12, 1808. They were also among the early settlers at Clarendon. First record there of him is Sept. 14, 1781, when he bought land from his brother-in-law, Christopher Howard, husband of his sister Penelope. On July 7, 1794, he was deeded land by Capt. Abraham Salisbury, whose wife, Zilpha Westcott, was a sister of Ezekiel. The land comprised twenty acres bounded (in part) "beginning at the maple stump standing in the northwest corner of Christopher Howard's land * * and till it comes to the northwest corner of James Westcott's land" (his brother). Ezekiel signs this deed with his mark, Sarah Westcott being one of the two witnesses. Four years later, Nov. 27, 1789, Mary, who is mentioned in deed as "widdow," sells the land to William Austin, whose wife was a niece of Ezekiel. To this deed, Christopher Howard was one of the witnesses. Known issue: David.

IV—Penelope Westcott, b-Cranston, R. I., Oct. 9, 1718, twin of Experience, d-Oct. 1, 1808; m-ab. 1740, Jeremiah Knight, "esquire, of Cranston," b-Dec. 23, 1719, d-June 23, 1800, son Richard, Jonathan, first Richard of Newport, 1648. Jeremiah and Penelope are buried in a cem. at Knightsville which is on a part of what originally was the farm of her uncle Stukely Westcott (of Jeremiah, Stukely). Here her uncle and his wife and their son Stukely and his wife, are buried. This uncle Stuely left the farm to his son Benjamin, who, in 1765, sold it to his kin, Zorobabel Westcott (Robert, Stukely), and in 1774, Zorobabel sold it to Jeremiah and Penelope, who lived on the farm until their death. The old burying ground probably dates from 1736, when Stukely, Jr., died, but with the death of Jeremiah and Penelope, it became known and is still locally known as the old Knight's cemetery. It was in a fair state of preservation in 1938. Issue to Jeremiah and Penelope, 4 chn.: Tabitha, Hannah, Nehemiah, Dinah.

However, he attempted a come-back in 1834 and 1836 but was defeated in a close vote.

IV—Amos Westcott, b-Cranston tp., R. I., then tp. Providence, 1722; d-Killingly, Conn., Jan. 3, 1806; m-ab. 1748, Mary ——, who d-Killingly, ae. 85 years. Soon after their marriage, they settled on a farm in Scituate tp., R. I., where they are of record in 1752. Soon following this year, they sold out and removed to a farm in Johnston tp., which farm they sold in 1773. In 1795, in Cranston tp., he made a deed in which he mentions his son Reuben. At this time, he was seventy-three years of age, and went to live with their son Amos, then in Killingly, where he and Mary are bur. Issue, 6 chn.: Reuben, Abraham, Cynthia, Amos, Mehitable, Mary.

V—Reuben Westcott (see W. G., pp. 407-8-9), b-Cranston tp., ab. 1750; m-by Elder Elisha Greene, Feb. 21, 1773, [5]Hannah ("Nabby") Greene, b-Nov. 16, 1754, d-Fairfield, Conn., 1802, dau. Elder Elisha Greene, b-1728 ([4]Elisha, Sr., [3]James, [2]James, "Surgeon" [1]John Greene of Providence and Warwick), and his wife, Hannah Gorton, dau. Edward and Hannah (Mattheson) Gorton and granddaughter of Samuel Gorton, one of the "Proprietors" of Shawomet (Warwick), 1642. Reuben is called "the gunsmith of Cranston." However, at the time of his marriage, he is recorded as "of Pomfret, Conn.," as mentioned in deed. An old family record states that "Grandfather's father (who would have been this Reuben) was a gunsmith by trade. He was very ingenius. Where he lived, he rigged up a shop, bored out logs to make a pipe to carry water to an over-shot wheel; rigged up boring bars and lathes to turn out gun barrels. He once made a very fine rifle, the stock inlaid with silver, and sold it for $100.00. Later on, he built a flour mill and ran it for a number of years. He contracted asthma from working in this mill and finally died of it. His first name was Reuben." Being about twenty-five years of age when the Revolution broke out and a gunsmith, he no doubt rendered important service to the troops, but no such record has been found. Issue, 13 chn.: Gorton, Cynthia, Mary, Reuben, Jr., Dexter, James, Suky, Abigail, Mary (again), Penelope, Marsena, Suky (again), Arthur.

Christopher and Waity (Potter) Knight of Cranston, Christopher prob. desc. first Richard Knight; m(2)-June 8, 1823, Elizabeth Hull, b-Aug. 22, 1781. He and Waity lived in Foster tp. until 1809 when they settled on a tract of land nr. Newport, Herkimer County, N. Y. This farm which they bought in 1813, was on the highway "leading from the village of Newport to the town of Norway, containing 51 acres and a half and two-tenths part of an acre." It was part of lot number 53 in the second allotment "of the Royal grant." This farm Gorton and Waity sold May 7, 1817, for $1,400, to Ezra Pearce, and that fall, removed to Truxton, where Waity died five years later (1822), eighteen days following the birth of a dau. They are buried in a cemetery on the old State road below or south of Oxford, N. Y. According to Revolutionary War records, Amos was living in Thompson when in August, 1776, he volunteered as fifer and served three months in Capt. Samuel May's co., Col. Elisha Mowry's regt., R. I. troops, being discharged in Nov., 1776. He remained in Thompson until 1785, the year he was married, and then settled in Pomfret, Conn., where Abigail and he lived four or five years, then removing to Gloucester, R. I., where they remained two years. They again moved, this time to Killingly, where they resided until 1810-11 when they migrated to and settled nr. Norwich, N. Y., where both died. It is recorded (W. G., p. 182) that Amos went from Norwich to Cranston, R. I., in 1802 to settle the interest of Dorcas Westcott Edwards, who was then living in Norwich, in the estate of her father Joseph. It may be surmised that Amos was then in Norwich prospecting for a new location, as at the time. he had several sons nearing the age when they could work on a farm. Thomas B. and Ellen (Butler) Williams of London, Eng. Irving B. was one of those earnest, hard-working youths of the old school. When seventeen years of age, he started as a water-boy for the Delaware & Hudson railroad. When twenty-six years old, while a brakeman for this road, he met with a serious accident, which caused the loss of his right arm, injury to a foot and other injuries, which incapacitated him for further work. However, undaunted, he applied for the position of a gate-tender at a street crossing, and for many years was a familiar figure at the Dean Street crossing in Scranton. Securing permission from the railroad officials, he made shoes as a side occupation, while attending to his duties at the crossing. Through thrift, he erected two houses which were free of debt at his death. Issue: William, Raymond.

G., p. 230). The interesting old homestead which has been owned by his branch of the family for nearly two and a half centuries (see pictures of "Three Old R. I. Westcott Homesteads"), was visited by more than a hundred Westcotts at the time of the tercentenary celebration in 1935 and has since witnessed other gatherings. Closeby the house, an enormous tree spreads its huge branches over the house and a large area of the lawn. The base of the tree is 24 feet in circumference and many of its branches are as large as full-grown trees. It was uprooted by the gale of 1815, replanted and withstood the great hurricane of September, 1938, which claimed so many hundreds of lives and caused damage into the millions of dollars. Dr. Niles Westcott was one of the organizers of the S. S. W. D. and its first treasurer.

VI—Valorus Westcott, b-Cranston tp., R. I., Nov. 13, 1803, d-Seekonk, Mass., July 2, 1872; m-Mar. 25, 1827, Charlotte Perry, b-Lebanon, Mass., Nov. 9, 1803, d-May 2, 1888, oldest of nine chn. of Jabez (b-Monument, now Bourne), Mass., June 18, 1781, d-Feb. 6, 1835) and Mercy (Phinney, d-Mar. 6, 1865) Perry, of John and Abigail (Swift) Perry, of John (1717-), John (1686), John (1656-1727), of Ezra (b-Devon, Eng., 1625, d-Monument, Oct. 16, 1689) and (m-1650-1) Elizabeth (Burgess, 1631-1717) Perry. *Ezra Perry came on the ship "Lion" from Devon to Boston, 1632, with his father, John (1604-1674), his step-mother Sarah (his mother being Johannah Holland), his bro. Edward (1630-1695), and two sisters. The family settled in Roxbury, Mass., where the father was made freeman, 1633. Some ten years later, the two sons moved to Sandwich (Monument, later Bourne). Elizabeth Burgess was dau. Dr. Thomas and Dorothy Burgess. Dr. Burgess, in 1652, was granted a large acreage of land in recognition of his public services, and later, sold the western part of it to his daughter's husband. Here Ezra and Dorothy remained until their death. His headstone may still be seen "at ye ordinary place of burring" —the old "Town Burying Ground"—at Monument. Their four sons, Ezra, Jr., John, Samuel and Benjamin, had their homes on this land until John's death, 1727, when the property was divided and sold. Jabez Perry removed from Monument to Lebanon village, Mass., where he set up a blacksmith shop and where his first ch., Charlotte, was b-1803. He was partly deaf and was killed at Perrin's Crossing, the first year the railroad was opened from Providence to Boston. Mercy Phinney was dau. John and Abigail (Bliss) Phinney. Jabez was evidently of the old puritan type, strict and disciplinary, for it is recorded that Charlotte left home to work in the mills at Arkwright, R. I., where she met and married Valorus Westcott. Issue, 3 chn.: Jane, Valorus, William.

VII—Jane Frances Westcott, b-June 18, 1828, d-Oct. 6, 1853, bur. Rumford (nr. Providence), R. I.; m-Capt. Samuel Perry of New Bedford, Mass., b-July 5, 1838, d-Nov. 29, 1853. Issue: Samuel, d-y., 1853.

VII—Valorus Perry Westcott, b-Arkwright, R. I., Sept. 18, 1830, d-Pawtucket, R. I., Nov. 6, 1905; m(1)-Jan. 3, 1854, Emily Cranston Williams, b-June 12, 1830, d-June 1, 1862, desc. Valorus worked on his father's farm until 1849, when news of the discovery of gold in California reached him. At the age of nineteen, he set sail Nov. 30, 1849, on the bark "Walter", and Mar. 26, 1850, 147 days later, arrived in San Francisco. Unsuccessful in his quest for gold, he broke camp and returned home by the way of Panama. Soon after the breaking out of the Rebellion, he removed with his wife and two small children to Pawtucket, where he entered business with his uncle, George B. Perry, in the manufacture of hames. The demand for hames fell off after the close of the war, and Valorus entered into the toy business. He later removed to Boston, starting in the meat business, but his partner absconded to Canada and with two more small children, he returned to his farm to live, but engaged also in the tennis racquet business at Kent's Mills in Hebron, Mass. A number of years later, he removed to Pawtucket, where he started the tennis business for the R. Bliss Mfg. Co. He was with them until he retired. Issue, by Emily: Frank, Henry; by Lucie: Emilie, Valorus Stukely.

Priscilla Hewitt, b-Aug. 6, 1763, d-Ballston Spa, May 23, 1839, dau. Reuben and Hannah (Hakes) Hewitt of Stonington. She m(2)-Joshua B. Aldridge, 1768-1840. An old (1784) "map of that portion of the *Manor of Rensselaerwyck lying East of the Hudson River", shows the persons to whom many of the early lots were surveyed East of the Kinderhook Creek and Joseph Westcott is named among them. He was in that section by 1778 when he had a store in Stephentown, and in 1780, he enlisted in the Albany (now Rensselaer) County militia. He is said to have gone to the nearby Berkshire hills before his parents (1777-80). Aug. 27, 1787, Stephen Van Rensselaer deeds to "Joseph Westcot of Little Hoosic, merchant, for 5 shillings lawful money, State of New York, two certain farms, Pieces or Parcels of Land situate in town agreed to be called Stephentown (probably for Van Rensselaer's Christian name, Stephen), called and known by the names of Lott 39 and 40, 223 acres and 25 rods of Land and more particularly described in two different mortgages bearing Date after the Day of Date hereof". However, Westcott evidently owned or leased land as early as Oct. 10, 1786, for that date an old deed mentions "the southwest corner of Joseph Westcott's lot at Little Hoosic". "Aug. 9, 1773, Catherine Van Rensselaer, widow and relict of Stephen Van Rensselaer, Esq., to Benjamin Babcock of Little Hoosic, leases land for 13 years; annual rental 12 skipples Winter wheat." Mar. 7, 1788, this lease was cancelled, and Babcock deeds 93 acres, 7 rods, to Joseph Westcott of Stephentown, same date. Sept. 17, 1789, deeds lot 320, to Joseph Westcott of Stephentown. Various subsequent land deeds were made to Westcott, the last of record being Feb. 3, 1794, the year before he died, and in this deed he is called "merchant of Troy, Rensselaer County, N. Y." The land conveyed was in Stephentown tp., same county, and mentions where "said Joseph Westcott's house stands" and "by the storehouse of said Joseph Westcott." His widow, Priscilla, having m(2)-Joshua B. Aldridge, Feb. 8, 1799, quit claims her dower rights to land in Stephentown tp. Some of his posterity has dropped the final "t" in spelling the family name.  Killiaen Van Rensselaer, original patroon or proprietor of the "colonie of Rensselaerwyck", in 1630 and subsequently, purchased land, which in 1637, formed a tract of 48 miles by 24, extending from the immediate vicinity of Fort Orange (now Albany, N. Y.) over the greater part of the present counties of Albany, Rensselaer and Columbia. His great-grandson, Stephen, married Catherine Livingston (dau. Philip), and following his death, Catherine and later, their son, Stephen, Jr., 1764-1839, leased and deeded much of the land of present Rensselaer County, N. Y. This son Stephen, at his own expense, had the first geological surveys of the county made by Prof. Amos Eaton of Albany.

Appendix to Pages 235-6

VI—Arnold Wescott, b-Stonington, Conn., Mar. 7, 1757, d-on his farm nr. Berlin, Rensselaer County, N. Y., Dec. 25, 1842; m-ab. 1778, Elizabeth Smith of Stonington, who d-af. Nov., 1850, and before May, 1851. His Christian name was derived from his maternal grandmother, Elizabeth Arnold Wells. He was about twenty years of age when his parents removed from Rhode Island to a large farm tract on "Stafford Hill," locally known nr. Cheshire. About a year later, he was married and started wedded life on a farm tract nr. Petersburg, adjacent to Berlin. This was in the old Van Rensselaer patent, originally called (1630), "the colonie of Rensselaerwyck." In 1802, he then being the oldest of the living brothers, Joseph having died in 1795, he acted for them and his sisters in settling the estate of their father by selling the homestead and farm nr. Cheshire to his younger brother, Reuben (W. G., p. 49). His chn. who remained in Berlin tp., spelled the family name as he did, without the middle "t." The four sons who settled in Herkimer County, N. Y., retained the original spelling. In the old records filed in the Court House at Troy, N. Y., the name is spelled Westcott, Wescott, Westcot and Westcoat. Arnold's farm in Berlin tp. is described in a quit claim of 1843 as "bounded East by land of Jonathan Burdick, South by land of James Godfrey, West by land of Leonard L. Walker and Daniel Lewis, and North by land of Daniel Lewis, all the farm on which Arnold Westcott, deceased, had possessed when living." It contained 78 acres, 36 perches, as described in lease from Stephen Van Rensselaer to Joshua Davis, made Apr. 14, 1801. "Which lease handed over to said Burton H. Himes, excepting 16 acres which was that with 10 acres additional conveyed by Lucinda Westcott to Daniel P. Hull which 10 acres Hull conveyed to Oliver Wescot. Van Rensselaer was then "proprietor Manor Rensselaerwyck." (See Joseph, this app. 235.) Arnold died intestate and letters of administration were granted, Feb. 22, 1843, to his oldest son, "Oliver Westcoat of Berlin." Inventory was filed Mar. 4, 1843, at Court House, Troy. The papers mention wid. Elizabeth and 13 chn., but do not name them. However, records of quit claims of the chn. to their father's estate, also filed at Troy, and records at Trenton, N. Y., and the known year of birth of some of the chn., make it reasonably certain that the issue, all of age in 1851, were: Elizabeth, Oliver, Charles, Russell, Edwin, Avery, Lucinda, Anna, Gardner, Malinda, Lucinda (again), Abigail, Phila, William; all b-Berlin.

VII—Elizabeth Westcott, b-Mar. 14, 1789, d-July 17, 1879; m(1)- —— Coon; m(2)-Norman Wolcott, b-July 25, 1808, d-Oct. 27, 1890. Norman and Elizabeth had a handsome monument erected on the plot in Wolcott cem. nr. Trenton, N. Y., where they are bur. No known issue.

VII—Oliver Wescott, b-1780; m-Acenith ——. He continued throughout his life to live on his father's farm nr. Berlin, and was administrator of his estate. On Oct. 9, 1854, he executed a quit claim of land to Burton H. Himes. In the years of 1843 to 1854, he engaged in settling his father's estate. He was appointed June 2, 1851, administrator of the estate of his sister Lucinda (there were two sisters named Lucinda; see second one), in the letters of administration it being stated she was "survived by no father, no mother, but twelve brothers and sisters," indicating her mother died between Nov., 1850 (when the mother issued an order for wool) and May 7, 1851, when Lucinda died. James T. Main "of Berlin and Troy, N. Y.," who was the father of the wife of Oliver, Jr., was a signatory to the letters of administration. Issue: Oliver, Jr.

VI—Stukely Westcott, Jr., b-Coventry, R. I., July 23, 1769, d-Canton, St. Lawrence County, N. Y., Oct. 27, 1865, and is bur. in old Olin fam. cem. on crossroads some five miles from Canton. He died intestate and his sons, John and Stukely, were appointed Dec. 9, 1865, administrators of his estate. It appears to have fallen to John to alone settle the estate of his father, for in possession of John's grandson, Arthur Jesse Westcott of Massena, N. Y., in 1938, were receipts given him in 1866, by the following for their share of their grandfather Stukely's estate: Alanson C., Henry H., Alma A. (Olin), Henry Smith Westcott, Polly A. (Olin), Julia (Spencer), Truman Westcott, Elmina M. (Spencer), Lydia (Carr), Lucy M. (Berry), Harriet O. (Whitford), Powell S. Westcott, Samantha L. (Kelly). Stukely was not yet ten years of age when his parents removed from Rhode Island and settled nr. Cheshire in the Berkshire hills of western Massachusetts at what was then and is still locally known as "Stafford's Hill," Joel Stafford, for whom the locality was named, being a distant relative. He was married before he became of age and settled on a farm given him by his father, which farm was located at Savoy, closeby his father's homestead. He was living in Savoy as late as 1802. In records of old Baptist Church at Cheshire, under date Jan. 31, 1801, is this entry: "Brother Stukely Westcott of Savoy, and (his) Sister Lydia, and his wife, were received by letter," they having previously belonged to the church at Windsor. In 1810, he was living at Charlotte, Vt. Soon after 1835, he removed to northern New York, where his sons Dyer and John, were already settled. There, Jan. 19, 1837, he purchased a large farm on old state road two and a half miles out of Canton, but in 1841, he was living in Addison, Addison County, Vt., from where, in 1847, he deeded farm to his son and namesake, Stukely. In 1859, when ninety years of age, he wrote from Canton that "he had not been confined to the house for three years, and his chief business was taking good care of himself; walking as much as a mile a day." He was married three times; first to Lydia Greene, wid. Levi Banks of Lanesboro, Mass., and a desc. of "Surgeon" John Greene of Warwick, R. I., who with the emigrant Stukely Westcott, was one of the thirteen original proprietors of the Providence Plantations, 1638. Lydia, mother of all his chn., b-Dec. 22, 1771, d-Aug. 18, 1801. He m(2)-Mary Hanks, wid. Henry Waterman; m(3)-Clarissa Cordelia Mather, b-Cheshire, Jan. 12, 1772, d-Canton, Dec. 18, 1844. Clarissa was wid. of Rev. Lemuel Covell, by whom, in 1800, she had dau., Julia Ann Covell, who m-Stukely, son of Stukely and Lydia, and thus she became her own mother's stepdaughter. In 1810, he was living with his father in Charlotte, Vt., where he was married, and then settled in Chester, Vt. A younger bro. John, having settled in St. Lawrence County, about 1816, Dyer followed him some years later, settling on farm nr.

Canton, which farm he purchased Jan. 31, 1831. This farm adjoined that which his father purchased in 1837. Here he passed the remainder of his life, passing away before his father. Of chn. of Dyer and Harty, a desc. writes they were "proud, just, honorable, a credit to the parents who bore them." VII—Benjamin Westcott, b-Savoy, Berkshire County, Mass., Aug. 26, 1793. He twice married, and died soon after second marriage, sometime in the 1870's. Settled in Ohio. He was a spirtualist. It is said of his second wife that "she managed him."

VII—John Westcott, b-(one auth. says Savoy, Mass., another Hebron, N. Y.) Sept. 7, 1795, d-Canton, N. Y., Apr. 4, 1872; m(1)-ab. 1816-7, Polly Powell, b-Charlotte, Vt., Aug. 29, 1796, d-1823; m(2)-Druzilla Read of Cheshire, Mass., b-Dec. 28, 1791, d-Dec. 14, 1872. About the time John became of age, 1816, he had been living with his father in Charlotte, Vt., for a number of years, and in or about that year, was married to Polly Powell, native of that place. Her father was Samuel Powell, who, at the time of his death, was of Lanesboro, Berkshire County, Mass. Powell died intestate, leaving land in Charlotte. By agreement, Nov. 19, 1819, this land was divided between his daughters, Polly and Betty, and John signed the agreement with them. Polly, in her "journal," Apr. 23, 1820, writes of small-pox being prevalent and the illness of two of her children. Two weeks later, May 3, she writes her health is some better; mentions "a considerable drouth" just broken by "a refreshing shower." May 10th: "This is the blooming month of the year. O! that grace might be blooming in my soul and as the years of life wears away gradually ripening into immortal glory." May 14th: Attended "the Baptist meeting." She closes her notes for the day by saying: "This is a lonesome evening for me; my companion being gone, but if he were at home what would be his conversation, sunk as he is in the cares of the world. O! Saviour pity him! My heart often aches for him, but I must leave him with Thee." Polly's final entry in her journal was made Mar. 17, 1822, and in the following year she passed away. By 1826, John m-Druzilla Read of Cheshire, Mass. The next record of him is on Jan. 29, 1835, when he purchased a 29-acre tract of land near DeKalb, St. Lawrence County, N. Y., but it is said he had been in northern New York sometime previous to that year. He added to his real estate by purchases of farms in Canton tp., Jan. 1, 1836, and in Potsdam tp., Sept. 9, 1836. He also owned a farm in Madrid. John and his wife Druzilla, "in consideration of good will and affection," deeded July 17, 1847, the farm in Canton tp. to their son Powell. However, Oct. 25, 1865, and Oct. 6, 1871, they purchased more property in tp. and village of Potsdam. Issue, by Polly, 3 chn.: Emeline, Barbara, Powell; by Druzilla: Charles, Samantha.

VIII—Emeline C. Westcott, b-Charlotte, Vt., Dec. 25, 1817, d-Aug. 8, 1844; unm. At her home in Canton, Apr. 2, 1838, Emmeline C. Westcott, as she signed herself in a beautiful hand of penmanship, wrote the following: "Evening. It is in the cool of the day that the voice of our Saviour is heard, at morning, at noon, and at every hour, He watches for those intimations of His presence which is only denied to those whose minds are debased a constant attention to lower objects. . . . He sees his Maker in every blade of grass and hears Him in every breath of air, and looks upon every distressed object as a call from his Creator to remember Him. . . . And when the evening comes with what soothing thoughts does his meditations fill the Lord. . . . Then, welcome the delightful hour, welcome the rest and quiet of nature when all is silent around us, and when nothing appears to disturb our peaceful and quiet moments. . . . Then, the evening, the quiet time is soon over and gone, but in that blessed world how undisturbed will be our devotions, how calm will be the Soul repose itself in the bosom of peace."

Appendix "AA".

Nicholas Wescott of Clarendon, Vt.

(Generation Estimated.)

V—Nicholas Wescott, b-ab. 1736-7. Name of wife unknown. First definite information of him appears in town records of Clarendon, Rutland County, Vt., on a list of 392 men who previous to Feb. 2, 1781, had taken the freeman's oath, his name being spelled "Wescott." On this list appears also the names of James, Thomas, Oliver and Johnson Wescott, and old land deeds at Clarendon, show that in 1783, they were joined by two brothers, George and Ziba, who were nephews of Thomas and Oliver. James descended from Ezekiel and Mary of Cranston tp., R. I.; the other from George and Elizabeth of Warwick and Coventry, R. I. Nicholas is believed to have been a son of either George and Elizabeth (W. G., p. 156) or Nicholas and Sarah (W. G., p. 181). He does not appear in census of 1790. Generation Estimated

VI—Joseph Westcott, b-Old Middleboro, Mass., Aug. 18, 1763, d-Peru, Clinton County, N. Y., June 10, 1857; m-Vt., ab. 1799, Olive Knight, b-Vt., 1782, d-Peru, July 18, 1858. They are bur. in Peasleeville cem., Peru tp., and on his stone is inscribed "Albany Co. Militia, Col. Van Rensselaer." It is deeply regretted that a record of his ancestry and that of his wife, has not been found. At time of his birth, several Westcott families lived in Middleboro. According to his pension papers, issued at Albany, N. Y., Sept. 1, 1834, when he was drawing $80. per month and living in Peru, he enlisted in the cause of the Revolution from Greenwich, Mass., in April, 1781, in Capt. Webb's co., Col. Henry Jackson's regt., and marched to Springfield, Mass., and Hartford, Conn., and thence to West Point. He served until the close of the war and after. Following this, he returned to Greenwich, where he remained until 1785. He was then for a year in Lenox, Mass. (1786), in Bennington, Vt., for two years (1787-8), in Rutland, Vt., one year (1789), in Monkton, Vt., three years (1790-1-2), in Grand Isle, Vt., six years (1793 to 1780), and thence to Peru where he finally settled on a Patent in 1800 and where he died in 1857, aged 94 years. Hannah Moore, his daughter, and Mariah Westcott, his son Daniel's wife, witnessed his mark to his pension papers. According to the census of 1830 and 1850, Joseph and Olive had in their home in Peru, one Polly Lydia Westcott, b-1782-3. In the census of 1840, there was counted in his family, himself and wife, three males between 15 and 30 years of age, two females between 10 and 30 years and one female under 5 years. Issue, so far as known, 8 chn.: Anson, Olive, Ira, Hannah, Joseph, Jr., Daniel, Abigail, Stephen K.

Rebecca, a Sister of Stukely Westcott

Rebecca Westcott, sister of the emigrant Stukely Westcott, was married in England ab. 1626 to Captain Thomas Cooke. Their chn. were: Thomas, Jr., b-Eng., ab. 1628; John, b-Eng., ab. 1631; Sarah, b-Eng., ab. 1733; and George, b-Boston or Trenton, Mass., ab. 1635. Thomas, Sr., was b-Earls Coign, Essex, Eng., 1603, emigrated to Boston before 1635, of Taunton, 1637, one of "proprietors" of the town 1639; member Plymouth Colony militia 1643; in which year he removed to Portsmouth, R. I. In 1659, was commissioner to survey west line of colony of Rhode Island, 1664 was Dep. Gen. Assembly. He executed his will Feb. 6, 1673-4, which was proved June 4, 1677. Rebecca died, and he m(2)-Mary Slocum, dau. Anthony; she survived her husband and Mar. 3, 1680, m-Jeremiah Brown of Newport, son Rev. Chad Brown of Boston and Providence.

In "160 Allied Families" (by Austin, p. 260), is stated that "John Cook (son of Thomas and Rebecca [Westcott] Cook), born 1631, "was granted liberty to highway between his uncle, Stuckeley Westcott, and himself."

Foregoing records were furnished this compiler June 9, 1939, by Mrs. Esther M. Graham, 1150 Mary Street, Elizabeth, N. J., who gave complete references. Mrs. Graham descends through [2]Thomas Cooke, Jr., 1628-1670/2, and his wife, Mary Havens, as follows: [3]Ebenezer Cooke, 1659-ab. 1711; m-ab. 1685, in Shrewsbury, Monmouth County, N. J., Mary Patterson. [4]Edward Patterson Cook, 1687-will 1742; m-pr. 1758, Catherine West. [5]William Cook, 1721-1767; m-1743, Elizabeth White. [6]Jacob Cook, 1744-1806; m-1768, Joanna Williams. [7]Elizabeth Cook, 1768-1849; m-1798, William Fleming. [8]Andrew Fleming, 1805-1886; m-1858, Margaret Lawshe. [9]George Fleming, 1845-1922; m-1868, Esther Ann Green. [10]Esther Miller Fleming, b-Clinton, N. J., Dec. 7, 1878, resided 1939 Elizabeth, N. J.; m-Oct. 24, 1901, William D. Graham, b-Oct. 11, 1865, d-Feb. 19, 1932.

[3]Ebenezer Cooke, with his brothers Thomas, George and Stephen, came from Portsmouth, R. I., to Monmouth County, N. J., and there ab. 1685, was married. About this time, the fam. dropt the final "e" in the name, altho some in later generations, retained it.

* Richard Westcott, ab. 1612-1649-50

(Not of the Stukely Westcott Family)

There are records in New England of a Richard, William and Daniel Westcott in the 17th century. Whether they were closely related, authentic record is not available. By some, they are said to have been brothers. The statement by genealogists that Richard was a brother of Stukely Westcott is without proof. There was probably some twenty years' difference in their ages.

Richard, ac. "The Green Tree" (the Greens of North Kingston, R. I.), by Mrs. Lora LaMance, came from Great Torrington, Devonshire, England, "the hot-bed of Puritanism." Stukely came from Ilminster, Somerset, England.

Records of Great Torrington has a Richard Westcott, born ab. 1588, who m-Nov. 11, 1611, Mary Parsons, whose nephew, Hugh Parsons, came to New England. Of this Hugh, the genealogy of "The Greene Family of Warwick" (R. I.), states "Henry Matteson (Ireland, 1646) m-Hannah Parsons, dau. Hugh Parsons, whose dau. Mary, by his first wife, m-Richard Westcott." Recording Mary Parsons as dau. of Hugh is plainly incorrect. To have been old enough in 1611 to have a married dau., when in Portsmouth, R. I., in 1665, he m-Elizabeth, wid. of William England, he would have been at least ninety years of age. Furthermore, the will of Hugh Parsons, is dated Jan. 11, 1684.

In the London Museum may be found record of a Richard Westcote of St. Peter, Cornhill, London, poulterer, and Joanna Whitrigges of same, spinster, dau. William, who were m-July 11, 1592, at St. Leonard, Shortditch, Middlesex.

"The Visitations of Cornwall" (Eng.), records a Richard Westcott of Truro in Cornell in 1620, when he and a number of others, were "stricken from the list" and declared "ignobilia." This was in the reign of James I when everyone who did not conform to the Church of England was ignoble.

Records are not available which show these three Richards were the same person, nor that Richard who came to New England was one of them. It has been suggested that the Richard who settled in Wethersfield, Conn., 1636-7, was born about 1612, ab. same year his wife, Joanna, was born, and was one younger generation than either of the Richards of record in England. Should this deduction be acceptable, then the further suggestion might be made that Richard of Wethersfield, was possibly a son of Richard and Mary (Parsons) Westcott of Great Torrington. Being born ab. 1612, he would have been of suitable age to serve in the Pequot War, 1637, to which service he is accredited, and his marriage to Joanna would have soon followed.

William Westcott is said to have accompanied Richard to Wethersfield, but of him nothing more is known. There was a William Westcoat in Westmoreland County, Va., in 1683 (see app. FF). Daniel Westcott was in Marblehead, Mass., in 1646, when his wife, Maria, was a witness

* During nine years of research of the family of Stukely Westcott, records of the family of Richard Westcott of Wethersfield and Fairfield, Conn., have been compiled for future reference. This appendix records in full only lineages of descendants who either subscribed for this book or in 1938, were associate members of the Society of Stukely Westcott Descendants. Complete detailed records, as compiled, are preserved by the Society.

in court. He is believed to have been the progenitor of the Westcott family in Maine. (W. G., pp. 11, 12.)

It is not definitely known in what year Richard Westcott arrived in New England, but he is supposed to have been one of Elder Thomas Hooker's party who went from Newtown, Mass., to the Connecticut River valley in 1636, settled in Wethersfield and from there served in the Pequot War. The location of his home and town lot of three acres in Wethersfield, are shown on an old map of the town. He sold his home at Wethersfield in 1645 and removed to Fairfield, Conn., where he d-pr. Mar. 11, 1649-50. He m-Joanna ——, whose family name has not been learned. If as the younger Governor Winthrop stated in 1667, that Joanna was then "aged 55 years," she was born in 1612-3. Her sister is said to have been the wife of Robert Sanford of Hartford, Conn. After Richard died, Joanna m(2)-Nathaniel Baldwin of Fairfield and New Haven (his second wife), and m(3)-Thomas Skidmore of Fairfield.

Based upon the foregoing fragment of records and deductions, the following is presented as an abbreviated chart of Richard Westcott and some of his posterity.

Appendix "FF"

Westcotts of Virginia and North Carolina

There was a William Westcott who is said to have accompanied Richard Westcott to Wethersfield, Conn., ab. 1636, and was his brother. Nothing more is definitely known of him. (See App. "EE.") Letters of administration upon the estate of William Westcoat were applied for in 1683 in Westmoreland County, Va. Were they the same person?

Henry Tidory, on behalf of his wife, Mary, daughter of William Westcoat, in Westmoreland County, Va., 1683, made application for letters of administration upon his (William) estate. The application mentions William's "goods aboard the ship anchored this week off Machodock," which place is in Westmoreland County. By "his goods," it is supposed to mean merchandise.

There is rec. in Northampton County, Va., of will of John Wescott, dated Nov. 13, 1733 (Bk. VIII, p. 21), in which he gives one of his guns to his son John and another to his son Stephen. The other chn. were: Elizabeth, Amy, Mary, Sophia, Rachel, Sarah. This John sued John Brewer in Northampton County, Feb. 2, 1682, and in 1684, he made affidavit he was then 25 years of age. Thus, his birth was ab. 1659. Whether he was son of William of 1683, there is no available record.

In 1734, Stephen Wescot of Northampton County, planter, bought from George Clarke, 100 acres on Hog Island. In Nov. Court, 1747, Stephen and his wife Rachel (Roberts?) bring suit against John Roberts, evidently to recover her maiden property. Case dismissed in next term by mutual agreement. In 1755, they sell 100 acres on Hog Island to Littleton Eyre, and nine years later they appear in Currituck County, N. C., which county borders the N. C.-Va. line.

Nov. 9, 1764, Stephen and Rachel appear in Currituck County, N. C., when they buy from Richard Sanderson of Perquimans, N. C., 250 acres on "Roanoak island joining the back line of Padrick Wescot," etc. June 4, 1774, they deed 300 acres on Roanoke Island to their son Stephen, Jr. This deed is signed by mark of Stephen, Sr., and his wife Rachel.

The will of Stephen, dated Aug. 10, 1807, mentions wife Chloe (prob. his second wife), and devises to his son Stephen, the plantation "in which I now live"; also devises were made to his sons William and Asa of land adjoining that of Barnabee Etheridge; further devises to dau. Bethany of "one-half of Cottington Island"; dau. Elizabeth is also named, and grandsons Zach. Gibbs, Stephen Gibbs, dau. Winifred Etheridge and son-in-law Barnabee Etheridge. This Stephen owned a schooner.

There are several deeds of John Weskett and Wescott, son of Stephen and Rachel, on file in Currituck County from 1785 till some years af. turn of century. In 1785, his wife is given as Perthany; in 1799, as Milley. In 1802, John, Sr., sold to John, Jr., "land adjoining acres said John, Sr., had sold to Sam Wescott."

By July 8, 1810, John, Sr., evidently had died, for on that date it is recorded that John (Jr.?) sells "to Sawyer the land he had bought from John Wescott, deceased." In 1813, this John buys land from Thomas Mann; 1820, buys a negro woman from William S. Etheridge.

The earliest definitely known ancestors of Mary Wescott of Durham, N. C., associate member S. S. W. D., were John ("Jacky") and Barbara (Etheridge) Wescott. In Currituck County records under date Dec. 22, 1824, appears a marriage contract between John Wescott and Barbara Dough; nee (perhaps) Barbara Etheridge, or Barbara Dough Etheridge? Aug. 6, 1825, John deeds land on Roanoke Island to John Midgett, Sr., and appears to have died before 1834, in which year Barbara Wescott deeds land to Jesse Etheridge, and in 1836, to Thomas D. Wescott. This John or "Jacky," was prob. son of John and Perthany Wescott.

The fam. rec. is that John and Barbara had son John in 1825. This son d-1884; m-Lovie Davis Tillett, b-Sept. 24, 1831, d-May 7, 1902. Josiah H. Tillett, father of Lovie D., made deed Aug. 3, 1858, for 168 acres of land on Roanoke Island, which he inherited from his father Thomas R. John and Lovie had John Thomas Wescott, b-Aug. 31, 1853, living 1938; m-Dec. 26, 1883, Martha Ann Chadwick, b-Nov. 3, 1865, d-Jan. 7, 1936, and they were the parents of Mary Wescott, b-Poplar Branch, Currituck County, N. C., Dec. 27, 1889, resided 1938 Durham (as above).

A fam. belief is that James was son of Nathan of R. I. In 1850 and again in 1864, he was living in Wheatland, Mich. His wid. drew a pension. He enlisted at Penn Yan, N. Y., in 1814 in the War of 1812-15 in Capt. Sutherland's co., N. Y. militia. With his wife and three chn., he moved from Niagara County, N. Y., to Mich., 1835. Pension papers do not indicate place of his birth, but fam. tradition is to effect he was born in Rhode Island; that there he was found out and ran away. He was only 17 years old when he enlisted at Penn Yan. Another tradition is that his father had died, leaving a wid. and six chn.; that she was unable to support her chn. and "men came and took them away in a boat." Rhode Island Forgets An Illustrious Son

Damaris Westcott, oldest of the children of Stukely and Juliana (Marchente) Westcott, founders of their branch of the family in America, married Benedict Arnold, first Governor of Rhode Island under the Royal Charter, 1663, and thereby became "the first lady of the colony."

They lived, died and were buried in Newport, R. I., in a burial plot "three rods square" on his own land, which by his will, dated Dec. 24, 1677, approved July 1, 1678, he "hereby solemnly prohibit ye selling or otherwise disposing of the said three rod square of ground or any part thereof, but that it be wholly reserved for the use of my kindred relations, for so many of them as shall please to bury their dead in said ground and therefore do order and appoint that they shall have from time to time on all occasions to and from ye said burying ground free egress and regress without any molestation from any that shall succeed to the land about."

The phraseology of the will of Gov. Arnold is clear and leaves no room for questioning its meaning. A group of members of the Society of Stukely Westcott Descendants at the time of their tercentenary family celebration in June, 1935, were taken to this old burial place, or what could be found remaining of it, by the publisher of a Newport newspaper. He pointed to a headstone lying flat on the ground in the rear yard of a small frame dwelling on Pelham Street, declaring, as he supposed, it to be the headstone of Gov. Arnold.

As a matter of fact, the headstones were those of the Governor's son and namesake, Benedict Arnold, and the latter's second wife, Sarah Mumford, and at the right of them, another headstone. These three headstones are all that remain of the old burial ground; those of Benedict and Damaris have long since disappeared.

James N. Arnold, a descendant of Gov. Arnold and his wife, Damaris, in the year 1900, was appointed by the General Assembly of Rhode Island, a commissioner "to inquire into the present condition of the Gov. Benedict Arnold burial place and the title thereto." He made a diligent study and investigation and rendered an exhaustive report with recommendations to the General Assembly in its January session, 1901. The report was published in 1901 by the R. I. State Printers and may be found in the larger libraries. What action since then, if any, the State of Rhode Island has taken appears negligible, judging from what was found, as stated, in 1935.

For a State that takes pride in its outstanding history, rich in its contributions to American civilization and principles of freedom of speech and liberty, this neglect of the burial place of its First Governor, reflects most unhappily.

Third Biennial Celebration of the Society at Bronxville, N. Y., June 22, 23 and 24, 1939

Addenda to Page 53

The usual fine "Westcott weather," the presence of an interested group of members of the Westcott family, enlightening addresses, delightful vocal and instrumental music, three equally splendid dinners, a commemorative church service long to be remembered—these and numerous other enjoyable features combined in making the Third Bienniel Celebration of the Society of Stukely Westcott Descendants, June 22, 23 and 24, 1939, at Bronxville, N. Y., an outstanding family gathering.

A number of changes were made at the business meeting to the "Articles of Organization" (see pp. 37-38). A new office of Registrar was created and the number of Directors increased from twelve to fifteen members. Chapters hereafter may be formed by five National members instead of ten as heretofore. The initiation fee was eliminated, the annual dues remaining at one dollar. Officers and Board of Directors for 1939-40-1, were elected as follows:

President,	Leo E. Westcott, M. D.,	Kalamazoo, Mich.
Vice-President,	Harry J. Westcott,	Passaic, N. J.
Vice-President,	David A. Westcott,	Boston, Mass.
Chaplain,	Deacon William M. Westcott,	Apponaug, R. I.
Historian,	Miss Rachel C. Wilkins,	Hoosick Falls, N. Y.
Registrar,	Roscoe L. Whitman,	Westfield, N. J.
Secretary,	Miss Ethel Clarke,	New York City.
Rec.-Sec'y.,	Mrs. Chester W. De Mond,	White Plains, N. Y.
Treasurer,	William C. Driver,	New Rochelle, N. Y.
Directors (who with officers Constitute the Board)—	Dr. Allan F. Westcott,	Annapolis, Md.
	V. Stukely Westcott,	Pawtucket, R. I.
	Joseph R. Westcott,	Binghamton, N. Y.
	Mrs. George W. Trainor,	Chicago, Ill.
	Mrs. Frank E. Waterman,	Norwich, N. Y.
	Mrs. Charles W. Weaver,	Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

"Family Night"—the Saturday dinner—had its surprises and its pleasures. Past-President Allan F. Wescott presided. Mrs. David A. Westcott, in a delightful address, took the "Westcott In-Laws" for her subject, extolling Juliana, wife of Stukely Westcott, and the "Julianas" down through the generations. Miss Rachel C. Wilkins, newly-elected Historian of the Society, called attention to the desirability of the Society continuing family records in a "Family Register" and asked the support of all Westcott descendants by mailing to her (5 Rogers Ave., Hoosick Falls, N. Y.) data of births, marriages and deaths. Addresses were made by Past President Allan F. Westcott and the retiring President, Joseph R. Westcott, and the newly-elected President, Leo E. Westcott, M. D. Before the dinner, a corsage of beautiful orchids from the "Ladies Westcott," was presented to Mrs. Roscoe L. Whitman, and then near the close of the dinner and the Celebration, Past-President V. Stukely Westcott, in an eulogistic address, presented on behalf of the members of the Society, to the retiring Historian, Roscoe L. Whitman, a set of handsomely engrossed resolutions, beautifully framed. The retiring Historian expressed his deep gratitude and keen appreciation of the loyalty and friendliness of his associates in the Society.

The resolutions, the text of which is given herewith, are mounted in a black bevelled frame 21 by 28 inches, and are beautifully engrossed in red and gold with a fac-simile of the Westcott Coat of Arms in authoritative colors of gold and silver at the top and at the bottom is a picture of a sailing vessel, indicative of the voyage of Stukely Westcott and family in coming to America, June 24, 1635.

Society of Stukely Westcott
Descendants of America

WHEREAS

Roscoe Leighton Whitman

was the Founder of the Society of Stukely Westcott Descendants of America, and

WHEREAS, Through his untiring efforts in compiling our Family History, as well as editing "The Quarterly", he has endeared himself to the whole membership of the Society,

RESOLVED, That as a token of our esteem and in remembrance of his fine work as Historian and Editor, we offer to him this testimonial that he may always be reminded of our loyalty and our profound admiration. Be it further

RESOLVED, That these sentiments be duly engrossed and presented to him as a lasting and well deserved tribute with the sincere hope and trust that by the Grace of God he may be granted peace of mind and contentment.

So have we recorded our thoughts on the twenty-fourth day of June, in the year nineteen hundred and thirty-nine, on the occasion of the Third Biennial Westcott Commemorative Celebration.
